CAREER EDUCATION

Students Are Guided Toward Earning Years

By PAT PERRY
(First of two articles)

The in-thing in education nowadays is Career Education. Like many educational phrases, it lacks bite. A better description comes from Robert H. Prather, career guidance director of Redwood High School:

"The basic concept is, what do you want to do with your life?"

And all over Marin County, children are being guided in reaching that decision in a positive fusillade of advice and instruction through their schools.

For while work experience programs and job counseling in the higher school have been around for years, the emphasis now is on preparing children to face the realities of life from the time they enter kindergarten.

The realities of life, for most people mean earning a living by working.

Consider these facts furnished by the Marin County Schools Office:

Eighty per cent of any high school's curriculum is aimed at four-year college entry requirements.

Eighty-eight per cent of available jobs today in the United States do not require a college degree.

By 1990 the 80 per cent of jobs that don't require a degree will require some kind of technical training.

During the next decade the job market will provide 5,000 new skills that don't even exist today.

Nearly 2.5 million students in the United States leave formal education each year without adequate career preparation.

In a determined assault on these inconsistencies, education authorities all over the country are working on a battle plan called Career Education.

In Marin County it takes many forms, from the revitalized Marin County Industry-Education Council which has adopted the subject as its main thrust, to teachers who are being taught through in-service training to make kindergarteners aware of their parents' jobs.

High schools and the College of Marin and the county schools office's regional occupation program offer a wide range of vocational skills, from auto shop to boat building, from cosmetology to dental assisting. And, increasingly, residents of the community with special knowledge or experience or skills, are called upon to contribute those assets.

The county schools office employs two career counselors, Marcia Greil and Carolyn Horan. In line with the new thinking, Mrs. Greil isn't an educator, but a former employment counselor. Mrs. Horan worked in personnel for an electronics firm.

They're very enthusiastic about all that's going on in the county, from the successful careers conferences sponsored by the Industry-Education Council, to the way employers and unions are helping in the venture.

"Hopefully, we'll get to the point some day where all the schools' curricula will tie into: What does this mean to you,"

Ex-President Truman Loses Battle For Life

Period Of National Mourning Declared

"Our hopes today for a generation of peace rest in large measure on the firm foundation that he laid," said President Nixon. "He will be remembered as one of the most courageous presidents in our history."

Death came as Truman lay in a deep coma in a sixth-floor room at Research Hospital. He had fought with his usual courage since Dec. 5 against an ordeal in which, one by one, his vital life signs and body organs failed.

"The honorable Harry S Truman, 33rd President of the United States, died at 7:50 a.m. (CST)," the official medical statement said. "The cause of death was a complexity of organic failure causing a collapse of the cardiovascular system."

Bess Truman, 87, the former chief executive's childhood sweetheart whom he married more than half a century ago, was at their stately white mansion at nearby Independence when her husband died. She had been at his bedside almost 12 hours Christmas Day.

Nixon ordered a period of national mourning for the man who made some of this nation's toughest and most important decisions during this century — the atomic bombing of Japan, the Berlin Airlift, the dispatch of U.S. troops to Korea and many more.

"Recognizing the new threat to peace that had emerged from the ashes of war, he stood boldly against it with his extension of aid to Greece and Turkey in 1947 — and the 'Truman Doctrine' thus established was crucial to the defense of liberty to Europe and the world," Nixon said from the Florida White House at Key Biscayne.

"He was a fighter, who was at his best when the going was toughest," Nixon said. "But friends and opponents alike were unanimous in respecting him for his enormous courage, and for the spirit that saw him through, whatever the odds."

Truman's funeral was scheduled for Thursday. He will be buried in the ground he loved — "in the courtyard, near the rose garden" of the Truman Library at Independence, his hometown. The body will lie in state for public viewing for 24 hours beginning at 11 a.m. CST Wednesday.

"It is with affection and respect that a grateful nation now says farewell to the 'Man from Independence' —to its 33rd President, Harry S Truman," Nixon said in his eulogy.

Truman picked his own epitaph. He said his life could have no better meaning than summed up in the words he saw chiseled on a frontier grave:

"Here lies Jack Williams. He done his damndest."

And the man who rose from behind a counter of a Kansas City haberdashery to the White House said this is the way he wanted to be remembered: "I did what had to be done." Age simply caught up with Truman. He was hospitalized with what his wife thought was a head cold on Dec. 5. But infection was found in his lungs, and his health steadily deteriorated. He did rally enough to whisper to his wife and daughter, Mrs. Margaret Daniel, that "I'm all right."

But he slipped into a coma four days ago and never regained consciousness.

Lyndon B. Johnson, now the only living former U.S. President, praised Truman in a statement from his LBJ Ranch in Texas.

"A 20th Century giant is gone," said Johnson, 64. "Few men of any time ever shaped the world as did the Man from Independence. President Truman presided over the destiny of this century during one of its most turbulent eras, never flinching in the face of crucial national choices. His decisions changed the course of human events throughout the world.

"He had his critics and detractors, but history is just and Harry Truman will live on in the memory of free people as one of the greatest men to lead freedom's cause."

Truman outlived most of those with whom he shared a place in history — Stalin, Churchill, de Gaulle, MacArthur, Eisenhower and even Thomas E. Dewey, whom he defeated for the presidency in one of the most stunning upsets in American political history.

The only contemporary to live past Truman was Chinese leader Mao Tse-tung who became 79 on the day Truman died. Truman had waged a bitter war with Mao over Korea, but both men lived to see relations between their nations begin to thaw.

Truman said his toughest decision was sending American troops to Korea in a "police action" that kept Communist soldiers from advancing past the 38th Parallel. He said that decision overshadowed all the others —including the order to drop an atomic bomb on Japan. Truman said of the atomic bomb decision: "It was purely a military matter that saved thousands of American lives. No other course was conceivable." After that order, Winston Churchill, the late British prime minister, told Truman: "You, more than any other man, have saved Western civilization."

"The people of the United States, and especially the press of this country, have lost a great friend," said Randall Jessee, a family spokesman. "It is the wish of the family that in lieu of flowers, friends make memorial donations to the Harry S Truman Library Institute, Independence, Mo., or to the charities of their choice."

Nixon proclaimed that the flag of the United States be displayed at half staff at the White House and on all buildings, grounds and naval vessels of the United States for a period of 30 days.

Truman was 467 days short of reaching his dream of living to age 90.

Mrs. Truman, who met her husband when he was 6 and she was 5, was resigned to his death when she left his bedside Christmas night with their only daughter, Mrs. Margaret Daniel, wife of the New York Times executive. Mrs. Daniel flew to Kansas City during the night when Truman's health deteriorated to the point at which doctors said he could die "within hours."

Mrs. Truman, leaning heavily on a metal walking cane because of arthritis, was beside her ailing husband for all but one of the 22 days he was hospitalized. When asked if Mrs. Truman was taking her husband's illness with courage, Mike Westwood, Truman's longtime friend and bodyguard said: "You known darn well she is."

"She is one of the great ladies of the world," Jessee said.

The American flag was lowered immediately to half staff at the hospital and at the Truman home and library.

The world's leaders and its common people mourned Truman's passing.

One neighbor woman, out for a morning walk like Truman used to take when he was in the White House, shook her head and said tearfully, "He was a great man, and it is a very sad day."

Truman had fought a characteristically fierce battle against lung congestion, a failing heart, and finally, failing kidneys since he was rushed to Research Hospital last Dec. 5 with "pulmonary congestion" or fluid in the lungs. His condition was classified as serious the next day and on the night of Dec. 6 he was put on the critical list.

On Dec. 8, as his heart weakened, his condition was reported "extremely precarious. But on Dec. 9 he improved and the next day he was removed from the critical list and spoke a few words with his wife and daughter. On Dec. 11, with his heartbeat controlled by medication, Truman told his doctors "I feel all right."

On Dec. 12 his vital signs became unstable again and the decline of his health resumed.

The former president held his own for a few days in "very serious" condition. But by Dec. 14 he was semi-conscious and unable to respond to questions from doctors or family.

His kidneys failed steadily, and doctors could not use a kidney machine to help because of his hardened arteries.

Truman Mourned, Praised By Political Friends, Foes

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Political friend and foe alike mourned the death of Harry S Truman today and praised the former President for the courageous leadership he provided the American people.

President Nixon said from Key Biscayne, Fla., that Truman will "be remembered as one of the most courageous Presidents' in our history, who led the nation and the world through a critical period with exceptional vision and determination."

Lyndon B. Johnson, now the country's only living ex-President, said of his fellow Democrat: "A 20th century giant is gone."

"He had his critics and detractors, but history is just and Harry Truman will live on in the memory of free people as one of the greatest men to lead freedom's cause."

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew said of the man who served as vice president in the final days of the Roosevelt era: "President Truman made great and difficult decisions affecting the course of human events and he made them always in the larger interest of the nation and its place in the world community. . . His place in history is secure; he stands tall among world leaders."

Speaker Carl Albert said Truman "was a people's President, a man who always was himself and a man with whom every citizen could identify. Harry Truman was President when I came to Congress and I will be eternally grateful for his thoughtfulness and wise counsel. He was one of the finest men I have ever known."

Secretary of State William P. Rogers paid tribute to Truman for his international leadership in World War II and Cold War era.

"The monuments to his wisdom and humanity survive in the restored vitality of nations demolished by war, in a great peacetime alliance of wartime allies, and in the hearts of once threatened but still free peoples," Rogers said.

Members of the Senate, no matter what their political persuasian, similarly eulogized the dead Missourian.

Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott said: "We have lost a great statesman and a fine man. He brought to the presidency zeal, dedication and a love of country which uplifted the mood of the nation."

House GOP leader Gerald R. Ford commented: "Harry Truman was subjected to much criticism while he occupied the White House but historians will surely view him as one of the most courageous men ever to lead the American people."

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., who served in Congress with Truman, noted the former President had the responsibilities of the White House "thrust on him overnight" by the death of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The Greatest Gift Of All

Nabi Karimzad received the greatest Christmas gift of his life last evening: his family.

"I have begun a second life," declared Karimzad today as he looked smilingly around his home at 187 Oak Springs Drive, San Anselmo, at his wife, Sultana; his zon, Ziad, 19; and his daughters, Homa, 22; Friaba, 16, and Trina, 11.

They arrived by air last night from Kabul, Afghanistan. It had required more than two years of often frustrating efforts to bring them to the United States.

Finally, within the two weeks before Christmas, all the efforts fell into place: passports were cleared, Mrs. Karimzad sold two houses the family owned in Kabul, and all five were admitted to the United States on immigrant visas.

They left Kabul early Sunday, flying by Ariana (the Afghanistan airline) to London, then by British Overseas Airways Corp. plane to New York and Trans World Airlines to San Francisco — a 21-hour trip by the clock, but actually 33 hours as they passed through 12 time zones.

The Karimzads are Mohammedans. But to Nabi, the arrival of the family was a true Christmas gift, for which he credits Christ.

"Three weeks ago," he related, "I sat here alone in this house, and I was very worried. There seemed to be difficulties with everything.

"I prayed to Jesus Christ to bring me my family. And after that, everything went right: the houses were sold, the visas were issued, everything fell into place.

"And on Christmas Day, they arrived. I feel that Jesus Christ helped me."

Karimzad came to the United States, and to California, three and one-half years ago.

He had served 24 years in the Afghanistan federal police (only traffic officers are under local control in Afghanistan), and held the rank of army major assigned to the police, an arm of the Ministry of Interior. He was in charge of radio operation and weapons procurement, and traveled to Europe and the United States to buy equipment.

What he saw on those travels convinced him that Afghanistan, a tightly ruled dictatorship under King Mohammed Zahir Shah, was not the place for his family's future.

In 1969, he received two months' vacation, and took visas to travel abroad. He came to California because two younger brothers, John and Nashin Karimzad, live in San Mateo. He decided to stay.

Although he was entitled to retirement from army and police, he ran into troubles getting it approved. That took nearly a year. And then came long difficulties getting permission from both United States and Afghanistan governments for his family to emigrate.

They were all solved in the final weeks before Christmas.

Meantime, Karimzad has em-

In 1969, he received two months' vacation, and took visas to travel abroad. He came to California because two younger brothers, John and Nashin Karimzad, live in San Mateo. He decided to stay.

Although he was entitled to retirement from army and police, he ran into troubles getting it approved. That took nearly a year. And then came long difficulties getting permission from both United States and Afghanistan governments for his family to emigrate.

They were all solved in the final weeks before Christmas.

Big Banks Boost Prime Loan Rate

NEW YORK (AP) — A string of major commercial banks, including the country's third and fourth largest, followed the lead of two other big banks and boosted their prime lending rates today from 5¾ to 6 per cent.

Chase Manhattan Bank, No. 3; Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co., No. 4; and Chemical Bank and Marine Midland Bank increased the cost of borrowing for their most credit-worthy customers in the face of the Nixon administration's campaign to control inflation by keeping the lid on bank interest rates.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Pope's Message

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope Paul VI expressed concern for persons living amid war, hunger and oppression in his annual Christmas Day message to the world and brought loud applause when he read a Christmas wish in Vietnamese.

The 75-year-old leader of the world's Roman Catholics did not refer directly to the Vietnam war during a 10-minute speech from the balcony of St. Peter's Basilica. He referred to the war several times in earlier speeches.

Instead, he said, he wanted to devote a special thought to places where there is still war, hunger, suffering and distress, "wherever the coming of justce and peace is still awaited."

After his speech, his third of the day, the Pope gave his traditional "urbi et orbi" —to the city and the world — Christmas blessing and wished the world a Merry Christmas in 16 languages.

Singer In Hanoi

TOKYO (UPI) — Japan's Communist party newspaper said today folk singer and antiwar activist Joan Baez sang Christmas carols in the lobby of a Hanoi hotel while antiaircraft guns thundered at raiding U.S. warplanes on Christmas Eve.

"In the lobby of the Hoan Bin Hotel inside the city (Hanoi), Joan Baez and Prof. Michael Allen of the American antiwar movement gathered a small meeting to observe Christmas," the newspaper Akahata (Red Banner) said.

"While Miss Baez was playing her guitar and singing, the rumble of antiaircraft fire and bomb explosions rolled through the building. Her companions encouraged her with shouts of 'don't quit' and 'keep going.'"

"Miss Baez finished her songs in a blackout after the electric power was turned off."

Leader Dies

MADRAS, India (UPI) — Chakravarthi Rajagopalachari, the last governor-general of India and an influential leader in his country's struggle for independence from Britain, died Christmas Day. He was 94.

He was governor-general for two years until he resigned in 1950. He was the only Indian to hold the post.

The cause of death was not announced, but Rajagopalachari entered a hospital eight days ago for treatment of uremia.

The central government in New Delhi declared a one-week period of mourning and announced he would receive a state funeral today.

Prime Minister Indira Gandhi called Rjagopalachari's death a national loss.

Plane Missing

MANILA (UPI) — An armed forces spokesman said today an air force C47 and its crew of seven is missing in the southern Philippines and believed shot down by Moslem rebels.

The government described the situation in the area as "tense," the first time it has used that word in reporting what is happening in the area.

The armed forces spokesman said the C47 was reported missing during a mission Christmas eve while dropping flares to help a besieged eight-man government detachment on Tonquil island 630 miles south of Manila.

Indian Imports

WASHINGTON (UPI) —India's 1972 drought could force it to boost grain imports to as high as 185 million bushels or nearly five million tons for the 1972-73 marketing year, Agriculture Department officials reported today.

The import figure is far above the 74 million to 111 million bushels (2-3 million tons) which officials said most reports now indicate India plans to buy during the season ending next fall.

But an Indian official in Washington insisted his country is "not really in such bad straits" as pictured in some accounts, and might not import more than 1.5 or 2 million tons.

Survivors Sought

JUNEAU, Alaska (UPI) — Search vessels criss-crossed the stormy Gulf of Alaska today searching for survivors amidst the floating debris of a Liberian cargo ship that carried 33 Korean crewmen.

Navy C130 aircraft spotted an oil slick, some debris and all four capsized lifeboats of the bulk carrier Pacrover Monday in heavy seas 750 miles south of Kodiak Island.

One search plane remained at the scene during the night, along with two commercial vessels. Two Coast Guard cutters and the Canadian weather ship Quadra were en route.

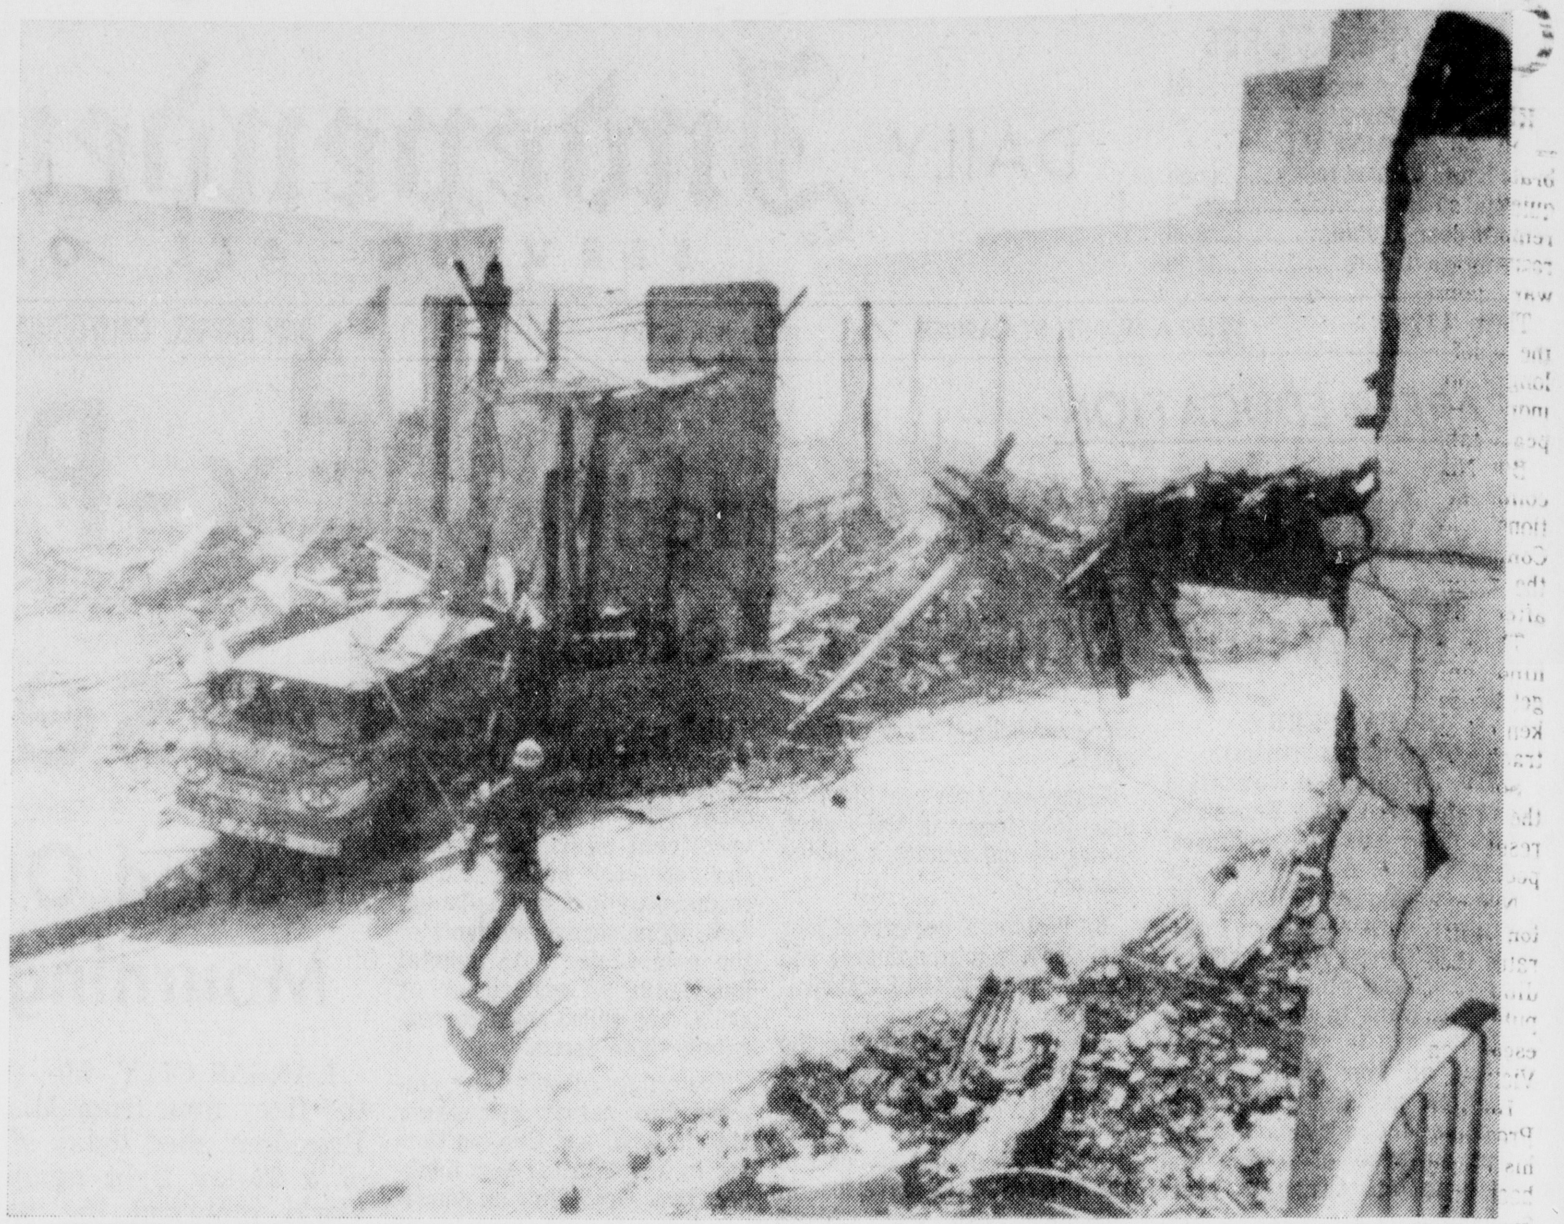
The Liberian registered 13,000-ton ship radioed it was sinking Sunday and crewmen who managed to get aboard a liferaft would have faced wind-whipped seas of up to 55 feet.

Two Sisters Die —Circuit Overloaded

SUSQUEHANNA, Pa. (UPI) — Fire apparently caused by an overloaded circuit claimed the lives of two young sisters Sunday.

Authorities said 10-month-old Tina Marie Seagrave and her 22-month-old sister, Tabatha Jean, apparently died of smoke inhalation. Their bodies were found in a bedroom at their home. A stepsister, Penna Annette, was hospitalized in fair condition. The children's mother, Donna Marie Seagrave, 19, escaped injury.

Force Is Eyed To Clear Managua



QUAKE DAMAGE— A lone soldier, guarding against looters, walks down a street in Managua, Nicaragua, which shows heavy damage from the earthquake which hit the city Saturday.

(UPI Telephoto)

MANAGUA (UPI) — The government agreed today to consider using force to drive reluctant survivors of the Managua earthquake from their ruined city.

A Latin American relief official suggested such action to remove survivors from areas in danger of epidemics and shortages of food and water.

An official source said a Venezuelan relief official suggested what he called "gunpoint evacuation" at a meeting Monday night at the residence of Gen. Anastasio Somoza, the commander of the national guard and military strongman of Nicaragua.

The suggestion came as authorities—and hundreds of foreign relief workers—grappled with increasing problems of health, housing and feeding of residents who survived the powerful earthquake which shattered Managua late Saturday.

Official sources said many inhabitants refused to leave their ruined homes, some of them because they did not want to leave the places where kinsmen died when the earthquake tore Managua apart.

This, they said, inspired the Venezuelan suggestion to drive survivors out of the city.

It remained impossible to determine how many persons died when the earthquake struck, but estimates ranged between 1,000 and 10,000.

U.S. Ambassador Turner B. Shelton said he "knew" at least 2,000 persons died.

The toll of injured ran into the thousands and many of the seriously hurt were flown to other Latin American countries for treatment. A huge international relief operation was launched, with funds and experts arriving from around the world. U.S. aircraft flew in tons of emergency supplies.

Army troops carried out mass burials, but many bodies remained buried under tons of debris, some of it piled 15 feet high in streets. The stench of death was so powerful it drove some rescuers back choking.

A man who piloted bombers in Europe during World War II said the devastation reminded him of war-destroyed cities. Gutted buildings jutted into the air and smouldering wreckage littered plazas and parks.

"Many of the people won't leave," said Dr. Camilio Vigil, a Managua physician and member of the U.N. World Health Organization (WHO). "It's because they do not feel the need to go and some do not have transportation."

To cope with transportation shortages, the government decided Monday night to commandeer all trucks in the country. Somoza earlier declared martial law in the capital to make rescue and relief operations easier.

Other suggestions presented Somoza at the Monday night meeting included the dynamiting of damaged buildings to prevent more injuries to rescuers, police, troops and firemen working around them and the dropping of chemicals to help fight disease.

Some looting was reported and troops were issued shoot-to-kill orders in such cases. But much of the city was empty and lifeless.

Officials said perhaps as many as 300,000 inhabitants already have fled, using everything from ox carts to bicycles to flee to makeshift tent towns or nearby villages.

UPI reporters touring the city said relief workers were not giving food to refugees in the heart of the city but were feeding them in first aid stations on the outskirts of the downtown area.

Authorities said it was impossible to assess the damage, but some officials estimated the loss at $2 billion. That would make it the most costly of three earthquakes since 1885 which have destroyed Managua.

"We are determined to rebuild our capital," said Somoza.

President Silent On Raid Renewal

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (UPI) — President Nixon, who celebrated the Christmas holiday quietly at this Florida villa, remained silent today on the resumption of the massive air war against North Vietnam.

There were earlier signs that the chief executive might prolong a holiday bombing halt to induce Hanoi to return to the peace table.

But Nixon aides ceclined all comment on "mililary operations" today when the U.S. Command in Saigon announced the resumption of the bombing after a 36-hour let-up.

There were indications of behind-the-scenes diplomacy to get the secret negotiations, broken off on Dec. 13. back on the track.

Some officials were saying the stalled peace talks may resume "sooner than you expect."

Nixon, operating with a skeleton staff at his festively decorated bayfront villa, has studiously refrained from any public comment on the recent escalation of the air war over Vietnam.

Indications were that the President would soon wind up his Florida holiday stay. He has been in contact with National Security Affairs Adviser Henry A. Kissinger and has been receiving regular reports from the 24-hour "situation room" in the White House.

In Paris, the Hanoi peace delegation said U.S. war planes, including B52's, had stepped up the bombing of North Vietnam with a view of "razing to the ground" Hanoi, Haiphong and many other populous towns.

"Continuing to commit crimes against the Vietnamese people, the Nixon administration, in the night of Dec. 24 and as of Dec. 26, has multiplied raids by B52's and various other types of aircraft with a view of razing to the ground Hanoi, Haiphong and numerous other towns and populous areas of North Vietnam." the delegation said.

The delegation said in the first official North Vietnamese reaction to the resumed air war that the bombings must be halted if the United States wants to hold "serious" peace negotiations.

The statement said the first condition to be met for such talks was for the United States to return to the situation before Dec.18, the day on which the latest U.S. air offensive was launched.

"Defying vigorous condemnations of the Vietnamese people, of the world opinion and broad segments of American public opinion, the Nixon administration persists in reneging on its pledge to stop bombings of Hanoi, abstaining from bombing above the 20th Parallel and restricting bombings below the 20th Parallel to create a favorable climate for negotiations." the Hanoi delegation said.

It was the first time Hanoi publicly mentioned such an alleged understanding to limit the U.S. air war during the talks. The top-level secret negotiations between White House aide Henry A. Kissinger and Hanoi's Le Duc Tho ended in deadlock Dec. 13, five days before President Nixon ordered the resumption of the air strikes.

"The Vietnamese people as a whole wishes to vigorously denounce this warlike policy of the Nixon administration," the Hanoi delegation said. Its members already have delivered two protests over the bombings to the U.S. delegation at low-level "technical" mutings on a cease-fire agreement, walking out from each meeting immediately afterwards.

"If the Nixon administration truly wishes to settle the Vietnamese problem through serious negotiations, it must immediately stop all acts of war escalation against the Democratic Republic of Vietnam, give up its threats of ultimatums of using force and above all return to the situation which obtained before Dec. 18," the Hanoi statement said.

"If, on the contrary, it refuses to negotiate seriously and seeks to subjugate the Vietnamese people by the power of the bombs, then the Vietnamese people is determined to pursue its resistance and inflict a deserved punishment upon the aggressor," the Hanoi peace delegation said.

Two Released In Club Bombing

BERLIN (UPI) — Police said yesterday they released two American women questioned in connection with the Christmas eve explosion at a U.S. Army soldiers' club which caused considerable damage but no casualties.

The club opened for business again yesterday.

No one was in the club when the explosion went off because it was closed for Christmas eve. A witness told police an automobile bearing a Heidelberg license plate was in the area at the time.

A police spokesman said the automobile was traced and two American women in it were picked up, questioned and released.

U.S. Resumes Bombing Strikes On Vietnam After Yule Break

SAIGON (UPI) — The U.S. Command announced today U.S. bombers had resumed their raids over North Vietnam after a 36-hour Christmas halt, and the North Vietnamese delegation in Paris said B52s were hitting Hanoi, Haiphong and other cities.

The Christmas halt in the bombings that the Communists said hit North Vietnam with 40,000 tons of bombs last week —double the explosive power of the atomic bomb that fell on Hiroshima — was believed ordered by President Nixon in hopes the Communists would return to the peace table.

Neither the U.S. Command in Saigon nor the Florida White House in Key Biscayne would comment on this report, and the U.S. Command would not say whether the bombing resumed today was aimed at the Hanoi-Haiphong area or was as intensive as last week's bombing — the most intensive of the war.

But in Paris the North Vietnamese issued a statement saying, "The Nixon administration, in the night of Dec. 24 and as of Dec. 26 has multiplied raids by B52s and various other types of aircraft with a view of razing to the ground Hanoi, Haiphong and numerous other towns and populous areas of North Vietnam."

And in Moscow, for the second time in four days, the Soviet Union urged an immediate end to U.S. bombing of North Vietnam and that a cease-fire agreement be signed.

The latest statement came Monday from Premier Alexei N. Kosygin at a Kremlin meeting with Hanoi's ambassador to Moscow, Vo Thuc Dong. The Tass news agency quoted Kosygin as saying:

"The United States bears grave responsibility for senseless brutalities with relation to the Vietnamese people who enjoy the sympathy and support of all peace-loving forces.

"The U.S.S.R. government expects that the armed actions against the Democratic Republic of (North) Vietnam will be immediately terminated and that the agreement to cease fire and to restore peace in Vietnam will be signed."

During last week's raids the U.S. Command gave few details of the bombing and the reports of vast destruction to Hanoi and Haiphong came only from Communist news agencies or from diplomats in Hanoi. Hanoi Radio reported hundreds of persons killed and thousands made homeless in the raids.

"U.S. air crews resumed operations over North Vietnam at 1300 hours (midnight EST Monday) today after a 36-hour holiday standdown," the command said.

"There are no new limitations on U.S. aircraft since the bombing resumed," a spokesman said, but declined to say whether this meant U.S. warplanes had resumed raids over Hanoi and Haiphong.

U.S. pilots halted their all-out bombing of the North Christmas day. The bomb halt followed seven days of the heaviest raids in the history of the Indochina war and included B52 missions over the Hanoi-Haiphong area for the first time.

The North Vietnamese said the big Stratoforts laid down carpets of bombs on civilian areas in the capital and in other cities and towns. Command spokesmen today said Nixon's order to resume the unrestricted raids over the North included all but civilian targets.

President Silent On Raid Renewal

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (UPI) — President Nixon, who celebrated the Christmas holiday quietly at this Florida villa, remained silent today on the resumption of the massive air war against North Vietnam.

There were earlier signs that the chief executive might prolong a holiday bombing halt to induce Hanoi to return to the peace table.

But Nixon aides ceclined all comment on "mililary operations" today when the U.S. Command in Saigon announced the resumption of the bombing after a 36-hour let-up.

There were indications of behind-the-scenes diplomacy to get the secret negotiations, broken off on Dec. 13. back on the track.

Some officials were saying the stalled peace talks may resume "sooner than you expect."

Nixon, operating with a skeleton staff at his festively decorated bayfront villa, has studiously refrained from any public comment on the recent escalation of the air war over Vietnam.

Indications were that the President would soon wind up his Florida holiday stay. He has been in contact with National Security Affairs Adviser Henry A. Kissinger and has been receiving regular reports from the 24-hour "situation room" in the White House.

In Paris, the Hanoi peace delegation said U.S. war planes, including B52's, had stepped up the bombing of North Vietnam with a view of "razing to the ground" Hanoi, Haiphong and many other populous towns.

"Continuing to commit crimes against the Vietnamese people, the Nixon administration, in the night of Dec. 24 and as of Dec. 26, has multiplied raids by B52's and various other types of aircraft with a view of razing to the ground Hanoi, Haiphong and numerous other towns and populous areas of North Vietnam." the delegation said.

The delegation said in the first official North Vietnamese reaction to the resumed air war that the bombings must be halted if the United States wants to hold "serious" peace negotiations.

The statement said the first condition to be met for such talks was for the United States to return to the situation before Dec.18, the day on which the latest U.S. air offensive was launched.

"Defying vigorous condemnations of the Vietnamese people, of the world opinion and broad segments of American public opinion, the Nixon administration persists in reneging on its pledge to stop bombings of Hanoi, abstaining from bombing above the 20th Parallel and restricting bombings below the 20th Parallel to create a favorable climate for negotiations." the Hanoi delegation said.

It was the first time Hanoi publicly mentioned such an alleged understanding to limit the U.S. air war during the talks. The top-level secret negotiations between White House aide Henry A. Kissinger and Hanoi's Le Duc Tho ended in deadlock Dec. 13, five days before President Nixon ordered the resumption of the air strikes.

"The Vietnamese people as a whole wishes to vigorously denounce this warlike policy of the Nixon administration," the Hanoi delegation said. Its members already have delivered two protests over the bombings to the U.S. delegation at low-level "technical" mutings on a cease-fire agreement, walking out from each meeting immediately afterwards.

"If the Nixon administration truly wishes to settle the Vietnamese problem through serious negotiations, it must immediately stop all acts of war escalation against the Democratic Republic of Vietnam, give up its threats of ultimatums of using force and above all return to the situation which obtained before Dec. 18," the Hanoi statement said.

"If, on the contrary, it refuses to negotiate seriously and seeks to subjugate the Vietnamese people by the power of the bombs, then the Vietnamese people is determined to pursue its resistance and inflict a deserved punishment upon the aggressor," the Hanoi peace delegation said.

U.S. Resumes Bombing Strikes On Vietnam After Yule Break

SAIGON (UPI) — The U.S. Command announced today U.S. bombers had resumed their raids over North Vietnam after a 36-hour Christmas halt, and the North Vietnamese delegation in Paris said B52s were hitting Hanoi, Haiphong and other cities.

The Christmas halt in the bombings that the Communists said hit North Vietnam with 40,000 tons of bombs last week —double the explosive power of the atomic bomb that fell on Hiroshima — was believed ordered by President Nixon in hopes the Communists would return to the peace table.

Neither the U.S. Command in Saigon nor the Florida White House in Key Biscayne would comment on this report, and the U.S. Command would not say whether the bombing resumed today was aimed at the Hanoi-Haiphong area or was as intensive as last week's bombing — the most intensive of the war.

But in Paris the North Vietnamese issued a statement saying, "The Nixon administration, in the night of Dec. 24 and as of Dec. 26 has multiplied raids by B52s and various other types of aircraft with a view of razing to the ground Hanoi, Haiphong and numerous other towns and populous areas of North Vietnam."

And in Moscow, for the second time in four days, the Soviet Union urged an immediate end to U.S. bombing of North Vietnam and that a cease-fire agreement be signed.

The latest statement came Monday from Premier Alexei N. Kosygin at a Kremlin meeting with Hanoi's ambassador to Moscow, Vo Thuc Dong. The Tass news agency quoted Kosygin as saying:

"The United States bears grave responsibility for senseless brutalities with relation to the Vietnamese people who enjoy the sympathy and support of all peace-loving forces.

"The U.S.S.R. government expects that the armed actions against the Democratic Republic of (North) Vietnam will be immediately terminated and that the agreement to cease fire and to restore peace in Vietnam will be signed."

During last week's raids the U.S. Command gave few details of the bombing and the reports of vast destruction to Hanoi and Haiphong came only from Communist news agencies or from diplomats in Hanoi. Hanoi Radio reported hundreds of persons killed and thousands made homeless in the raids.

"U.S. air crews resumed operations over North Vietnam at 1300 hours (midnight EST Monday) today after a 36-hour holiday standdown," the command said.

"There are no new limitations on U.S. aircraft since the bombing resumed," a spokesman said, but declined to say whether this meant U.S. warplanes had resumed raids over Hanoi and Haiphong.

U.S. pilots halted their all-out bombing of the North Christmas day. The bomb halt followed seven days of the heaviest raids in the history of the Indochina war and included B52 missions over the Hanoi-Haiphong area for the first time.

The North Vietnamese said the big Stratoforts laid down carpets of bombs on civilian areas in the capital and in other cities and towns. Command spokesmen today said Nixon's order to resume the unrestricted raids over the North included all but civilian targets.

Two Released In Club Bombing

BERLIN (UPI) — Police said yesterday they released two American women questioned in connection with the Christmas eve explosion at a U.S. Army soldiers' club which caused considerable damage but no casualties.

The club opened for business again yesterday.

No one was in the club when the explosion went off because it was closed for Christmas eve. A witness told police an automobile bearing a Heidelberg license plate was in the area at the time.

A police spokesman said the automobile was traced and two American women in it were picked up, questioned and released.

Truman Is Mourned, Praised After Death

series of tough, unprecedented decisions with nothing less than the future security of the free world at stake," Jackson noted. "He never shrank from those decisions despite the hostile environment of those postwar years."

Senate Democratic whip Robert C. Byrd said Truman "was the personification of all that is great in the Democratic party and in the American way of life."

Other world figures from abroad echoed the eulogies of the dead American.

George Bidault, French foreign minister during the Truman years, commented: "He was a simple, frank and courageous man. Some people made fun of his simplicity but I always admired his integrity, his judgment and the foreign policy he inspired."

British historian Arnold Toynbee called Truman "a very honest man, a very brave man," and cited his firing of Gen. Douglas MacArthur and the winding up of the Korean war as examples.

The American Jewish Committee recalled that he extended recognition of the new state of Israel within minutes of its birth.

"Harry S Truman was both a typical and an extraordinary American," committee vice president Carl M. Freeman commented. "The country trusted him because it knew he had no other motive than the welfare of all its citizens."

Sen. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga., said Truman was "a man of courage and conviction who called the shots as he saw them and made momentous decisions without fear or favor in accordance with what he believed to be in the best interests of the United States."

Former Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., calling Truman "one of our country's great Presidents," said, "I knew him in a very personal way and feel a personal loss with his passing."

Other eulogies:

Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., who sat next to Truman when he first came to the Senate: "Throughout his public service, and more particularly as he became President, Mr. Truman exhibited a form and courage rarely seen in national life."

Sen. Stuart Symington, a fellow Missourian who served as Truman's secretary of the air force: "He was a great American and a true patriot. Those who worked with him knew that to be true. And the American people are becoming steadily more conscious of that greatness."

Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., also a fellow senator of Truman's: "Harry Truman was a man of the people and the people loved him. One of the reasons for that adoration was his ability to call 'em the way he saw 'em."

AFL-CIO President George Meany: "Harry Truman was a great liberal, a great progressive, a truly courageous man. History will undoubtedly record him as one of America's greatest Presidents."

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y.: "His decisions on Point Four, the Marshall Plan, the post World War II situations in Greece, Turkey and Germany are among the most historic and courageous of his presidency."

Sen. Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore.: "President Truman's politically forthright and refreshingly candid manner won him the respect and admiration of all Americans. He also recognized and utilized the many skills and abilities of another former President, Herbert Hoover."

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., a successor vice president to Truman: "He was a builder in a world ravished by war. He was a healer in a world beset by disease, pestilence and poverty. He was a giant of a man who lived in troubled times and had the courage to make difficult decisions."

Nixon's inaugural committee: "The inaugural committee shares the sadness that prevails throughout the nation over the death of this great president and we express our profound sympathy to the Truman family. A sense of respect for the passing of President Truman will influence inaugural activities and specific details of how they will be influenced will be determined later..."

West German Chancellor Willy Brandt: "We mourn a statesman who courageously committed himself to the defense of freedom ... The memory of American President Harry S Truman will always remain alive in Germany."

There was some minor dissent.

The Communist-controlled East German news agency accused Truman of setting the tone of "aggressive imperialistic expansion of the United States" in his post-war policies.

Dr. M. T. Mehdi, secretary-general of the Action Committee on American-Arab Relations, said Truman's recognition of Israel "planted the seeds of perpetual war in the Middle East. The people of Palestine will never forgive Mr. Truman for what he did to them."

Mrs. Douglas MacArthur said in New York City she would have no comment on Truman's death.

Youth Held For Having Stolen Gun

A 19-year-old youth was arrested last night on Highway 101 by the California Highway Patrol after officers allegedly found a stolen and loaded pistol in his pocket.

Tyrone Ruffin of 49 Drake Avenue, Marin City, was booked into Marin County Jail on suspicion of possessing a concealed firearm, possession of stolen goods and being drunk in and about a public place.

Officers stopped at Ruffin's stalled vehicle on Highway 101 in the northbound lanes above Greenbrae at 8:45 p.m., and determined that he had been drinking. The weapon, reported by the San Rafael police as stolen, was found in his pocket in a pat search, the Highway Patrol reported.

A spent cartridge was found under the hammer of the .22 caliber weapon, and three loaded cartridges in the next three chambers.

Ruffin was held at $1,000 bail, and was to appear today in Marin Municipal Court.

He was sentenced in Marin for drunken driving Feb. 18 on Highway 101, placed on probation for one year and fined $302.

Inmate Found Dead In Cell

A 46-year-old San Quentin convict was found dead in his cell late Saturday night, prison officials reported today.

Jackson Leroy Spilsbury, whose body was found by an officer, apparently died of natural causes, according to the coroner's office.

An autopsy was to be performed at Daphne Funerals, Corte Madera.

Spilsbury had been in and out of the state prison system since 1948, when he was convicted of first degree robbery in San Bernardino County. He escaped from a conservation camp in 1951 but was recaptured the same year.

He later was paroled three times but was returned to prison each time for parole violations.

His survivors include his mother, who lives in Courtland, San Bernardino County.

Cremation was to be at the prison.

Mrs. McLemore Asks Dissolution

Royce McLemore, 29-year-old Marin City housewife who was an unsuccessful candidate in 1970 for the Sausalito School District board, has filed a petition in Marin Superior Court asking her marriage to Emanuel McLemore be dissolved.

She also asked custody of the couple's six children, whose ages range from 14 years to 1 year old.

Mrs. McLemore's petition, accompanied by a declaration to the court that she is a pauper, was filed by the Marin County Legal Aid Society.

Mrs. McLemore has worked as a volunteer in the Sausalito schools.

Missing Felon Still At Large

A San Quentin inmate who walked away from a minimum security area at the prison Friday was still missing today, officials said.

The escapee is Jesus Silva, 26, who was sentenced for first degree robbery in Los Angeles County in 1970. He had been at San Quentin since 1971.

Officials said he was discovered missing from the prison ranch at 7:15 p.m.

Silva was described as being 5 feet 10 inches tall, weighing 195 pounds and having black hair, brown eyes and an olive complexion.

Fire Hits DMV Office In Capital

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Fire today destroyed the fifth floor and spread to the sixth floor of the $10 million state headquarters of the Department of Motor Vehicles.

The fire started shortly before midnight in offices housing the California National Guard. A spokesman for the state Fire Marshal reported an investigation was launched immediately and included arson as a possible cause.

Hours after firemen arrived at the four-alarm blaze, flames and smoke billowed from windows of the building. One fireman and two night workers in the six-story structure were reported hospitalized for smoke inhalation.

The fire started on the fifth floor which houses the offices of the state Military Department. Firemen reported extensive water damage on several other floors of the buildings.

A Military Department spokesman said records of California national guardsmen were lost in the blaze. However, he said each home guard unit has duplicate records.

In another part of the building, Department of Motor Vehicles personnel removed computer tapes containing registration data on California's 18 million vehicles. Computer equipment was covered to prevent water damage. Records of California's 12.5 million drivers are kept in another building.

Man Tied To Burglaries In Marin

A man arrested yesterday in Nevada has been linked to burglaries in San Rafael and San Anselmo, police in both cities said today.

San Rafael police discovered yesterday that a city school had been burglarized after police from Carlin, Nev., called to report they had arrested a man with a tape recorder belonging to Oakview School, 70 Skyview Terrace, San Rafael.

San Rafael police said the recorder, found in the possession of Michael D. Cronin of no known address, was inscribed with the name "Oakview School."

Police after receiving the report found that a window of the school had been smashed and the recorder taken over the weekend.

San Anselmo police, also aleted about the arrest, said today a $95 check and keys taken from a San Anselmo doctor's office on Dec. 18 were also found in Cronin's possession. San Anselmo police said license plates found on a red Volkswagen driven by Cronin were taken from a car stolen from a San Anselmo resident on Saturday.

Supervisor Has Lucky Number

Sonoma Supervisor Philip L. Joerger of Petaluma had his Christmas brightened by winning a new car.

Joerger was top winner in the drawing sponsored Friday by the Petaluma Police Activities League Girls Drill Team. First prize was a Ford Pinto.

Second place winner of a color television was Bertran Kirchner, 717 North McDowell Boulevard. Winning the third prize of $50 cash was Elizabeth Brunner, wife of Petaluma City Councilman Robert A. Brunner.

Program For Deaf To Continue

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A unique experimental Marin program for children who are deaf or severely hard of hearing will resume in February under a bill signed into law by the governor.

The measure, AB 210 by Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, continues the program through July, 1975, at an annual state cost of $17,260.

The program, the only one in California, was funded for several years by the federal government, but federal money ran out in August — forcing a cutback in the program. Children between 18 and 36 months of age were picked up by a state program, but those between six and 18 months were left with only minimal service because of the lapse of the federal program. They have been receiving donated time from the special teachers in the program.

Bagley originally hoped to win passage of his bill before the federal money ran out, but the bill was bottled up for seven months because of a logjam in the Senate Finance Committee.

The county schools office will resume the full program in the new semester beginning in February, according to Acting Asst. Supt. Edward Brennan.

Man Held In Probe Of Burglary

Prompt action by San Rafael police yesterday resulted in the arrest of a Novato man on suspicion of burglary and possession of burglar's tools.

Freddy Morris Sullins, 32, of 1490 South Novato Boulevard, was booked into Marin County Jail and held in lieu of $5,000 bail to appear today in Marin Municipal Court.

Police said they arrived at the Sub Hut, 4380 Redwood Highway, at 2 a.m. yesterday moments after a burglar alarm sounded at the establishment and discovered a coin box had been taken from a cigarette machine. Officers stopped a car driven by Sullins on a nearby road and arrested him after finding several coins, a pair of gloves and a screwdriver under the front seat, according to police.

Officers said they found glass particles on boots found in the car, and linked the particles to a window smashed in the Sub Hut burglary.

Transit Bus Driver Resigns

A Golden Gate Transit driver yesterday took his bus passengers on an erratic ride from Sonoma to Marin, losing his job in the process.

The bus was stopped by Novato police after passengers, who fled the bus in Cotati a little after 1 p.m., telephoned the California Highway Patrol. He was not booked.

Transit officials said that "in lieu of taking a sobriety test, the driver turned in a formal letter of resignation." The letter was "suggested" to the defendant, they reported.

Fight Breaks Out On Hamilton Base

S/Sgt. Edgar A. Flores of 1250 Palmer Drive, Novato, was not struck by an assailant in the parking lot at Pinky's Pizza Parlor at 5460 Redwood Highway, Novato, as reported last Wednesday to Novato police.

He had a fight with Sgt. Ward A. Bakken, security police at the base reported later to Novato police.

Truman Is Mourned, Praised After Death

series of tough, unprecedented decisions with nothing less than the future security of the free world at stake," Jackson noted. "He never shrank from those decisions despite the hostile environment of those postwar years."

Senate Democratic whip Robert C. Byrd said Truman "was the personification of all that is great in the Democratic party and in the American way of life."

Other world figures from abroad echoed the eulogies of the dead American.

George Bidault, French foreign minister during the Truman years, commented: "He was a simple, frank and courageous man. Some people made fun of his simplicity but I always admired his integrity, his judgment and the foreign policy he inspired."

British historian Arnold Toynbee called Truman "a very honest man, a very brave man," and cited his firing of Gen. Douglas MacArthur and the winding up of the Korean war as examples.

The American Jewish Committee recalled that he extended recognition of the new state of Israel within minutes of its birth.

"Harry S Truman was both a typical and an extraordinary American," committee vice president Carl M. Freeman commented. "The country trusted him because it knew he had no other motive than the welfare of all its citizens."

Sen. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga., said Truman was "a man of courage and conviction who called the shots as he saw them and made momentous decisions without fear or favor in accordance with what he believed to be in the best interests of the United States."

Former Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., calling Truman "one of our country's great Presidents," said, "I knew him in a very personal way and feel a personal loss with his passing."

Other eulogies:

Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., who sat next to Truman when he first came to the Senate: "Throughout his public service, and more particularly as he became President, Mr. Truman exhibited a form and courage rarely seen in national life."

Sen. Stuart Symington, a fellow Missourian who served as Truman's secretary of the air force: "He was a great American and a true patriot. Those who worked with him knew that to be true. And the American people are becoming steadily more conscious of that greatness."

Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., also a fellow senator of Truman's: "Harry Truman was a man of the people and the people loved him. One of the reasons for that adoration was his ability to call 'em the way he saw 'em."

AFL-CIO President George Meany: "Harry Truman was a great liberal, a great progressive, a truly courageous man. History will undoubtedly record him as one of America's greatest Presidents."

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y.: "His decisions on Point Four, the Marshall Plan, the post World War II situations in Greece, Turkey and Germany are among the most historic and courageous of his presidency."

Sen. Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore.: "President Truman's politically forthright and refreshingly candid manner won him the respect and admiration of all Americans. He also recognized and utilized the many skills and abilities of another former President, Herbert Hoover."

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., a successor vice president to Truman: "He was a builder in a world ravished by war. He was a healer in a world beset by disease, pestilence and poverty. He was a giant of a man who lived in troubled times and had the courage to make difficult decisions."

Nixon's inaugural committee: "The inaugural committee shares the sadness that prevails throughout the nation over the death of this great president and we express our profound sympathy to the Truman family. A sense of respect for the passing of President Truman will influence inaugural activities and specific details of how they will be influenced will be determined later..."

West German Chancellor Willy Brandt: "We mourn a statesman who courageously committed himself to the defense of freedom ... The memory of American President Harry S Truman will always remain alive in Germany."

There was some minor dissent.

The Communist-controlled East German news agency accused Truman of setting the tone of "aggressive imperialistic expansion of the United States" in his post-war policies.

Dr. M. T. Mehdi, secretary-general of the Action Committee on American-Arab Relations, said Truman's recognition of Israel "planted the seeds of perpetual war in the Middle East. The people of Palestine will never forgive Mr. Truman for what he did to them."

Mrs. Douglas MacArthur said in New York City she would have no comment on Truman's death.

Youth Held For Having Stolen Gun

A 19-year-old youth was arrested last night on Highway 101 by the California Highway Patrol after officers allegedly found a stolen and loaded pistol in his pocket.

Tyrone Ruffin of 49 Drake Avenue, Marin City, was booked into Marin County Jail on suspicion of possessing a concealed firearm, possession of stolen goods and being drunk in and about a public place.

Officers stopped at Ruffin's stalled vehicle on Highway 101 in the northbound lanes above Greenbrae at 8:45 p.m., and determined that he had been drinking. The weapon, reported by the San Rafael police as stolen, was found in his pocket in a pat search, the Highway Patrol reported.

Fire Hits DMV Office In Capital

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Fire today destroyed the fifth floor and spread to the sixth floor of the $10 million state headquarters of the Department of Motor Vehicles.

The fire started shortly before midnight in offices housing the California National Guard. A spokesman for the state Fire Marshal reported an investigation was launched immediately and included arson as a possible cause.

Hours after firemen arrived at the four-alarm blaze, flames and smoke billowed from windows of the building. One fireman and two night workers in the six-story structure were reported hospitalized for smoke inhalation.

The fire started on the fifth floor which houses the offices of the state Military Department. Firemen reported extensive water damage on several other floors of the buildings.

A Military Department spokesman said records of California national guardsmen were lost in the blaze. However, he said each home guard unit has duplicate records.

In another part of the building, Department of Motor Vehicles personnel removed computer tapes containing registration data on California's 18 million vehicles. Computer equipment was covered to prevent water damage. Records of California's 12.5 million drivers are kept in another building.

Police after receiving the report found that a window of the school had been smashed and the recorder taken over the weekend.

San Anselmo police, also aleted about the arrest, said today a $95 check and keys taken from a San Anselmo doctor's office on Dec. 18 were also found in Cronin's possession. Program For Deaf To Continue

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A unique experimental Marin program for children who are deaf or severely hard of hearing will resume in February under a bill signed into law by the governor.

The measure, AB 210 by Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, continues the program through July, 1975, at an annual state cost of $17,260.

The program, the only one in California, was funded for several years by the federal government, but federal money ran out in August — forcing a cutback in the program. Children between 18 and 36 months of age were picked up by a state program, but those between six and 18 months were left with only minimal service because of the lapse of the federal program. They have been receiving donated time from the special teachers in the program.

Bagley originally hoped to win passage of his bill before the federal money ran out, but the bill was bottled up for seven months because of a logjam in the Senate Finance Committee.

The county schools office will resume the full program in the new semester beginning in February, according to Acting Asst. Supt. Edward Brennan.

Police said they arrived at the Sub Hut, 4380 Redwood Highway, at 2 a.m. yesterday moments after a burglar alarm sounded at the establishment and discovered a coin box had been taken from a cigarette machine. Officers stopped a car driven by Sullins on a nearby road and arrested him after finding several coins, a pair of gloves and a screwdriver under the front seat, according to police.

Officers said they found glass particles on boots found in the car, and linked the particles to a window smashed in the Sub Hut burglary.

Transit Bus Driver Resigns

A Golden Gate Transit driver yesterday took his bus passengers on an erratic ride from Sonoma to Marin, losing his job in the process.

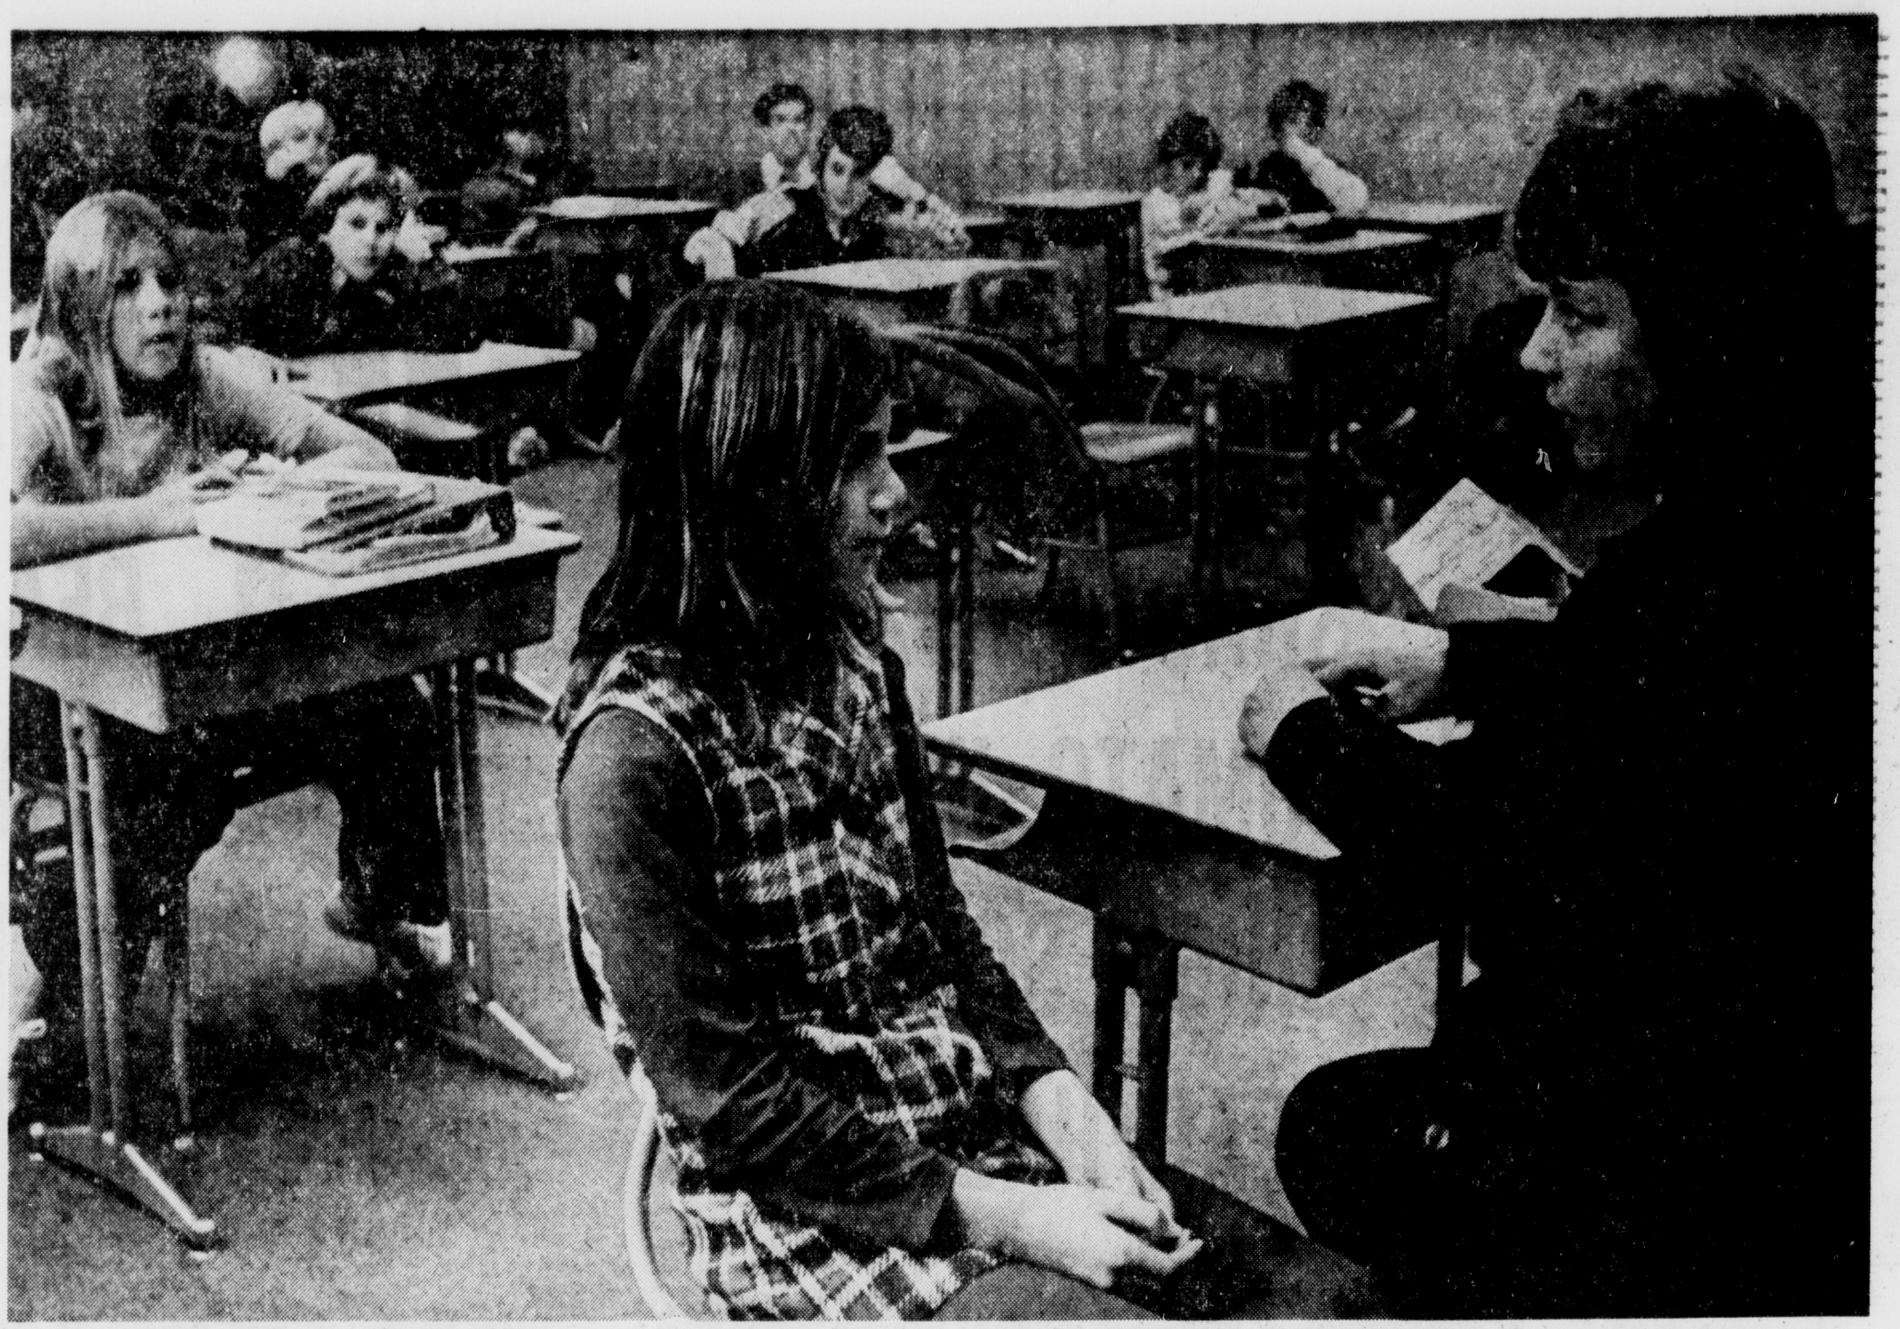
DENTAL FIELD — Redwood High School senior Marilou Bird observes Dr. James Garrett working on the teeth of Roger Massihi from Iran. Miss Bird says she's always wanted to be a dental assistant, but since she began visiting Garrett's Corte Madera office in the Tamalpais High School District's exploratory work experience program "now I can see you have to be fast, and you have to know everything. . . but I know it's what I want, working in an office like this with just a few people."



JOB INTERVIEW — Diane Kay, a sixth grader at Santa Venetia School, tells Kathleen de Martini, a job counselor with Hansell Associates, details of her imaginary previous employment in a classroom session designed to acquaint students with interviewing techniques. By sixth grade, say educators, children should be able to relate career selection to their individual strengths and weaknesses.

Career Education—A New Approach To Old Subject

said Mrs. Greil. "And this has to happen because the kids are saying: Show us some relevance."

The philosophy behind career education isn't limited to having a student possess a marketable job skill by the time he graduates (although that's one of its aims). The idea is to move the concept of career preparation down through the grades.

Thus, a first grader would learn about the money exchange system as opposed to a barter system; a second grader would learn of the community's dependence on people performing jobs, and a fourth grader would study his home and what was needed to keep it going — and which things are luxuries.

This isn't as dreadful as it sounds at first, because that current bit of educational jargon, "decision making," would be translated into action.

Sue Weinheimer is working for the San Rafael Board of Education giving training to teachers and counselors on how to use the career education approach in schools. She cited a program at Davidson Junior High School where students are studying transportation jobs.

"They got hold of all the materials used by different committees for the Marin County Balanced Transportation Study," explained Mrs. Weinheimer, "Resources speakers are coming in and explaining their jobs, and the kids are going right into how you set up a transportation business."

The students will spend a typical commute day, she added, traveling to and from San Francisco on the Golden Gate commute buses, on a one-to-one basis with adults.

Carolyn Horan described another fourth grade: "The kids wanted to learn about careers with pets. The teacher went in the immediate radius of the school and found businesses relating to pets — a pet store, a veterinary clinic, a stable, a kennels, and a dog grooming parlor."

The children visited the businesses, she said, and quizzed employes and owners on their work, and their earnings. Then they did "pet math" (using what they'd learned from cash registers and professional billing) and "pet" writing.

Potential careers are organized in "clusters". . .according to the U.S. Office of Education the entire world of work is included in these fifteen clusters: business and office, marketing and distribution, communications and media, construction, manufacturing, transportation, agri-business and natural resources, marine science, environmental control, public services, health, hospitality and recreation, personal services, fine arts and humanities, consumer and homemaking-related.

A 14-year-old, ideally, would be heading to one specific cluster, if not one particular job.

"We want to train not for specifics, but for transferable skills," explained Mrs. Horan. She cited the current glut of space technology engineers and teachers as an example of too-specific training.

Nevertheless, under the career education model for kindergarten through 12th grade and junior college prepared by the Marin County Industry Education Council, a high school senior should possess "mastery of skills basic to chosen career cluster, or develop skills related to a specific job."

And by the end of the second year at college, the student should have mastered proficiency of the chosen career" as established by certification, licensed and/or required standards."

(Tomorrow: Career education in Marin County, its successes and failures.)

Reagan Held Facing Election Pressure

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Gov. Ronald Reagan faces growing pressure to consider running for a third term, one of his closest political associates says.

Gordon C. Luce, who takes over as state Republican chairman soon, says he thinks it would take an overwhelming mandate from both Repulicans and Democrats for Reagan to yeild.

No such mandate has surfaced at this time, Luce added, and he doubts it will. But, he added, "It could develop."

Reagan has said many times that he intends to serve only two terms. His second term expires in 1974 and a scramble is under way to succeed him.

The plans of other potential GOP candidates hinge largely on what Reagan decides to do in 1974.

Luce said he was convinced Reagan intended to keep his two-term vow.

Reagan has said he might run for the U.S. Senate in 1974 when Democrat Alan Cranston is up for re-election.

Luce, a San Diego savings and loan company executive, acknowledged during an interview that some prominent Reagan supporters would like him to run for a third term, but he would not identify them.

Some would like Reagan, who is 61, to remain in public office but "are not too encouraging toward" Reagan running for the Senate where he would be the junior senator from California, Luce said.

Luce would not comment, but these are believed to be some of the same Reagan backers who consider him a possible presidential candidate in 1976.

At his most recent news conference, the Republican governor was asked whether he was backing off from his pledge not to seek a third four-year term.

"Is it still your intention definitely not to seek a third term?" Reagan was asked.

"That's right," he replied.

"I've made that very plain."

Reagan has acknowledged that he must decide soon whether to run for the Seante or leave office.

At least four potential GOP candidates are exploring their chances to succeed Reagan: Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke, a declared candidate; Robert H. Finch, former lieutenant governor and secretary of Health, Education and Welfare; State Controller Houston I. Flournoy and Atty. Gen. Evelle J. Younger.

Luce, now the party vice chairman, and other Republicans are concerned that a bitter primary fight for governor or senator could divide the party, hurting its chances of holding the governorship and picking up Cranston's Senate seat.

He discounted speculation about a possible GOP "summit conference" at which party leaders would try to handpick the candidates for 1974, but Luce said some influential Republicans were working as "self-appointed coordinators" in an effort to narrow the senatorial and gubernatorial fields to the strongest potential candidates before the GOP becomes embroiled in divisive primary battles.

Tanaka Says Yen To Firm

TOKYO (UPI) — Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka said yesterday he will not revalue the yen but will try to ease pressure for increasing its value by limiting exports.

Tanaka made the statement at a Christmas Day news conference, the first since he formed a new cabinet following his reelection earlier in the month.

Catholics Asked To End Bloodshed

WARSAW (UPI) —Cardinal Stefan Wyszynski, Roman Catholic primate of Poland, asked American Catholics on Christmas Day to stop "the bloodshed of the innocent children and brothers in Vietnam."

"I express my hope that the American episcopate, realizing the appeal of the pope, will do its best so that the blood of the innocent children and brothers in Vietnam will not be shed," Wyszynski told a congregation of 2,000 at Warsaw's St. Johns Cathedral.

Is spiritual schizophrenia a business disease?

You see it often enough: one code for the conduct of personal affairs, a quite different one applied in business and governmental matters. The belief seems to prevail that we are less responsible as individuals when we make "business" decisions, that business has a different code. Not so. Neither the business nor the cause changes the priority of values. We are born to the community of man first; the others are secondary allegiances. Make your individual morality work where you work.

Same Faces Expected To Lead Halls Of Congress

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Some attribute it to weariness after a long political year. Whatever the reason, no one seems to be putting up much of a fight for leadership posts in Congress this year.

Except for some vacancies stemming from death and defeat, the 93d Congress appears likely to open with about the same leaders as last year.

In the House, the only announced challenger for the job of Speaker Carl Albert of Oklahoma is Rep. John Conyers Jr. of Michigan, a liberal black.

Though there has been some grumbling about Albert's leadership, Conyers' challenge is regarded as more symbolic than real. There has been talk that Rep. Morris K. Udall of Arizona might seek the speaker's job. But the feeling is that once Rep. Wilbur D. Mills made it clear he was not interested in that post, Albert became a sure thing.

The death of House Democratic Leader Hale Boggs in an Alaska plane crash launched a race between Thomas P. (Tip) O'Neill Jr. of Massachusetts and Florida's Sam M. Gibbons. O'Neill is favored to win.

On the Republican side of the House, Michigan's Gerald R. Ford is not likely to be challenged as Republican leader.

In the Senate, Democrats seemed certain to re-elect Montana's Mike Mansfield as majority leader. He has held the post 12 years, longer than any man. By tradition, Mansfield also has remained chairman of the Democratic Policy Committee, Steering Committee and Party Caucus.

Sen. Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia seemed certain to be re-elected as Mansfield's assistant.

Senate GOP Leader Hugh Scott, who twice has fended off challenges from Tennessee's Howard H. Baker Jr., may now be unopposed. This time Baker gives no indication of running. Republican Whip Robert P. Griffin of Michigan seems equally entrenched.

So far, Sen. John G. Tower of Texas and Sen. Robert Taft Jr., of Ohio have announced as candidates for chairman of the GOP Policy Committee. The job becomes vacant by the election defeat of Colorado's Gordon Allott. Both Tower and Taft are conservatives. It is possible that a liberal (perhaps Edward W. Brooks of Massachusetts) might step into that race.

There is also a geriatric contest between Wallace F. Bennett (74) of Utah and Norris Cotton (72) of New Hampshire for chairman of the Republican Conference, which became vacant by the election defeat of Sen. Margaret Chase Smith (75) of Maine.

Three Lines Given The Boot

JAKARTA (UPI) — Pan American Airways, Qantas and Thai International Airlines will not get renewed permission to fly to the resort island of Bali next year, a government spokesman said today.

A communications department spokesman said the three countries involved—the United States, Australia and Thailand —will not be allowed to resume their service to Bali "as a matter of government policy."

All three airlines are currently renegotiating their contracts for the Bali service, but it was believed the Indonesia government is taking the move to protect domestic airlines, which claim the foreign lines are taking too big a share of the Bali traffic.

TELECARE

Caring For Others Through Daily Calls

By MARY LEYDECKER

At one end of the telephone line is a patient in a Santa Venetia rest home — at the other is someone who lives alone and who is old or ill or both.

The call is a daily affair, whether it happens to be a weekday, Sunday, Christmas or whatever. The reassuring little ritual is called Telecare and there's a benefit for the people at either end of the line.

For Fred Zimbeck, who started the service from his wheelchair at the Rafael Convalescent Hospital, it's "feeling needed — feeling like you're doing something for someone."

For those at the other end of the line, the call may be simply a daily reassurance that someone cares about his welfare or it may, in some cases, mean the difference between life and death.

It all started about a year ago when two social workers, Lou Norton and Elizabeth Moody, who had learned about such a program at an East Bay hospital, persuaded Zimbeck to start Telecare in Marin.

"I was snookered into it," Zimbeck said with a smile.

Zimbeck, a healthy, active printer until he was injured in a fall some years ago, soon had the service underway with some assistance from the county Department of Public Social Services, who provide cards and forms, and the convalescent home, which provides a phone and advertising.

Telecare is a very simple operation but a very personal one as run by Zimbeck and his chief assistant, a bright-eyed cheerful woman named Gladys Burke.

Each morning at specified times, the pair calls everyone who is currently on the Telecare list, except those who have phoned earlier to say they won't be home.

Once a man, convalescing at home from double pneumonia, apparently got to feeling better and took off for Reno without notifying Telecare. "By the time he got back, everybody and his brother was looking for him," Zimbeck said. The man now phones days ahead when he plans to be out at calling time.)

The call consists of a brief chat, inquiries about health and some general conversation, a phone visit between two friends, which is what the people at both ends of the phone soon become.

"You can tell from their voices if they're trying to be evasive," Zimbeck said.

Mrs. Burke added, "One man didn't sound right so I went over everybody's head and phoned his neice in Hayward. The man had had a stroke, and was taken to the hospital."

Another time Zimbeck kept a woman who was threatening to commit suicide talking on the phone for half an hour until help he had summoned could arrive at her house.

Zimbeck, too, has called doctors of cardiac patients when he was worried about them and twice the patients have been rushed to the hospital.

Among the "clients" of Telecare, Mrs. Burke said, is a former nurse at the rest home who lives alone and is ill now.

Mrs. Burke, who lived at the rest home for several years. until a few months ago, is now a resident of a nearby boarding home. She was moved when Medical officials decided she didn't need the "level of care" available at the rest home, but she is driven to and from the rest home each day so she can continue with Telecare.

"We're going to train this one here, too," Zimbeck said, gesturing to another patient, Genevieve Murphy, a registered nurse now confined to a wheelchair.

Mrs. Murphy started in by calling her own mother, who recently came to Marin to live alone in an apartment. Soon Zimbeck hopes Mrs. Murphy will be a regular addition to the Telecare staff.

If the Telecare callers get no answer on a call, ("I always let it ring a long time," Mrs. Burke added), they immediately call one of two persons named by the client, either neighbors, friends or relatives, who can go check.

With their service now running smoothly and giving "more individualized attention" that a larger operation, Zimbeck is ready for more clients.

Those who live alone and who would like to be called or know someone who would, may contact the volunteer office at the Department of Public Social Services at the Marin Civic Center, who will pass the names along to Telecare.

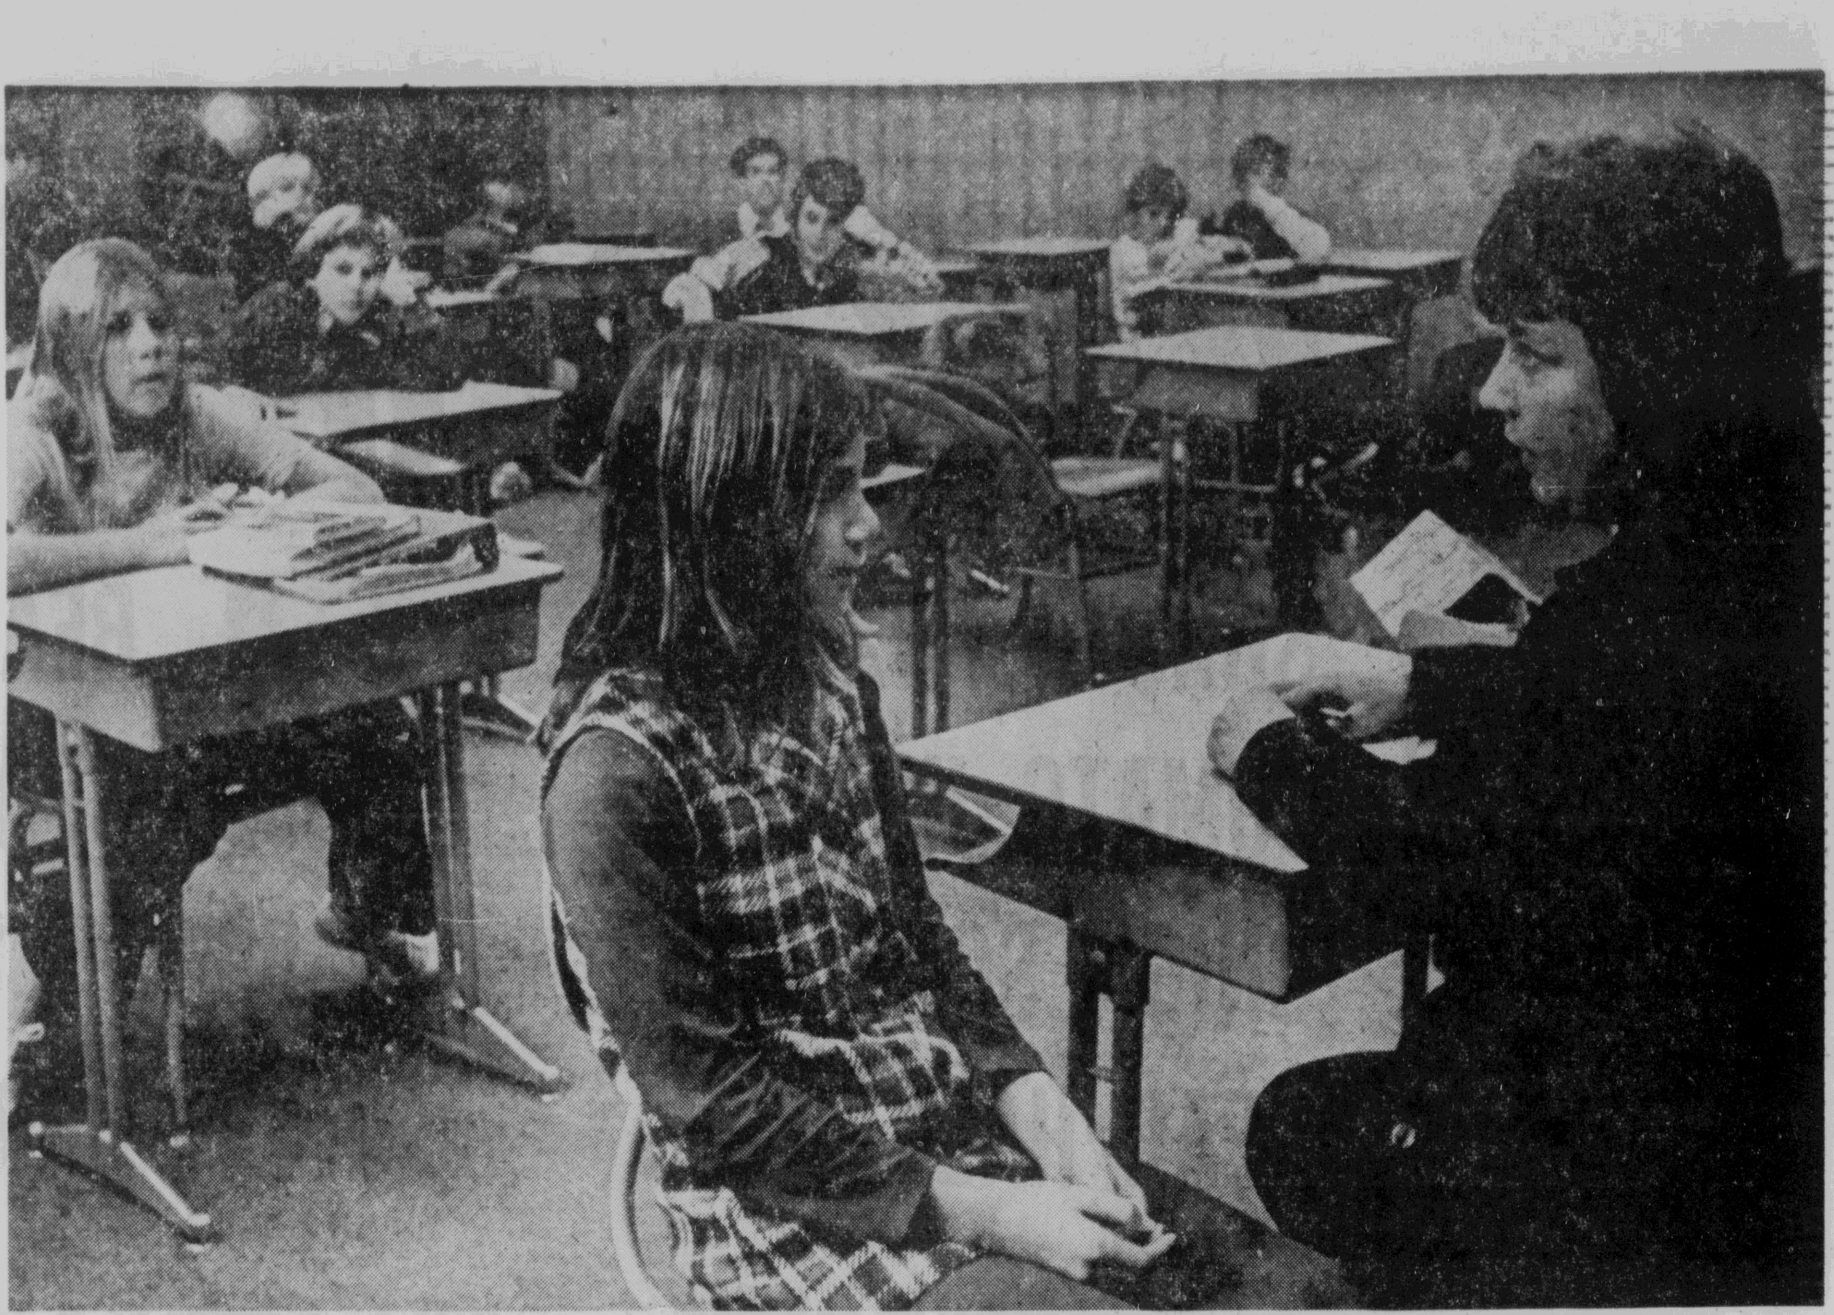
DENTAL FIELD — Redwood High School senior Marilou Bird observes Dr. James Garrett working on the teeth of Roger Massihi from Iran. Miss Bird says she's always wanted to be a dental assistant, but since she began visiting Garrett's Corte Madera office in the Tamalpais High School District's exploratory work experience program "now I can see you have to be fast, and you have to know everything. . . but I know it's what I want, working in an office like this with just a few people."



JOB INTERVIEW — Diane Kay, a sixth grader at Santa Venetia School, tells Kathleen de Martini, a job counselor with Hansell Associates, details of her imaginary previous employment in a classroom session designed to acquaint students with interviewing techniques. By sixth grade, say educators, children should be able to relate career selection to their individual strengths and weaknesses.

Career Education—A New Approach To Old Subject

said Mrs. Greil. "And this has to happen because the kids are saying: Show us some relevance."

The philosophy behind career education isn't limited to having a student possess a marketable job skill by the time he graduates (although that's one of its aims). The idea is to move the concept of career preparation down through the grades.

Thus, a first grader would learn about the money exchange system as opposed to a barter system; a second grader would learn of the community's dependence on people performing jobs, and a fourth grader would study his home and what was needed to keep it going — and which things are luxuries.

This isn't as dreadful as it sounds at first, because that current bit of educational jargon, "decision making," would be translated into action.

Sue Weinheimer is working for the San Rafael Board of Education giving training to teachers and counselors on how to use the career education approach in schools. She cited a program at Davidson Junior High School where students are studying transportation jobs.

"They got hold of all the materials used by different committees for the Marin County Balanced Transportation Study," explained Mrs. Weinheimer, "Resources speakers are coming in and explaining their jobs, and the kids are going right into how you set up a transportation business."

The students will spend a typical commute day, she added, traveling to and from San Francisco on the Golden Gate commute buses, on a one-to-one basis with adults.

Carolyn Horan described another fourth grade: "The kids wanted to learn about careers with pets. The teacher went in the immediate radius of the school and found businesses relating to pets — a pet store, a veterinary clinic, a stable, a kennels, and a dog grooming parlor."

The children visited the businesses, she said, and quizzed employes and owners on their work, and their earnings. Then they did "pet math" (using what they'd learned from cash registers and professional billing) and "pet" writing.

Potential careers are organized in "clusters". . .according to the U.S. Office of Education the entire world of work is included in these fifteen clusters: business and office, marketing and distribution, communications and media, construction, manufacturing, transportation, agri-business and natural resources, marine science, environmental control, public services, health, hospitality and recreation, personal services, fine arts and humanities, consumer and homemaking-related.

A 14-year-old, ideally, would be heading to one specific cluster, if not one particular job.

"We want to train not for specifics, but for transferable skills," explained Mrs. Horan. She cited the current glut of space technology engineers and teachers as an example of too-specific training.

Nevertheless, under the career education model for kindergarten through 12th grade and junior college prepared by the Marin County Industry Education Council, a high school senior should possess "mastery of skills basic to chosen career cluster, or develop skills related to a specific job."

And by the end of the second year at college, the student should have mastered proficiency of the chosen career" as established by certification, licensed and/or required standards."

(Tomorrow: Career education in Marin County, its successes and failures.)

Reagan Held Facing Election Pressure

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Gov. Ronald Reagan faces growing pressure to consider running for a third term, one of his closest political associates says.

Gordon C. Luce, who takes over as state Republican chairman soon, says he thinks it would take an overwhelming mandate from both Repulicans and Democrats for Reagan to yeild.

No such mandate has surfaced at this time, Luce added, and he doubts it will. But, he added, "It could develop."

Reagan has said many times that he intends to serve only two terms. His second term expires in 1974 and a scramble is under way to succeed him.

The plans of other potential GOP candidates hinge largely on what Reagan decides to do in 1974.

Luce said he was convinced Reagan intended to keep his two-term vow.

Reagan has said he might run for the U.S. Senate in 1974 when Democrat Alan Cranston is up for re-election.

Luce, a San Diego savings and loan company executive, acknowledged during an interview that some prominent Reagan supporters would like him to run for a third term, but he would not identify them.

Some would like Reagan, who is 61, to remain in public office but "are not too encouraging toward" Reagan running for the Senate where he would be the junior senator from California, Luce said.

Luce would not comment, but these are believed to be some of the same Reagan backers who consider him a possible presidential candidate in 1976.

At his most recent news conference, the Republican governor was asked whether he was backing off from his pledge not to seek a third four-year term.

"Is it still your intention definitely not to seek a third term?" Reagan was asked.

"That's right," he replied. "I've made that very plain."

Reagan has acknowledged that he must decide soon whether to run for the Seante or leave office.

At least four potential GOP candidates are exploring their chances to succeed Reagan: Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke, a declared candidate; Robert H. Finch, former lieutenant governor and secretary of Health, Education and Welfare; State Controller Houston I. Flournoy and Atty. Gen. Evelle J. Younger.

Luce, now the party vice chairman, and other Republicans are concerned that a bitter primary fight for governor or senator could divide the party, hurting its chances of holding the governorship and picking up Cranston's Senate seat.

He discounted speculation about a possible GOP "summit conference" at which party leaders would try to handpick the candidates for 1974, but Luce said some influential Republicans were working as "self-appointed coordinators" in an effort to narrow the senatorial and gubernatorial fields to the strongest potential candidates before the GOP becomes embroiled in divisive primary battles.

Catholics Asked To End Bloodshed

WARSAW (UPI) —Cardinal Stefan Wyszynski, Roman Catholic primate of Poland, asked American Catholics on Christmas Day to stop "the bloodshed of the innocent children and brothers in Vietnam."

"I express my hope that the American episcopate, realizing the appeal of the pope, will do its best so that the blood of the innocent children and brothers in Vietnam will not be shed," Wyszynski told a congregation of 2,000 at Warsaw's St. Johns Cathedral.

Tanaka Says Yen To Firm

TOKYO (UPI) — Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka said yesterday he will not revalue the yen but will try to ease pressure for increasing its value by limiting exports.

Tanaka made the statement at a Christmas Day news conference, the first since he formed a new cabinet following his reelection earlier in the month.

Is spiritual schizophrenia a business disease?

You see it often enough: one code for the conduct of personal affairs, a quite different one applied in business and governmental matters. The belief seems to prevail that we are less responsible as individuals when we make "business" decisions, that business has a different code. Not so. Neither the business nor the cause changes the priority of values. We are born to the community of man first; the others are secondary allegiances. Make your individual morality work where you work.

The community of man . . . God's club.
It's not exclusive. It includes you and me.

REASSURANCE — Fred Zimbeck (left) grins as he phones a "client" of Telecare from his wheelchair at the Rafael Convalescent Hospital. His chief assistant, Gladys Burke (right) and Genevieve Murphy (background) look on. The three, all rest home patients, make daily reassuring calls to people who live alone.

TELECARE

Caring For Others Through Daily Calls

By MARY LEYDECKER

At one end of the telephone line is a patient in a Santa Venetia rest home — at the other is someone who lives alone and who is old or ill or both.

The call is a daily affair, whether it happens to be a weekday, Sunday, Christmas or whatever. The reassuring little ritual is called Telecare and there's a benefit for the people at either end of the line.

For Fred Zimbeck, who started the service from his wheelchair at the Rafael Convalescent Hospital, it's "feeling needed — feeling like you're doing something for someone."

For those at the other end of the line, the call may be simply a daily reassurance that someone cares about his welfare or it may, in some cases, mean the difference between life and death.

It all started about a year ago when two social workers, Lou Norton and Elizabeth Moody, who had learned about such a program at an East Bay hospital, persuaded Zimbeck to start Telecare in Marin.

"I was snookered into it," Zimbeck said with a smile.

Zimbeck, a healthy, active printer until he was injured in a fall some years ago, soon had the service underway with some assistance from the county Department of Public Social Services, who provide cards and forms, and the convalescent home, which provides a phone and advertising.

Telecare is a very simple operation but a very personal one as run by Zimbeck and his chief assistant, a bright-eyed cheerful woman named Gladys Burke.

Each morning at specified times, the pair calls everyone who is currently on the Telecare list, except those who have phoned earlier to say they won't be home.

Once a man, convalescing at home from double pneumonia, apparently got to feeling better and took off for Reno without notifying Telecare. "By the time he got back, everybody and his brother was looking for him," Zimbeck said. The man now phones days ahead when he plans to be out at calling time.)

The call consists of a brief chat, inquiries about health and some general conversation, a phone visit between two friends, which is what the people at both ends of the phone soon become.

"You can tell from their voices if they're trying to be evasive," Zimbeck said.

Mrs. Burke added, "One man didn't sound right so I went over everybody's head and phoned his neice in Hayward. The man had had a stroke, and was taken to the hospital."

Another time Zimbeck kept a woman who was threatening to commit suicide talking on the phone for half an hour until help he had summoned could arrive at her house.

Zimbeck, too, has called doctors of cardiac patients when he was worried about them and twice the patients have been rushed to the hospital.

Among the "clients" of Telecare, Mrs. Burke said, is a former nurse at the rest home who lives alone and is ill now.

Mrs. Burke, who lived at the rest home for several years. until a few months ago, is now a resident of a nearby boarding home. She was moved when Medical officials decided she didn't need the "level of care" available at the rest home, but she is driven to and from the rest home each day so she can continue with Telecare.

"We're going to train this one here, too," Zimbeck said, gesturing to another patient, Genevieve Murphy, a registered nurse now confined to a wheelchair.

Mrs. Murphy started in by calling her own mother, who recently came to Marin to live alone in an apartment. Soon Zimbeck hopes Mrs. Murphy will be a regular addition to the Telecare staff.

If the Telecare callers get no answer on a call, ("I always let it ring a long time," Mrs. Burke added), they immediately call one of two persons named by the client, either neighbors, friends or relatives, who can go check.

With their service now running smoothly and giving "more individualized attention" that a larger operation, Zimbeck is ready for more clients.

Those who live alone and who would like to be called or know someone who would, may contact the volunteer office at the Department of Public Social Services at the Marin Civic Center, who will pass the names along to Telecare.

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Rabbi Meir Kahane formally became an Israeli citizen Sunday. That cleared the way for him to head a slate for next year's elections to the Knesset (parliament).

Same Faces Expected To Lead Halls Of Congress

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Some attribute it to weariness after a long political year. Whatever the reason, no one seems to be putting up much of a fight for leadership posts in Congress this year.

Except for some vacancies stemming from death and defeat, the 93d Congress appears likely to open with about the same leaders as last year.

In the House, the only announced challenger for the job of Speaker Carl Albert of Oklahoma is Rep. John Conyers Jr. of Michigan, a liberal black.

Though there has been some grumbling about Albert's leadership, Conyers' challenge is regarded as more symbolic than real. There has been talk that Rep. Morris K. Udall of Arizona might seek the speaker's job. But the feeling is that once Rep. Wilbur D. Mills made it clear he was not interested in that post, Albert became a sure thing.

The death of House Democratic Leader Hale Boggs in an Alaska plane crash launched a race between Thomas P. (Tip) O'Neill Jr. of Massachusetts and Florida's Sam M. Gibbons. O'Neill is favored to win.

On the Republican side of the House, Michigan's Gerald R. Ford is not likely to be challenged as Republican leader.

In the Senate, Democrats seemed certain to re-elect Montana's Mike Mansfield as majority leader. He has held the post 12 years, longer than any man. By tradition, Mansfield also has remained chairman of the Democratic Policy Committee, Steering Committee and Party Caucus.

Sen. Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia seemed certain to be re-elected as Mansfield's assistant.

Senate GOP Leader Hugh Scott, who twice has fended off challenges from Tennessee's Howard H. Baker Jr., may now be unopposed. This time Baker gives no indication of running. Republican Whip Robert P. Griffin of Michigan seems equally entrenched.

So far, Sen. John G. Tower of Texas and Sen. Robert Taft Jr., of Ohio have announced as candidates for chairman of the GOP Policy Committee. The job becomes vacant by the election defeat of Colorado's Gordon Allott. Both Tower and Taft are conservatives. It is possible that a liberal (perhaps Edward W. Brooks of Massachusetts) might step into that race.

There is also a geriatric contest between Wallace F. Bennett (74) of Utah and Norris Cotton (72) of New Hampshire for chairman of the Republican Conference, which became vacant by the election defeat of Sen. Margaret Chase Smith (75) of Maine.

Three Lines Given The Boot

JAKARTA (UPI) — Pan American Airways, Qantas and Thai International Airlines will not get renewed permission to fly to the resort island of Bali next year, a government spokesman said today.

A communications department spokesman said the three countries involved—the United States, Australia and Thailand —will not be allowed to resume their service to Bali "as a matter of government policy."

All three airlines are currently renegotiating their contracts for the Bali service, but it was believed the Indonesia government is taking the move to protect domestic airlines, which claim the foreign lines are taking too big a share of the Bali traffic.

Auto Union Eyes Boredom Battle

DETROIT (UPI) —A United Auto Workers vice president has a plan for cutting down assembly line boredom which he says could become a big bargaining issue when contract talks open up with Ford Motor Co. in July.

Ken Bannon, director of the UAW's Ford department, says the plan will "take more time out of the work year without crimping production."

It would give each hourly employe more paid time off the job by banking credit hours on a percentage of hours he works in a year. A worker could take off a week when he has banked 40 hours.

In effect, the plan would cut the work week to 38 hours over a year's time. It is the first indication the UAW has dropped intentions to negotiate for a four-day work week during contract talks.

It would, Bannon concedes, cost the industry money.

But he said it might also, in the end, prove less costly to the auto industry by reducing absenteeism, and improving quality by cutting down tedium. It would also generate new jobs — possibly 100 new jobs in each assembly plant if negotiators agree on a maximum banking of 100 hours per year.

Bannon proposed in the plan the belief that product quality would improve with more frequent breaks, allowing employes to return to their jobs refreshed.

But the industry may shun the plan as a costly one, with no immediate proof it will reduce absenteeism and improve quality.

Sidney McKenna, Ford industrial relations staff director, sees little evidence that a cut in working time would increase worker satisfaction.

Richard C. Gerstenberg, General Motors Corp. board chairman, recently admonished any proposal to shorten the work week in any fashion. He said any such plan would involve extra cost which would inevitably be made up in higher automobile costs.

Berlin Wall Opened For Christmas Visits

BERLIN (UPI) — The old lady BERLIN (UPI) —The old lady traveled by subway to the Friedrich Strasse station, moved swiftly through Communist border controls and then walked out into East Berlin.

"Here we are," a young woman cried. "Here we are."

The old lady's eyes glistened with tears as she kissed a grandchild, cuddling her in one arm while holding a toy elephant in the other.

It was no isolated reunion.

It was a scene repeated in one way or another hundreds of thousands of times in East Berlin and other East German cities and towns as West Berliners spent their first Christmas since 1965 with relatives living in the East.

Parents embraced their children. Brothers greeted sisters.

Under the provisions of a Big Four agreement to ease tension between the East and West, visitors from West Berlin poured into the East by automobile, train, subway, even on foot.

The Christmas traffic started Saturday and continued today, another holiday for Germans.

West Berlin police kept no count, but they estimated that at least 500,000 persons would cross into the East by Jan. 2.

This would make it about two million West Berliners to cross since foreign ministers of the United States, Britain, the Soviet Union and France signed the Berlin agreement on June 3.

The Wall built by the East Germans in 1961 has been open to Western visitors since June. But for the last six Christmases, the East Germans refused to issue Wall passes to West Berliners.

In no other country is Christmas more of a family feast than in Germany and East and West Berliners rejoiced that they were together again over the holidays.

"This almost makes up for the years of separation," said Michael Ritter, who was visiting his daughter and her family in East Berlin. "The last Christmases were sad for me."

Ritter carried a wash-and-wear shirt as a present for his son-in-law and panty hose for his daughter. Both were welcome gifts in East Germany although it has the highest standard of living of any country in the Soviet bloc.

Chocolate, coffee, citrus fruits, canned fruit, raisins, fresh vegetables and some textiles also are expensive or scarce. But there was a plentiful supply of turkey, geese, fowl, milk, eggs, butter, bread and other staples.

Israeli Patrol Is Fired Upon

TEL AVIV (UPI) —An Israeli patrol on duty along the frontier with Syria came under fire today, a military spokesman said, but suffered no losses in the first incident reported in the region in 11 days.

An announcement said a number of "improvised shells" —remote controlled bazookas— were fired at the patrol at 7 a.m. near Nahal Golan, two miles from the frontier.

Military sources said the ambush apparently was set by Arab guerrillas who had infiltrated the Israeli-occupied Golan Heights from Syria.

Folsom Inmate Stabbing Victim

FOLSOM (UPI) — Three days after he was transferred to Folsom Prison, Ira LeRoy Stewart was found slain on the floor of a cellblock.

Officials said that Stewart, 28, transferred here on a jail escape conviction in Lassen County, was stabbed once in the back Saturday as inmates were being moved from the yard into the building.

Officials said they had recovered the weapon, but had no suspect in the slaying.

Russia To Cut Factory Taxes

MOSCOW (UPI) — The government announced a series of tax cuts for factory and office today and said they were intended to increase the wellbeing of all Russians.

The news agency Tass said the presidium of the Supreme Soviet issued a decree exempting office and factory earnings of up to $85 monthly from taxation and reducing by an average of about one-third earnings up o $109.80.

The report did not say how many persons were covered by the decree.

PRESCHOOL CHILDREN were taught about ecology, nature and the Earth in late June when they participated in "Created the Earth" with movement, sound and fantasy on the Ross School lawn. Balance of nature and preservation of the Earth were infused into small children's curriculum in many parts of conservation-minded Marin, and largely taught by women.

LT. BILLIE Martin was officer in charge of the motor fleet at Hamilton Air Force Base, an example of new duties for women in the Air Force.

A Year Women Became More Involved In All Walks Of Life

Marin Women

By BARBARA HOSMER

You might call it a higher profile, but women were more involved and more visible in 1972, perhaps than ever before.

Political campaigns, consumer advocacy, child care programs and charitable projects helped make 1972 a year of heavy activity for women.

It was the year that the hard work and activism of women's equality groups began to pay off — at least a little, as some women got better jobs, into law schools and a few elevated to corporate boards as various kinds of affirmative action began to take at least a token hold.

Women became more prominent in places where few had been before — at the politial caucuses and conventions, as candidates, on newscasts, on panels and at lower and middle management rank. One even was promoted to admiral, one to Cabinet rank, but no woman made it to the Supreme Court despite Administration boasts that President Nixon has appointed more women to prominent posts than any other president.

Federal affirmative action requirements did move an almost infinitesimal number of women up — in banking, industry and in professional schools as sex discrimination barriers grudgingly began to fade.

IT WAS a year of higher and higher food prices and great interest in "natural" foods and low cost recipes. Unit pricing and open dating in some supermarkets aided the careful shopper but did nothing to lower prices.

Consumer groups continued to bulldog federal agencies, manufacturers and retailers, while products such as hexachlorophine were branded bad-for-you. After much cloth-burning at public hearings, a flammability law for children's sleepwear became a reality. The President's specialist on consumerism, Virginia Knauer, came dressed in red, white and blue with a "pachyderm power" sticker on her purse to headline a Republican sponsored consumer forum at Marin Veterans Memorial Building which was sparsely attended and left some of the audience muttering "politics" and "nothing happened."

As the year ends, a consumer resource center is being set up by home economists at Tam High School to serve the Southern Marin area.

The China thing brought Pat Nixon's traveling pandas to America and a flurry of Oriental styles to the fore, but nothing to rival the '72 deja vu of Wedgies and the shirtdress for women. It was a year when fur coats and high heels were accepted by super fashion conscious men.

THE DIVORCED and single parent came in for much attention locally, with workshops and classes offered in unprecedented numbers, attracting mainly women. A dissolution office opened in San Rafael to lower fees for uncontested marriage dissolutions.

More women entered the workforce and, as usual, unemployment rates for women remained higher than for men, a continuing national trend.

It was a political year for many more women than usual, with women running for the board of supervisors, city council seats, and, in the case of Rep. Shirley Chisholm, for the Presidency.

Women made a net gain of two seats in Congress, but longtime Sen. Margaret Chase Smith of Maine went down to defeat leaving the Senate 100 per cent male.

California lost one of its three women in the Assembly when Yvonne Braithwaite Burke was elected to Congress and none of the women candidates won in November.

Women mayors presided over city councils in Sausalito, Mill Valley, Cotati and Petaluma. For the first time, women also serve as mayors of Paris, France, and Luxembourg, and Jeanne Martin Cisse of Guinea presides over the U.N. Security Council.

Marin women were active as delegates in greater numbers than ever before as Democratic party rules decreed that half the delegations be female and Republican guidelines urged tha women be represented in larger number than before.

NAMES WERE Marin news for '72: Princess Christina of Sweden paid a visit in October, Mrs. Clark Clifford was a guest of the Merritt Ruddocks in Belvedere; opera stars Beverly Sills and Mary Costa were visitors; Arlene Dahl arrived to help open the big Sears store in Northgate, and Mrs. Hap Arnold came from her Sonoma home to be guest of honor at the Hamilton luncheon marking the 25th anniversary of the Air Force.

Rita Abrams released a new record, "Miss Abrams and the Strawberry Point Children," with her hit "Mill Valley" on it.

Diarist Anais Nin talked to packed houses at the Redwood gym and the College of Marin, attracting an adoring younger generation.

High contrast marked some Marin weddings this year. Daria Halprin and Dennis Hopper were married at the Halprin home and danced the hora on the deck with a handful of other film luminaries such as Candace Bergen taking part. Nebraska Republican Sen. Carl T. Curtis wed Elizabeth Baker, who had assisted Dr. Shumway with early heart transplants, with Sen. Roman Hruska on hand for the nuptials at Christ Episcopal Church.

Many couples chose outdoor sites and hilltop settings to recite their marriage vows, and one couple chose horseback and another a helicopter over the bay.

Alana McFarlane climbed a San Rafael telephone pole next to the I-J to make a Ma Bell commercial with Carol Lawrence and for a national magazine ad. Alana was one of 16 women installer-repair persons for the phone company, the largest private employer of women.

1972 WAS also a year when the various segments of the Feminist cause in Marin met together — in March and again in December — to discuss needs and activities in Marin. Out of the spring meeting came the women's center committee, the monthly Marin Women's Newsletter, and a women's switchboard arrangement.

Redwood High's Women on the Move group forwarded its plans for a child care center to be located on the campus, and the YWCA moved to larger quarters to expand its program and focus directly on women's needs.

NOW's Marin Chapter marched and leafletted through Civic Center in its continuing push for equality in the County's employment practices and action on the affirmative action plan originated by its FEPC complaint. It also participated in formation of California NOW to coordinate statewide equality actions and successfully lobby ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment.

Women's studies courses, though few in number, were taught at the local colleges, and women's discussion groups continued popular.

WHILE MANY women teachers were out of work, schools used volunteers — largely women — in greater numbers. Other volunteers continued to raise money through a continual throng of money-making benefits, lunches, bazaars, fairs, style shows and thrift shops. The Marin Volunteer Bureau put on a summer day volunteer workshop while Marin NOW set up a task force to study the differences of women volunteering to maintain "women's place" from volunteering to change "women's place."

In the meantime the Volunteer Council of the Audubon Canyon Ranch separated from Junior League sponsorship, as league projects must after a few years, and the League funded the training of ecology volunteers in Marin.

In Petaluma a Creative Living Center opened at a church, similar to the Marin program.

In child care, the long-awaited College of Marin child care center opened — but at Greenbrae School until the old chem aud on the campus could be converted. The Pilgrim Park center will open the first of January, Redwood's center sought funding and there were hopes of the Fairfax-San Anselmo center becoming a reality next year. The county separated a County Child Care Planning and Advisory Committee from its Family and Children's Advisory Committee at federal request and it began to study child care needs in Marin.

A handful of women became FBI agents and Navy crew aboard a hospital ship, and a few Marin women were ordained ministers. The Rev. Jan Willette performed marriages at the First Presbyterian Church in San Anselmo, and Bettye Doty became a minister of the Unitarian Fellowship.

WOMEN PLAYED organizing roles in the mammoth Greek Festival at the Civic Center and the City of Belvedere's 75th anniversary, for which Mrs. Wallace Scott was the working chairman.

Ida Scott was also among charter members of the Northgate Group honored at the summer luncheon series at the Marin Art and Garden Center on its 25th anniversary. Among the founders who sat together to exchange stories about the old days when the women themselves cooked the lunches for the series were Mmes. Wallace Scott, Frank Baumgarten, William F. Booth, Clifford J. Flack, Arthur W. Feidler, Carlos Freitas, Harold N. Hansen, Fred Herrington, Matthew N. Hosmer, Carl Priest, Kent O. Seymour, Wallace Scott, Edward Shelton, Russell Smith and Miss Elsa Korbel.

Dr. Hulda Thelander was given national recognition by the Camp Fire Girls for her work with children. The Girl Scouts came several hundred strong to Marin Veterans Memorial Building to celebrate 60 years of Scouting and the first teenagers were elected to the Scout Bay Council board.

Junior Troop 2729 of Novato made a dollhouse and furnished it in Early American for permanent display at the Oakland Museum.

Senior Scout Troop 2130 of San Rafael made their own special camp for 125 Marin boys and girls bigger and better in the spring. The 15 scouts gathered donations of funds, food and materials for the use of the campers who could not otherwise have a camping experience. A whole bevy of activities were taught in the five day camp.

SOME 85 Rainbow Districts in California made a dream of Linda Elkin of Novato, grand worthy advisor, come true by raising $18,000 for Guide Dogs for the Blind. She had hoped her project would raise $6,000 and had a miniature dog house made to carry on her visits to Rainbow Girls assemblies throughout the state during the year. Through her inspiration, girls throughout the state washed cars, sold Halloween insurance and the like to raise three times the goal. Then 250 of the girls came to San Rafael to see Linda present the check to Guide Dogs.

Economics cancelled the Candlelight Ball of the Marin Social Service Auxiliary last year, but this year nostalgia brought it back. The 32-year-old May tradition saw the couples return for the candlelit dance at the Meadow Club.

Marinites go to Hawaii so often that it's hardly news, but the whole class of autistic children at Henry C. Hall School in Larkspur made an unprecedented trip this year after concerted fund-raising by the parents group.

OTHER CHILDREN had the novel experience of "sitting in" ith the musicians of the Marin Youth Orchestra at the special children's concert sponsored by the Marin Symphony Association.

1972 also was the year that famed explorer and longtime Marinite Louise A. Boyd died; that the Class of '22 was honored at a golden anniversary at Dominican College; that the Marin Branch of the American Association of University Women and the Business and Professional Women's Club both marked their ruby years. Dominican College also inaugurated a popular paralegal course.

Advocates for Women was formed to assist and advance women's job and educational opportunities with Marinites Del Goetz and Rebecca Adams Mills and Susan Forney on the staff.

The Barry Mineahs took 21 youngsters camping through Russia. Many residents wrote books, but Diane Beeston's was an unusual view of Bay yachting with her photographs of familiar craft in various stages of troubles on bay waters.

Lynn Strong was the first women on horse patrol for the National Park Service at Point Reyes Seashore and one of the few in the nation. Of course she had to design her own uniform to be in keeping with the men's.

THE ROBERT Redford film "The Candidate" opened with memories for the many Marinites who appeared in it and the scenes of local places. For the film opening, Redford's mother, who lives in Marin, wanted no publicity, but its director, Michael Ritchie of Mill Valley, received a fair share.

Sally Stanford, who tried and tried again, was finally elected to the Sausalito City Council and in a speech to the Organization singles club here remarked, "If I ran my business

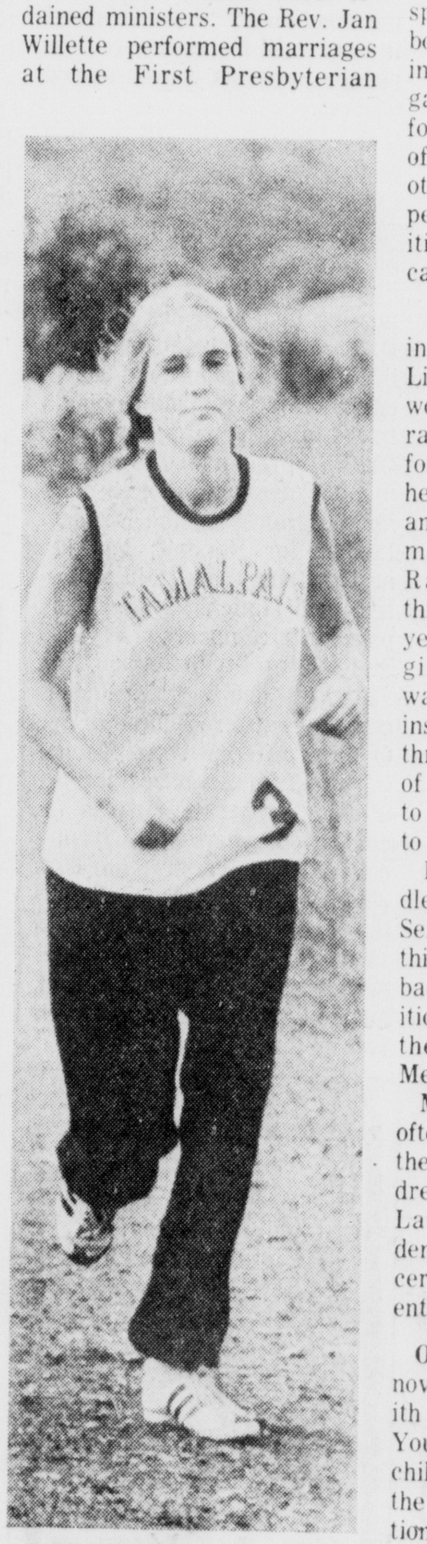
INSTALLER-REPAIR "man" Alana McFarlane of San Rafael starred in a national television commercial and magazine ad with actress Carol Lawrence to illustrate the slight breakthrough women made in here-to-fore men-only job categories. Pacific Telephone, the largest private employer of women, hired a total of 16 women for that job.



GIRLS FROM several Marin high schools competed in cross country track, a trend toward more vigorous physical sports.

SITTING IN at the children's sit-in concert was too much for one youngster as the Marin Youth Orchestra played and the Marin Symphony Association sponsored.

GENERATION RAP

by Helen and Sue Bottel

One Career Woman Believes Marriage Will Always Be 'In'

DEAR RAP:

I am 24, divorced, and not about to get trapped by marriage again! Like a growing number of other girls and young women, I'm solidly for single bliss. I like my career, my apartment, my freedom to move on whenever I please.

Falling in love? That's not out, but why limit myself to a lifetime (or a costly divorce) with a man I'll surely outgrow in a few years, if he doesn't outgrow me first?

Children aren't on my list of priorities, and children are the only real reason for marriage. They also snap the trap door tight shut, for they keep you in a union you'd rather break.

If anyone can tell me one good reason for getting married, I might listen. So far my married friends are unconvincing. The wives complain, the husbands try to date me on the side. If my current boyfriend and I hacked away at each other in public (probably in private too) as much as do these wedded couples, we'd be long parted.

Yet my boyfriend wants us to be "legal." He says I'm unnatural, not craving wifehood. I love him — for now — but I don't intend to spoil it by tying us both up in promises we'd regret.

At least four of my single women friends are also being pushed against their will by men who want to get married. Don't these fellows know when they're well off?

Do other career girls agree with me that marriage is going out of style? — NOT A CLOD

DEAR N.A.C.

This career women doesn't agree with you — and I say it happily after 30-odd years of marriage. In a world that becomes increasingly impersonal, impermanent —and lonely — I think we need marriage more than ever, but not the restrictive trap you picture.

However, others believe differently, and they're entitled. Wedded life is not everyone's dish of tea, as a growing number of "permanently single by choice" people will tell you.

And here's one of those modern switches: Where women once asked, "How can I get him to propose?" now they're writing, "I love him, but he wants marriage and I don't!"

I predict you'll get many comments on your letter, pro and con. — HELEN

DEAR NOT:

This career girl is pro-marriage too. I don't think it will ever go out of style, but it may change form a lot in the next few years. Here's my prediction: the divorce rate may drop, what with more people taking the "try before you buy" route and putting off the ceremony until they're sure of the whole package.

Anyway, isn't it great that people now have choices? Singles aren't considered misfits these days. Husband-hunting isn't a girl's biggest preoccupation (but it's still in the top three). And when is the last time you heard someone under 30 called an old maid? — SUE

(NOTE FROM HELEN: Make that "40" at least, or maybe 70, and then only if she acts the part. The term "old maid" is passe — except as used by lovelorn 17-year-olds. See below.)

RAP:

I think there's a gap in your "IGAP" ("I'm Guessing Again Perception") with respect to the "Doomed Old Maid" (the 17-year-old whose parents refused to let her run off and marry her boyfriend who then married another girl while DOM was out of town a few days). You rightly implied she was "'doomed' lucky," but the situation reeks of sub-plot. Was the guy after DOM to marry him because he had this second girl pregnant, and he preferred to inflict himself for life on DOM rather than the PG who was pressuring him? So maybe he got trapped with the proverbial shotgun.

Had she run off as she bitterly regretted not doing, she might have found herself with 1. a husband who was already an experienced philanderer, and 2. the possible joint responsibility for making child-support payments to another woman for the next 18 years. Whooopeee — that would be a hurt to live with! — N.M.

(Got a problem? Or a subject for discussion, two-generation style? Direct your questions to either Sue or Helen Bottel — or both, in care of the Independent-Journal, if you want a combination mother-daughter answer.)

Dias, former Palo Alto mayor, was the first woman appointed to direct any of the eight Civil Defense Regions. From her Santa Rosa office she has charge of six states, Guam and Samoa. S/Sgt. Carolyn Tonnemacher became the first woman protocol officer at Hamilton.

Mill Valley's beloved Mrs. T. made films of her famed nature excursions with children for TV films, with Audubon aid. Tiburon women formed FISH to give emergency aid and referral to the Tiburon area. Auxiliaries were formed for the Volunteer Bureau and the Pobble Shop, which marked its first anniversary as an outlet for crafts made by the handicapped.

Thrift shops for volunteer groups did a thriving business for local causes, with new ones opened by the Marin General Hospital Volunteers, Marin Child Development Center and the Katharine Branson School. Branson, too, played host to Barbara McClure White of Washington, D.C., only woman to career ministerial rank for the U.S. Information Agency.

AS THE old year concludes, one last salute to two enduring Marin women: Mrs. Pearl Ladd Arnold of Sausalito, who celebrated her 90th birthday by playing Beethoven at a piano recital for some 40 friends, and Mrs. Bertha L. Hatch of Mill Valley, who on her 100th birthday stood up at a reception and welcomed her 100 guests with a speech.

Male Nursing On Increase, Survey Says

I-J Special Report

NEW YORK — In the years ahead the term "man in white" may take on a new meaning because the number of men registering for nursing schools is increasing.

Opportunities for male nurses are exceptional, according to the National League for Nursing. Male nurses are in demand for emergency areas of hospitals, in psychiatric units helping emotionally ill patients and in the armed forces, where they usually serve as commissioned officers.

Male nurses are also needed in Veterans Administration hospitals because they can develop special rapport with patients. A nursing careers can lean to another positions within the nursing field as it has for John D. Thompson, professor of public health nursing and nurse educators at the Yale University School of Nursing; Gerald J. Griffin, director of the department of associate degree nursing programs for the National League for Nursing; and Ernest O. Denny, assistant professor and clinical specialist in psychiatric nursing at Ball State University in Muncie, Ind.

A man can prepare to become a registered nurse in one of three different types of nursing programs, a baccalaureate nursing program, which includes four years of study in a college or university; an associate degree program, requiring two years of study at a junior or community college; and through a diploma school, hospital centered training for two or three years.

No Short Cuts To Reducing

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — There are no short cut methods to getting thin, according to the California Medical Association. The only way to successful weight reduction is to learn new eating habits. If you eat fewer calories and burn more calories by exercise, you end up with less excess fat and more and better muscle tissue.

The association issues a warning against products and weight loss methods claiming to take off unwanted pounds of inches in a matter of days or sometimes even minutes.

Plastic or vinyl pants, sweatsuits and belts all have one thing in common, they cause sweating. The loss of water will decrease weight but as soon as the suit is removed and fluid intake resumed, the weight returns. Plastic, applied to the body as with a belt, causes perspiration and temporarily compresses the fatty tissue. The effect is not lasting.

THE WRAPPING method is currently in vogue for those who want to have unwanted inches decreased in a salon atmosphere. It consists of having the body tightly wrapped, mummy fashion, in strips of warm, damp cloth. The result is temporary, perhaps lasting 24 hours.

There are several popular diets built around the increased intake of water. In essence it is a trick to decrease the amount of food intake. The appetite decreases naturally from the full feeling from drinking water. The water-type diet regimen often includes eating only high protein food, avoiding all carbohydrates. Under these circumstances the body gets some of its caloric requirement from the protein in the diet but must get the rest of the calories it needs from its fat stores. Hence the body actually uses a high fat as ell as a high protein mixture. When prolonged, this can lead to acidosis, a harmful condition in which organic acids form within the body making the person feel light headed and not sharp mentally.

A drinking man's diet counts carbohydrates instead of calories. The great pitfall to allowing alcohol on a diet is that alcohol releases the inhibitions so that the will to diet is lost.

Most diet pills contain amphetamines which are central nervous system stimulators causing nervousness, irritability, clouded judgment, imparied mental and physical performance. They are only temporary measures since after a few weeks they no longer decrease the appetite. This type of medication is often habit forming causing severe depression after withdrawal.

Diuretics, which cause water loss from frequent urination, are not intended for successful weight reduction. Any weight loss due to gettingrid of excess fluid is regained when fluid is taken again. They deplete the body of sodium and potassium, both of which are vital for life support.

Doctors maintain that the only sure and safe method for losing weight is a change in eating habits and a reduction of food intake. A diet should be a normal mixture of food but reduced in quantity.

Double Your Pleasure With Rocking Chair Built For Two

By CAROLYN S. MURRAY
Distributed by General Features Corp.

Here's a fun idea! A Cape Cod rocking chair built for two. There's something especially appealing about the idea of rocking in unison — but I think the families with children will get the most mileage out of this movable pastime.

Rocking chairs are pretty much ignored by designers and manufacturers of contemporary furniture. Yet the principle behind the rocker is so basic it seems strange that more fresh solutions aren't resolved.

Many of us have had to turn to rocking chairs copied from the work of an Austrian family by the name of Thonet. In 1830 Michael Thonet invested a system for softening and shaping wood into curving lines. And it was in 1849 that the now famous Thonet bentwood chairs began to be manufactured on an inexpensive mass-produced basis.

Out of this family workshop came the classic rocking chairs by Thonet in 1860 and original versions of these rockers are now part of the permanent collection of the Museum of Modern Art in New York and in other decorative art collections throughout the world.

You've seen many reproductions. Some are examples of design piracy; others are being manufactured under the original family label, but for 20th Century consumers.

Genuine Thonet pieces usually have the name burned inside the rim of the chair seat or printed on a label, according to a reference book called "Decorating Defined" by Jose Wilson and Arthur Leaman, AID.

It's fun and educational to start a hunt through books of design information. Rocking chairs and the origin of the words got me started on a search for the original use of the word "rock" in connection with motion.

I didn't get very far, but decided on my own that rocking as a description of motion probably started with falling rocks or with the use of a rock, in a back and forth motion, to cut or sever something.

And the rocking horse or rocking chair probably started with a rock that was used as a seat — and it moved — consequently it rocked! Who knows?

I do know the Kroehler rocking love seat shown today is a far cry from the earliest crude rocking cradles and chairs of the home craftsman. It features a lot more comfort with its high, sleepy-hollow back, its button-tufted pillow cushions and gently curving arms. Just a gentle push of the foot and the team of rocking enthusiasts is off to pleasure land!

Auto Union Eyes Boredom Battle

DETROIT (UPI) —A United Auto Workers vice president has a plan for cutting down assembly line boredom which he says could become a big bargaining issue when contract talks open up with Ford Motor Co. in July.

Ken Bannon, director of the UAW's Ford department, says the plan will "take more time out of the work year without crimping production."

It would give each hourly employe more paid time off the job by banking credit hours on a percentage of hours he works in a year. A worker could take off a week when he has banked 40 hours.

In effect, the plan would cut the work week to 38 hours over a year's time. It is the first indication the UAW has dropped intentions to negotiate for a four-day work week during contract talks.

It would, Bannon concedes, cost the industry money.

But he said it might also, in the end, prove less costly to the auto industry by reducing absenteeism, and improving quality by cutting down tedium. It would also generate new jobs — possibly 100 new jobs in each assembly plant if negotiators agree on a maximum banking of 100 hours per year.

Bannon proposed in the plan the belief that product quality would improve with more frequent breaks, allowing employes to return to their jobs refreshed.

But the industry may shun the plan as a costly one, with no immediate proof it will reduce absenteeism and improve quality.

Sidney McKenna, Ford industrial relations staff director, sees little evidence that a cut in working time would increase worker satisfaction.

Richard C. Gerstenberg, General Motors Corp. board chairman, recently admonished any proposal to shorten the work week in any fashion. He said any such plan would involve extra cost which would inevitably be made up in higher automobile costs.

Berlin Wall Opened For Christmas Visits

BERLIN (UPI) — The old lady BERLIN (UPI) —The old lady traveled by subway to the Friedrich Strasse station, moved swiftly through Communist border controls and then walked out into East Berlin.

"Here we are," a young woman cried. "Here we are."

The old lady's eyes glistened with tears as she kissed a grandchild, cuddling her in one arm while holding a toy elephant in the other.

It was no isolated reunion.

It was a scene repeated in one way or another hundreds of thousands of times in East Berlin and other East German cities and towns as West Berliners spent their first Christmas since 1965 with relatives living in the East.

Parents embraced their children. Brothers greeted sisters.

Under the provisions of a Big Four agreement to ease tension between the East and West, visitors from West Berlin poured into the East by automobile, train, subway, even on foot.

The Christmas traffic started Saturday and continued today, another holiday for Germans.

West Berlin police kept no count, but they estimated that at least 500,000 persons would cross into the East by Jan. 2.

This would make it about two million West Berliners to cross since foreign ministers of the United States, Britain, the Soviet Union and France signed the Berlin agreement on June 3.

The Wall built by the East Germans in 1961 has been open to Western visitors since June. But for the last six Christmases, the East Germans refused to issue Wall passes to West Berliners.

In no other country is Christmas more of a family feast than in Germany and East and West Berliners rejoiced that they were together again over the holidays.

"This almost makes up for the years of separation," said Michael Ritter, who was visiting his daughter and her family in East Berlin. "The last Christmases were sad for me."

Ritter carried a wash-and-wear shirt as a present for his son-in-law and panty hose for his daughter. Both were welcome gifts in East Germany although it has the highest standard of living of any country in the Soviet bloc.

Chocolate, coffee, citrus fruits, canned fruit, raisins, fresh vegetables and some textiles also are expensive or scarce. But there was a plentiful supply of turkey, geese, fowl, milk, eggs, butter, bread and other staples.

Israeli Patrol Is Fired Upon

TEL AVIV (UPI) —An Israeli patrol on duty along the frontier with Syria came under fire today, a military spokesman said, but suffered no losses in the first incident reported in the region in 11 days.

An announcement said a number of "improvised shells" —remote controlled bazookas— were fired at the patrol at 7 a.m. near Nahal Golan, two miles from the frontier.

Military sources said the ambush apparently was set by Arab guerrillas who had infiltrated the Israeli-occupied Golan Heights from Syria.

Folsom Inmate Stabbing Victim

FOLSOM (UPI) — Three days after he was transferred to Folsom Prison, Ira LeRoy Stewart was found slain on the floor of a cellblock.

Officials said that Stewart, 28, transferred here on a jail escape conviction in Lassen County, was stabbed once in the back Saturday as inmates were being moved from the yard into the building.

Officials said they had recovered the weapon, but had no suspect in the slaying.

Russia To Cut Factory Taxes

MOSCOW (UPI) — The government announced a series of tax cuts for factory and office today and said they were intended to increase the wellbeing of all Russians.

The news agency Tass said the presidium of the Supreme Soviet issued a decree exempting office and factory earnings of up to $85 monthly from taxation and reducing by an average of about one-third earnings up o $109.80.

The report did not say how many persons were covered by the decree.

A CHRISTMAS DAY PROTEST

With the National Christmas Tree for a background, some 200 anti-Vietnam protesters staged a march yesterday. It was billed as an interfaith service. A letter was impaled on an iron fence post at the White House, urging Nixon to honor his "pledge" to end the war.

Year Of Challenge Faces Market

BRUSSELS (UPI) —As British Prime Minister Edward Heath entered Brussels' Egmont Palace last January to sign Britain's entry into the European Common Market, a 31-year-old woman with a personal grudge against his government hit him with a bottle of ink.

In a sense, this note of tarnished triumph lasted throughout the year and appeared likely to extend well into 1973.

On Jan. 1, the treaty which Heath signed last January comes into effect and Britain—along with Denmark and Ireland—will join the Common Market, raising a six-nation community to a nine-nation power. Yet Norwegian voters took some shine off this event by voting, in a referendum, to reject Norway's treaty of entry.

In October, the leaders of the nine nations gathered at the summit in Paris, but agreed on little new except to form a "European Union" by 1980—a "union" that was left deliberately vague and possibly meaningless.

The expansion from six to nine nations made the Common Market, even more than before, the world's leading trading entity, with fully 40 per cent of world trade. But this show of muscle has brought the market increasingly into conflict with the United States—to the extent that transatlantic relations are expected to be Europe's top priority in 1973.

Just as serious, this power left most Europeans manifestly bored. Sicco L. Mansholt, the outspoken Dutchman who was Common Market president for the last eight months of 1972, accused the bloc of ignoring "real problems" and, by so doing, alienating the 253 million persons within its borders. Many critics focused on Europe's high rate of inflation and the market's failure to combat it.

The six original members of the Common Market are France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg. With the arrival of Britain, Denmark and Ireland, the market will embrace every major economy in Western Europe, will rank second only to America in gross national product and through its trade, will have perhaps an unmatched impact on the world.

This economic power is likely to increase. A key reason is that, in contrast to the still unformed dream of political union, the drive toward economic union is well advanced.

In March, 1972, the Common Market nations, for the second time, set off on the road toward "economic and monetary union" by 1981 by narrowing the bands within which the exchange rates of their currencies may fluctuate. What this means is that, day in and day out, the values of these currencies are more closely tied to each other than they used to be.

Eventually, the plan is to tie them so tightly that they cannot fluctuate at all. From that position of unity, it will be a small step to a single European currency.

Once before, in 1971, the Common Market took this decision. It came unstuck shortly after when West Germany broke bloc discipline by revaluing its mark. The second try, in March, tottered when Britain floated its pound and the U.S. dollar came under new pressures. But the market nations, in a dramatic meeting in Luxembourg, stood firm and the experiment survived.

Braced by this success, the market spread its wings—and collided with the Americans.

Last July 22, the Market signed free trade agreements with five members of the European Free Trade Association (EFTA), to protect these nations' trade when the market expanded. Finland is expected to sign a similar agreement soon and Norway, since its rejection of membership, also wants one.

This means that, by 1977, these seven nations and the nine market members will form a 16-nation free trade area. The goods of these 16 nations will circulate without tariffs within this area, but goods from the outside will face tariffs of varying heights.

The United States, smelling competition, made its displeasure known but took no action. But when the market tried to extend this free-trade concept to 10 nations around the Mediterranean Sea, Washington erupted.

In a series of verbal votes, Washington said that there is a big difference between EFTA nations like Sweden and Mediterranean nations like Syria, that the free trade area would undercut U.S. markets, and that Europe, in the guise of helping developing countries, was building an empire.

The market members retreated.

PRESCHOOL CHILDREN were taught about ecology, nature and the Earth in late June when they participated in "Created the Earth" with movement, sound and fantasy on the Ross School lawn. Balance of nature and preservation of the Earth were infused into small children's curriculum in many parts of conservation-minded Marin, and largely taught by women.

LT. BILLIE Martin was officer in charge of the motor fleet at Hamilton Air Force Base, an example of new duties for women in the Air Force.

A Year Women Became More Involved In All Walks Of Life

By BARBARA HOSMER

You might call it a higher profile, but women were more involved and more visible in 1972, perhaps than ever before.

Political campaigns, consumer advocacy, child care programs and charitable projects helped make 1972 a year of heavy activity for women.

It was the year that the hard work and activism of women's equality groups began to pay off — at least a little, as some women got better jobs, into law schools and a few elevated to corporate boards as various kinds of affirmative action began to take at least a token hold.

Women became more prominent in places where few had been before — at the politial caucuses and conventions, as candidates, on newscasts, on panels and at lower and middle management rank. One even was promoted to admiral, one to Cabinet rank, but no woman made it to the Supreme Court despite Administration boasts that President Nixon has appointed more women to prominent posts than any other president.

Federal affirmative action requirements did move an almost infinitesimal number of women up — in banking, industry and in professional schools as sex discrimination barriers grudgingly began to fade.

IT WAS a year of higher and higher food prices and great interest in "natural" foods and low cost recipes. Unit pricing and open dating in some supermarkets aided the careful shopper but did nothing to lower prices.

Consumer groups continued to bulldog federal agencies, manufacturers and retailers, while products such as hexachlorophine were branded bad-for-you. After much cloth-burning at public hearings, a flammability law for children's sleepwear became a reality. The President's specialist on consumerism, Virginia Knauer, came dressed in red, white and blue with a "pachyderm power" sticker on her purse to headline a Republican sponsored consumer forum at Marin Veterans Memorial Building which was sparsely attended and left some of the audience muttering "politics" and "nothing happened."

As the year ends, a consumer resource center is being set up by home economists at Tam High School to serve the Southern Marin area.

The China thing brought Pat Nixon's traveling pandas to America and a flurry of Oriental styles to the fore, but nothing to rival the '72 deja vu of Wedgies and the shirtdress for women. It was a year when fur coats and high heels were accepted by super fashion conscious men.

INSTALLER-REPAIR "man" Alana McFarlane of San Rafael starred in a national television commercial and magazine ad with actress Carol Lawrence to illustrate the slight breakthrough women made in here-to-fore men-only job categories. Pacific Telephone, the largest private employer of women, hired a total of 16 women for that job.

THE DIVORCED and single parent came in for much attention locally, with workshops and classes offered in unprecedented numbers, attracting mainly women. A dissolution office opened in San Rafael to lower fees for uncontested marriage dissolutions.

More women entered the workforce and, as usual, unemployment rates for women remained higher than for men, a continuing national trend.

It was a political year for many more women than usual, with women running for the board of supervisors, city council seats, and, in the case of Rep. Shirley Chisholm, for the Presidency.

Women made a net gain of two seats in Congress, but longtime Sen. Margaret Chase Smith of Maine went down to defeat leaving the Senate 100 per cent male.

California lost one of its three women in the Assembly when Yvonne Braithwaite Burke was elected to Congress and none of the women candidates won in November.

Women mayors presided over city councils in Sausalito, Mill Valley, Cotati and Petaluma. For the first time, women also serve as mayors of Paris, France, and Luxembourg, and Jeanne Martin Cisse of Guinea presides over the U.N. Security Council.

Marin women were active as delegates in greater numbers than ever before as Democratic party rules decreed that half the delegations be female and Republican guidelines urged tha women be represented in larger number than before.

NAMES WERE Marin news for '72: Princess Christina of Sweden paid a visit in October, Mrs. Clark Clifford was a guest of the Merritt Ruddocks in Belvedere; opera stars Beverly Sills and Mary Costa were visitors; Arlene Dahl arrived to help open the big Sears store in Northgate, and Mrs. Hap Arnold came from her Sonoma home to be guest of honor at the Hamilton luncheon marking the 25th anniversary of the Air Force.

Rita Abrams released a new record, "Miss Abrams and the Strawberry Point Children," with her hit "Mill Valley" on it.

Diarist Anais Nin talked to packed houses at the Redwood gym and the College of Marin, attracting an adoring younger generation.

High contrast marked some Marin weddings this year. Daria Halprin and Dennis Hopper were married at the Halprin home and danced the hora on the deck with a handful of other film luminaries such as Candace Bergen taking part. Nebraska Republican Sen. Carl T. Curtis wed Elizabeth Baker, who had assisted Dr. Shumway with early heart transplants, with Sen. Roman Hruska on hand for the nuptials at Christ Episcopal Church.

Many couples chose outdoor sites and hilltop settings to recite their marriage vows, and one couple chose horseback and another a helicopter over the bay.

Alana McFarlane climbed a San Rafael telephone pole next to the I-J to make a Ma Bell commercial with Carol Lawrence and for a national magazine ad. Alana was one of 16 women installer-repair persons for the phone company, the largest private employer of women.

1972 WAS also a year when the various segments of the Feminist cause in Marin met together — in March and again in December — to discuss needs and activities in Marin. Out of the spring meeting came the women's center committee, the monthly Marin Women's Newsletter, and a women's switchboard arrangement.

Redwood High's Women on the Move group forwarded its plans for a child care center to be located on the campus, and the YWCA moved to larger quarters to expand its program and focus directly on women's needs.

NOW's Marin Chapter marched and leafletted through Civic Center in its continuing push for equality in the County's employment practices and action on the affirmative action plan originated by its FEPC complaint. It also participated in formation of California NOW to coordinate statewide equality actions and successfully lobby ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment.

Women's studies courses, though few in number, were taught at the local colleges, and women's discussion groups continued popular.

WHILE MANY women teachers were out of work, schools used volunteers — largely women — in greater numbers. Other volunteers continued to raise money through a continual throng of money-making benefits, lunches, bazaars, fairs, style shows and thrift shops. The Marin Volunteer Bureau put on a summer day volunteer workshop while Marin NOW set up a task force to study the differences of women volunteering to maintain "women's place" from volunteering to change "women's place."

In the meantime the Volunteer Council of the Audubon Canyon Ranch separated from Junior League sponsorship, as league projects must after a few years, and the League funded the training of ecology volunteers in Marin.

In Petaluma a Creative Living Center opened at a church, similar to the Marin program.

In child care, the long-awaited College of Marin child care center opened — but at Greenbrae School until the old chem aud on the campus could be converted. The Pilgrim Park center will open the first of January, Redwood's center sought funding and there were hopes of the Fairfax-San Anselmo center becoming a reality next year. The county separated a County Child Care Planning and Advisory Committee from its Family and Children's Advisory Committee at federal request and it began to study child care needs in Marin.

A handful of women became FBI agents and Navy crew aboard a hospital ship, and a few Marin women were ordained ministers. The Rev. Jan Willette performed marriages at the First Presbyterian Church in San Anselmo, and Bettye Doty became a minister of the Unitarian Fellowship.

GIRLS FROM several Marin high schools competed in cross country track, a trend toward more vigorous physical sports.

WOMEN PLAYED organizing roles in the mammoth Greek Festival at the Civic Center and the City of Belvedere's 75th anniversary, for which Mrs. Wallace Scott was the working chairman.

Ida Scott was also among charter members of the Northgate Group honored at the summer luncheon series at the Marin Art and Garden Center on its 25th anniversary. Among the founders who sat together to exchange stories about the old days when the women themselves cooked the lunches for the series were Mmes. Wallace Scott, Frank Baumgarten, William F. Booth, Clifford J. Flack, Arthur W. Feidler, Carlos Freitas, Harold N. Hansen, Fred Herrington, Matthew N. Hosmer, Carl Priest, Kent O. Seymour, Wallace Scott, Edward Shelton, Russell Smith and Miss Elsa Korbel.

Dr. Hulda Thelander was given national recognition by the Camp Fire Girls for her work with children. The Girl Scouts came several hundred strong to Marin Veterans Memorial Building to celebrate 60 years of Scouting and the first teenagers were elected to the Scout Bay Council board.

Junior Troop 2729 of Novato made a dollhouse and furnished it in Early American for permanent display at the Oakland Museum.

Senior Scout Troop 2130 of San Rafael made their own special camp for 125 Marin boys and girls bigger and better in the spring. The 15 scouts gathered donations of funds, food and materials for the use of the campers who could not otherwise have a camping experience. A whole bevy of activities were taught in the five day camp.

SITTING IN at the children's sit-in concert was too much for one youngster as the Marin Youth Orchestra played and the Marin Symphony Association sponsored.

SOME 85 Rainbow Districts in California made a dream of Linda Elkin of Novato, grand worthy advisor, come true by raising $18,000 for Guide Dogs for the Blind. She had hoped her project would raise $6,000 and had a miniature dog house made to carry on her visits to Rainbow Girls assemblies throughout the state during the year. Through her inspiration, girls throughout the state washed cars, sold Halloween insurance and the like to raise three times the goal. Then 250 of the girls came to San Rafael to see Linda present the check to Guide Dogs.

Economics cancelled the Candlelight Ball of the Marin Social Service Auxiliary last year, but this year nostalgia brought it back. The 32-year-old May tradition saw the couples return for the candlelit dance at the Meadow Club.

Marinites go to Hawaii so often that it's hardly news, but the whole class of autistic children at Henry C. Hall School in Larkspur made an unprecedented trip this year after concerted fund-raising by the parents group.

OTHER CHILDREN had the novel experience of "sitting in" ith the musicians of the Marin Youth Orchestra at the special children's concert sponsored by the Marin Symphony Association.

1972 also was the year that famed explorer and longtime Marinite Louise A. Boyd died; that the Class of '22 was honored at a golden anniversary at Dominican College; that the Marin Branch of the American Association of University Women and the Business and Professional Women's Club both marked their ruby years. Dominican College also inaugurated a popular paralegal course.

Advocates for Women was formed to assist and advance women's job and educational opportunities with Marinites Del Goetz and Rebecca Adams Mills and Susan Forney on the staff.

The Barry Mineahs took 21 youngsters camping through Russia. Many residents wrote books, but Diane Beeston's was an unusual view of Bay yachting with her photographs of familiar craft in various stages of troubles on bay waters.

Lynn Strong was the first women on horse patrol for the National Park Service at Point Reyes Seashore and one of the few in the nation. Of course she had to design her own uniform to be in keeping with the men's.

THE ROBERT Redford film "The Candidate" opened with memories for the many Marinites who appeared in it and the scenes of local places. For the film opening, Redford's mother, who lives in Marin, wanted no publicity, but its director, Michael Ritchie of Mill Valley, received a fair share.

Sally Stanford, who tried and tried again, was finally elected to the Sausalito City Council and in a speech to the Organization singles club here remarked, "If I ran my business

GENERATION RAP

by Helen and Sue Bottel

One Career Woman Believes Marriage Will Always Be 'In'

DEAR RAP:

I am 24, divorced, and not about to get trapped by marriage again! Like a growing number of other girls and young women, I'm solidly for single bliss. I like my career, my apartment, my freedom to move on whenever I please.

Falling in love? That's not out, but why limit myself to a lifetime (or a costly divorce) with a man I'll surely outgrow in a few years, if he doesn't outgrow me first?

Children aren't on my list of priorities, and children are the only real reason for marriage. They also snap the trap door tight shut, for they keep you in a union you'd rather break.

If anyone can tell me one good reason for getting married, I might listen. So far my married friends are unconvincing. The wives complain, the husbands try to date me on the side. If my current boyfriend and I hacked away at each other in public (probably in private too) as much as do these wedded couples, we'd be long parted.

Yet my boyfriend wants us to be "legal." He says I'm unnatural, not craving wifehood. I love him — for now — but I don't intend to spoil it by tying us both up in promises we'd regret.

At least four of my single women friends are also being pushed against their will by men who want to get married. Don't these fellows know when they're well off?

Do other career girls agree with me that marriage is going out of style? — NOT A CLOD

DEAR N.A.C.

This career women doesn't agree with you — and I say it happily after 30-odd years of marriage. In a world that becomes increasingly impersonal, impermanent —and lonely — I think we need marriage more than ever, but not the restrictive trap you picture.

However, others believe differently, and they're entitled. Wedded life is not everyone's dish of tea, as a growing number of "permanently single by choice" people will tell you.

And here's one of those modern switches: Where women once asked, "How can I get him to propose?" now they're writing, "I love him, but he wants marriage and I don't!"

I predict you'll get many comments on your letter, pro and con. — HELEN

DEAR NOT:

This career girl is pro-marriage too. I don't think it will ever go out of style, but it may change form a lot in the next few years. Here's my prediction: the divorce rate may drop, what with more people taking the "try before you buy" route and putting off the ceremony until they're sure of the whole package.

Anyway, isn't it great that people now have choices? Singles aren't considered misfits these days. Husband-hunting isn't a girl's biggest preoccupation (but it's still in the top three). And when is the last time you heard someone under 30 called an old maid? — SUE

(NOTE FROM HELEN: Make that "40" at least, or maybe 70, and then only if she acts the part. The term "old maid" is passe — except as used by lovelorn 17-year-olds. See below.)

RAP:

I think there's a gap in your "IGAP" ("I'm Guessing Again Perception") with respect to the "Doomed Old Maid" (the 17-year-old whose parents refused to let her run off and marry her boyfriend who then married another girl while DOM was out of town a few days). You rightly implied she was "'doomed' lucky," but the situation reeks of sub-plot. Was the guy after DOM to marry him because he had this second girl pregnant, and he preferred to inflict himself for life on DOM rather than the PG who was pressuring him? So maybe he got trapped with the proverbial shotgun.

Had she run off as she bitterly regretted not doing, she might have found herself with 1. a husband who was already an experienced philanderer, and 2. the possible joint responsibility for making child-support payments to another woman for the next 18 years. Whooopeee — that would be a hurt to live with! — N.M.

(Got a problem? Or a subject for discussion, two-generation style? Direct your questions to either Sue or Helen Bottel — or both, in care of the Independent-Journal, if you want a combination mother-daughter answer.)

A SAUSALITO park was dedicated to the mmeory of the late Anita Koenig, Sausalito Woman's Club activist. San Rafael policewomen wore new pantsuit and blouse uniforms. Barbara J. Reed of Petaluma became the first female air reserve technician for Western Air Force Reserve at a Hamilton ceremony, and Frances K. Dias, former Palo Alto mayor, was the first woman appointed to direct any of the eight Civil Defense Regions. From her Santa Rosa office she has charge of six states, Guam and Samoa. S/Sgt. Carolyn Tonnemacher became the first woman protocol officer at Hamilton.

Mill Valley's beloved Mrs. T. made films of her famed nature excursions with children for TV films, with Audubon aid. Tiburon women formed FISH to give emergency aid and referral to the Tiburon area. Auxiliaries were formed for the Volunteer Bureau and the Pobble Shop, which marked its first anniversary as an outlet for crafts made by the handicapped.

Thrift shops for volunteer groups did a thriving business for local causes, with new ones opened by the Marin General Hospital Volunteers, Marin Child Development Center and the Katharine Branson School. Branson, too, played host to Barbara McClure White of Washington, D.C., only woman to career ministerial rank for the U.S. Information Agency.

AS THE old year concludes, one last salute to two enduring Marin women: Mrs. Pearl Ladd Arnold of Sausalito, who celebrated her 90th birthday by playing Beethoven at a piano recital for some 40 friends, and Mrs. Bertha L. Hatch of Mill Valley, who on her 100th birthday stood up at a reception and welcomed her 100 guests with a speech.

Male Nursing On Increase, Survey Says

I-J Special Report

NEW YORK — In the years ahead the term "man in white" may take on a new meaning because the number of men registering for nursing schools is increasing.

Opportunities for male nurses are exceptional, according to the National League for Nursing. Male nurses are in demand for emergency areas of hospitals, in psychiatric units helping emotionally ill patients and in the armed forces, where they usually serve as commissioned officers.

Male nurses are also needed in Veterans Administration hospitals because they can develop special rapport with patients. A nursing careers can lean to another positions within the nursing field as it has for John D. Thompson, professor of public health nursing and nurse educators at the Yale University School of Nursing; Gerald J. Griffin, director of the department of associate degree nursing programs for the National League for Nursing; and Ernest O. Denny, assistant professor and clinical specialist in psychiatric nursing at Ball State University in Muncie, Ind.

A man can prepare to become a registered nurse in one of three different types of nursing programs, a baccalaureate nursing program, which includes four years of study in a college or university; an associate degree program, requiring two years of study at a junior or community college; and through a diploma school, hospital centered training for two or three years.

No Short Cuts To Reducing

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — There are no short cut methods to getting thin, according to the California Medical Association. The only way to successful weight reduction is to learn new eating habits. If you eat fewer calories and burn more calories by exercise, you end up with less excess fat and more and better muscle tissue.

The association issues a warning against products and weight loss methods claiming to take off unwanted pounds of inches in a matter of days or sometimes even minutes.

Plastic or vinyl pants, sweatsuits and belts all have one thing in common, they cause sweating. The loss of water will decrease weight but as soon as the suit is removed and fluid intake resumed, the weight returns. Plastic, applied to the body as with a belt, causes perspiration and temporarily compresses the fatty tissue. The effect is not lasting.

THE WRAPPING method is currently in vogue for those who want to have unwanted inches decreased in a salon atmosphere. It consists of having the body tightly wrapped, mummy fashion, in strips of warm, damp cloth. The result is temporary, perhaps lasting 24 hours.

There are several popular diets built around the increased intake of water. In essence it is a trick to decrease the amount of food intake. The appetite decreases naturally from the full feeling from drinking water. The water-type diet regimen often includes eating only high protein food, avoiding all carbohydrates. Under these circumstances the body gets some of its caloric requirement from the protein in the diet but must get the rest of the calories it needs from its fat stores. Hence the body actually uses a high fat as ell as a high protein mixture. When prolonged, this can lead to acidosis, a harmful condition in which organic acids form within the body making the person feel light headed and not sharp mentally.

A drinking man's diet counts carbohydrates instead of calories. The great pitfall to allowing alcohol on a diet is that alcohol releases the inhibitions so that the will to diet is lost.

Most diet pills contain amphetamines which are central nervous system stimulators causing nervousness, irritability, clouded judgment, imparied mental and physical performance. They are only temporary measures since after a few weeks they no longer decrease the appetite. This type of medication is often habit forming causing severe depression after withdrawal.

Diuretics, which cause water loss from frequent urination, are not intended for successful weight reduction. Any weight loss due to gettingrid of excess fluid is regained when fluid is taken again. They deplete the body of sodium and potassium, both of which are vital for life support.

Doctors maintain that the only sure and safe method for losing weight is a change in eating habits and a reduction of food intake. A diet should be a normal mixture of food but reduced in quantity.

Double Your Pleasure With Rocking Chair Built For Two

By CAROLYN S. MURRAY
Distributed by General Features Corp.

Here's a fun idea! A Cape Cod rocking chair built for two. There's something especially appealing about the idea of rocking in unison — but I think the families with children will get the most mileage out of this movable pastime.

Rocking chairs are pretty much ignored by designers and manufacturers of contemporary furniture. Yet the principle behind the rocker is so basic it seems strange that more fresh solutions aren't resolved.

Many of us have had to turn to rocking chairs copied from the work of an Austrian family by the name of Thonet. In 1830 Michael Thonet invested a system for softening and shaping wood into curving lines. And it was in 1849 that the now famous Thonet bentwood chairs began to be manufactured on an inexpensive mass-produced basis.

Out of this family workshop came the classic rocking chairs by Thonet in 1860 and original versions of these rockers are now part of the permanent collection of the Museum of Modern Art in New York and in other decorative art collections throughout the world.

You've seen many reproductions. Some are examples of design piracy; others are being manufactured under the original family label, but for 20th Century consumers.

Genuine Thonet pieces usually have the name burned inside the rim of the chair seat or printed on a label, according to a reference book called "Decorating Defined" by Jose Wilson and Arthur Leaman, AID.

It's fun and educational to start a hunt through books of design information. Rocking chairs and the origin of the words got me started on a search for the original use of the word "rock" in connection with motion.

I didn't get very far, but decided on my own that rocking as a description of motion probably started with falling rocks or with the use of a rock, in a back and forth motion, to cut or sever something.

And the rocking horse or rocking chair probably started with a rock that was used as a seat — and it moved — consequently it rocked! Who knows?

I do know the Kroehler rocking love seat shown today is a far cry from the earliest crude rocking cradles and chairs of the home craftsman. It features a lot more comfort with its high, sleepy-hollow back, its button-tufted pillow cushions and gently curving arms. Just a gentle push of the foot and the team of rocking enthusiasts is off to pleasure land!

BEAUTIFUL BASE — When the announcement was made back in 1935 that Hamilton Field was ready to open, Marin County residents were determined to make the base as beautiful as their county. Civilians donated hundreds of trees and shrubs. The current security police barracks is pictured here with its freshly planted palms and oaks.

A VISION COMPLETE — Nearly 40 years later, the same building with its palm tree surpassing the tile roof. The oaks now hide the windows and shade the walkways. The biggest sign of 40 years of progress, however, naturally points in only one direction.

THE OLD LOOK — AND THE NEW — This front-line observation aircraft, an O-35 belonging to Hamilton's 88th Observation Squadron in 1935, is pictured flying over the North tower of the Golden Gate Bridge —then under construction. That tiny head with black goggles is Ronald (Snoopy) Green, who was taken out for a joy ride. Green will soon retire after serving 39 years at this Marin County base in both military and civilian roles with the Postal Service.

EXPERIMENTAL — Highly experimental for its day, a YB-15 rolls down the Hamilton Field taxi-way in 1937. The biggest airplane in the world at that time, the YB-15 proved to be much too heavy for the runways in existence, and was never mass-produced. However, its smaller cousin, the B-17, thanks to the experimental flights of this aircraft, had a glorious record in World War II.

Supervisor Unveils Plan To Save San Pedro Ridge

A Marin County supervisor has unveiled a proposal for acquisition of more than 400 acres of San Pedro Ridge between Santa Venetia and San Rafael for open space.

Supervisors Robert A. Roumiguiere told the Independent-Journal he will outline his idea tomorrow at 8 p.m. to the Santa Venetia Homeowners Association, meeting at Santa Venetia Middle School.

The area proposed for acquisition can be described generally as the undeveloped portion of the forested ridge overlooking Santa Venetia. It is a dominant feature of Marin's landscape for anyone driving south on Highway 101.

Roumiguiere, who said he has been working on the idea since he took office this fall, called the proposal "an alternative" to having the scenic slopes cut up and developed.

His rough draft calls for each Santa Venetia homeonwer to chip in between $1.75 and $2.75 per month depending on the value of his home, to pay off a 20-year bond issue at 5.5 per cent interest in much the same way Lucas Valley residents purchased the 285-acre Nunes Ranch earlier this year.

For the owner of a $40,000 home, he said, that would mean about $2.58 per month toward the estimated purchase price of about $450,000. There are 1.212 dwellings in the Santa Venetia area east of Highway 101.

"I'm hopeful the county (open space district) can help out, since the Civic Center is a part of the Santa Venetia neighborhood," Roumiguiere added.

The 407 acres being studied for acquisition are in six separate parcels with a market value of about $442,000, according to the county assessor's office.

One of the parcels, a 257-acre site behind Temple Rodef Sholom on North San Pedro Road, is proposed already for a 1,100-unit townhouse development by landowners Jack and Ron Fierman of Philadelphia.

Preliminary drawings for the project have been submitted to the county planning department by Sausalito architect Eugene Wedell and show five cluter villages nestled in the hillsides — most out of view of Santa Venetia.

The development proposal, which its backers refer to as "n environmental development," is bogged down awaiting an environmental impact study and straightening out of problems over its waste water recycling plan.

Roumiguiere said he had heard of the development proposal but quickly added his open space idea had not been prompted solely by that.

"I think we have to look at open space and recreational lands nearer existing communities," he said. "With the move to keep housing in the eastern urbanized corridor we need more local recreation.

"The countywide plan proposes this area be left in open space, I just want to see if Santa Venetia residents want to pursue the idea."

Robber Gets $200 From Gas Station

In what may, or may not, have been an armed hold-up, a Corte Madera service station was robbed of $200 cash on Friday evening, shortly before 11 o'clock.

John Thomas Dotson, 31, an attendant at Fitzgibbons Union at 700 Tamalpais Drive, told police he was standing at the cash register when he felt "a hard object" jabbing his back and a voice saying "don't move, don't turn around."

Dotson, a radar operator at Fort Barry, told police the robber told him to put money from the cash register in a paper bag. He said it felt like a gun in his back, but all he could see of the assailant was a brown corduroy jacket sleeve and a hand.

Warning Dotson not to turn around, the intruder fled, said police, and the attendant took several minutes to recover from shock before calling them.

Two police officers within 300 yards radius searched for the robber but found no trade, said police, and investigation is continuing.

Charges Filed In Fatal Crash

A Sebastopol man has been charged with manslaughter in connection with the Dec. 13 accident that claimed the life of a Sonoma State College student.

Allan M. Skarie, 56, has been charged with misdemeanor manslaughter and misdemeanor drunken driving. Skarie's car struck head-on a car driven by Debra Walcutt, 19, of 8025 Beverly Drive, Rohnert Park.

Skarie was reported in satisfactory condition at Hillcrest Hospital. Dist. Atty. John W. Hawkes said misdemeanor charged were filed because highway patrol officers found no evidence of gross negligence.

38-Year Service To End Jan. 5

By FRANK FARRARA

AT THE BEGINNING — Flushed with esprit de corps and decked out in his boots and leathers, Private Ronald Green, United States Army Air Corps, begins the first of what proved to be 39 years at Hamilton Field-Hamilton Air Force Base.

Ronald J. Green, who is believed to have worked at Hamilton Air Force Base longer than anyone, will retire Jan. 5 from the U.S. Postal Service.

Green's federal service, both military and civilian covers a 38-year span, all at Hamilton except for four years in Santa Rosa.

The 55-year-old Green is the first and only assistant postmaster to serve at the base and will be the last since his job will be phased out after his retirement.

Green, a native of Sacramento, arrived at Hamilton Field in August, 1935, after graduation from Napa High School, a 19-year-old recruit entering the Army Air Corps.

"Yes, I can still remember quite clearly the first day I spent at Hamilton," Green said. "A Lt. Col. Tinker was commander then. They put me to work in the message center which was then in today's headquarters building. I used to take orders for stamps, PX articles and money orders, and then make a 45-minute drive from San Rafael to drop the mail and pick up their items."

"I worked there as a serviceman until 1940 — then I became a civilian sub-clerk for the postal service, working inthe same building at the same job for 42 cents an hour," Green said.

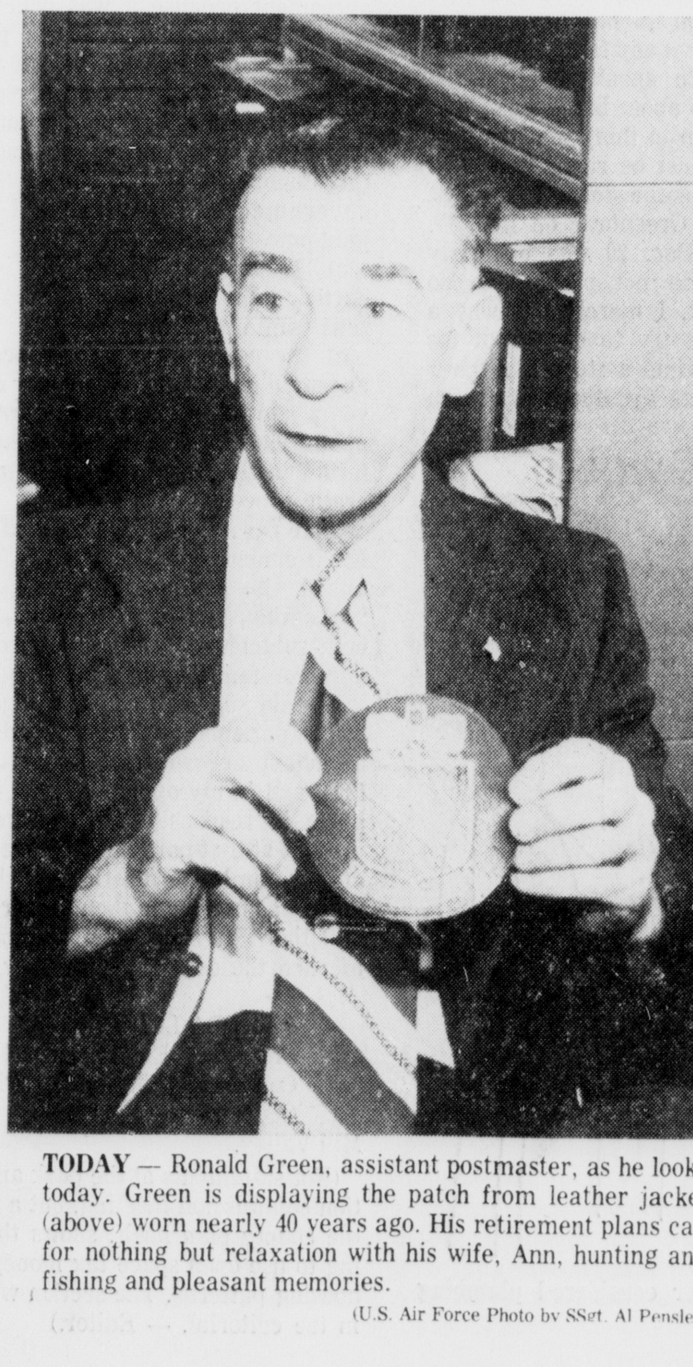
When World War II started, Green took military leave from the postal service and was assigned to run the Army mail service office in Santa Rosa.

He returned to Hamilton in 1946 and has served there since. "I've watched this base progress to several units, including headquarters commands, and then regress again," he said. "It has become almost a personal possession to me. You know, I couldn't count the number of wonderful people who have come and gone."

Green also commented that he believed the attitudes in the military have changed through the years.

"I can remember back in 1935 and even during the war, if you were told to do something and didn't do it, there'd be hell to pay. The young people are different now. They question things. Things are lax in comparison with the way things were when I came in. And you know, it's kind of funny. There was one time when I could say I knew everyone here. I can't do that anymore.

Green, a resident of Novato for 25 years, and his wife, Ann, live at 711 Lamont Avenue. They have two sons, Ronald Green Jr. of Auburn and Timothy Green of Honolulu.



TODAY — Ronald Green, assistant postmaster, as he looks today. Green is displaying the patch from leather jacket (above) worn nearly 40 years ago. His retirement plans call for nothing but relaxation with his wife, Ann, hunting and fishing and pleasant memories.

Store Owner Gives Chase

The owner of a men's clothing store in Bon Air Center chased a burglar who had lifted six suede coats worth $900 from her shop on Wednesday, reported Larkspur police today, and succeeded in retrieving four of them.

Margaret Jane Bennett, owner of the Magi B shop in the Greenbrae center, told police a young man with very long blonde hair entered the shop at lunchtime, then walked out with six $150 suede coats rolled up under his arm.

Mrs. Bennett said she chased the intruder through the center, and by the time she had picked up four dropped coats the robber escaped.

Year Of Challenge Faces Market

BRUSSELS (UPI) —As British Prime Minister Edward Heath entered Brussels' Egmont Palace last January to sign Britain's entry into the European Common Market, a 31-year-old woman with a personal grudge against his government hit him with a bottle of ink.

In a sense, this note of tarnished triumph lasted throughout the year and appeared likely to extend well into 1973.

On Jan. 1, the treaty which Heath signed last January comes into effect and Britain—along with Denmark and Ireland—will join the Common Market, raising a six-nation community to a nine-nation power. Yet Norwegian voters took some shine off this event by voting, in a referendum, to reject Norway's treaty of entry.

In October, the leaders of the nine nations gathered at the summit in Paris, but agreed on little new except to form a "European Union" by 1980—a "union" that was left deliberately vague and possibly meaningless.

The expansion from six to nine nations made the Common Market, even more than before, the world's leading trading entity, with fully 40 per cent of world trade. But this show of muscle has brought the market increasingly into conflict with the United States—to the extent that transatlantic relations are expected to be Europe's top priority in 1973.

Just as serious, this power left most Europeans manifestly bored. Sicco L. Mansholt, the outspoken Dutchman who was Common Market president for the last eight months of 1972, accused the bloc of ignoring "real problems" and, by so doing, alienating the 253 million persons within its borders. Many critics focused on Europe's high rate of inflation and the market's failure to combat it.

The six original members of the Common Market are France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg. With the arrival of Britain, Denmark and Ireland, the market will embrace every major economy in Western Europe, will rank second only to America in gross national product and through its trade, will have perhaps an unmatched impact on the world.

This economic power is likely to increase. A key reason is that, in contrast to the still unformed dream of political union, the drive toward economic union is well advanced.

In March, 1972, the Common Market nations, for the second time, set off on the road toward "economic and monetary union" by 1981 by narrowing the bands within which the exchange rates of their currencies may fluctuate. What this means is that, day in and day out, the values of these currencies are more closely tied to each other than they used to be.

Eventually, the plan is to tie them so tightly that they cannot fluctuate at all. From that position of unity, it will be a small step to a single European currency.

Once before, in 1971, the Common Market took this decision. It came unstuck shortly after when West Germany broke bloc discipline by revaluing its mark. The second try, in March, tottered when Britain floated its pound and the U.S. dollar came under new pressures. But the market nations, in a dramatic meeting in Luxembourg, stood firm and the experiment survived.

Braced by this success, the market spread its wings—and collided with the Americans.

Last July 22, the Market signed free trade agreements with five members of the European Free Trade Association (EFTA), to protect these nations' trade when the market expanded. Finland is expected to sign a similar agreement soon and Norway, since its rejection of membership, also wants one.

This means that, by 1977, these seven nations and the nine market members will form a 16-nation free trade area. The goods of these 16 nations will circulate without tariffs within this area, but goods from the outside will face tariffs of varying heights.

The United States, smelling competition, made its displeasure known but took no action. But when the market tried to extend this free-trade concept to 10 nations around the Mediterranean Sea, Washington erupted.

In a series of verbal votes, Washington said that there is a big difference between EFTA nations like Sweden and Mediterranean nations like Syria, that the free trade area would undercut U.S. markets, and that Europe, in the guise of helping developing countries, was building an empire.

The market members retreated.

Prisons Closing As Crime Increases

"Susanville might be the only city in California that wants a prison in its backyard, but we know that we are not the only community that wonders about the system that permits criminals to roam the streets while its prisons stand empty."

That statement by Dick Myers, publisher of the Lassen Advocate at Susanville, resulted from the sudden announcement early this month that the minimum security state prison at Susanville will close by April 1.

Susanville residents are alarmed over the closing. The prison opened in 1963. In less than a decade, it has become an important economic factor for the little town (population 6,553), which was in the doldrums because of decline of the lumber business that provided its main support. The prison's $3.8 million annual payroll looms big in such a place.

THE CLOSING, however, involves more than the economy of Susanville, as publisher Myers' statement indicates.

It is part — along with the phasing out of San Quentin Prison here — of a state program of putting criminals on probation instead of behind bars.

There are now only about 1,300 prisoners in San Quentin, whereas a decade ago there were about 5,000. There are only 700 in Susanville, where there were 1,200 shortly after it opened in 1963.

In the meantime, California crime rates have skyrocketed.

Roscoe Antrim, president of the California Correctional Officers Association, puts it this way:

"What the public must be made aware of is that the declining prison population is not indicative of a corresponding decrease in crime, but instead it is a shift of responsibility from the state to local government."

IT WORKS very simply:

If a convicted felon is put on probation, the state underwrites the cost. In Marin County, this state probation subsidy is budgeted at $118,248 this year.

The state does this because it is cheaper to underwrite probation than to put a man in prison.

This program was started in 1965. Some counties — Marin among them — refused for several years to go along with it, but nearly all are now participating, lured by the chance to get state funds for their probation departments.

BUT WHAT IS the result in public protection?

It's not encouraging. Many felons free on probation commit additional crimes. As Clare Berryhill, newly elected state senator from the district that includes Susanville, put it: "We've got felons who've been arrested three and four times on probation subsidy. Obviously we're missing the boat somewhere."

Part of this program is closing prisons — including relatively new ones, built at high cost, like that in Susanville. Part of it is light sentences — county jail and probation — instead of prison terms for criminals.

And part of it is that we no longer can safely walk the streets.

Falling Leaves

Each vagrant breeze sends a few colored leaves fluttering to the ground. As it was in England, where the "fall" season was born, so it is to a lesser degree in Marin. It does not require an expert on word origins to figure out that the word for the season refers to leaf fall. The elms and oaks and other dieciduous broad-leaf trees, which made up most of Britain's forests, must have made the English countryside a brilliant sight this season.

Opposition To Rebate Confirms Parkinson's Law

By EARL G. WATERS

The old battle of government spending versus surpluses is back again. The issue which always brings economists into conflict has been brought to the front by the unexpected increases in the state's revenues.

Changes in the economy unanticipated at the time taxes were increased last year account for part of this. The one-time windfall which resulted from the adoption of the withholding tax also contributed.

Governor Reagan has announced his intention to dispose of this spillover by giving rebates to the taxpayers. There is opposition to his plan on the part of some lawmakers.

THE OPPOSITION merely confirms a truism of government: Expenditures rise to meet public revenue.

And notwithstanding the wisdom of those who favor stockpiling revenues against the proverbial rainy day, nothing is more lastingly costly to the taxpayer than the accumulation of money in the treasury.

For every dollar left over in a government budget, there are a thousand ideas on how to spend it.

Unfortunately for the downtrodden taxpayer, it is usually spent in a manner which commits the state to new programs and thus becomes a continuing cost of government forever after.

It was this very issue which was responsible for the last legislative override of a governor's veto.

BACK IN 1945 the state had risen from the depths of poverty which had witnessed it issuing warrants instead of money to pay its bills. Huge surpluses had accumulated in the treasury.

The state had grown fat only because, with a world war utilizing all available manpower and materials, it had no opportunity to spend its revenues. The revenues had swelled from the influx of war workers and the war-expanded industries.

Earl Warren, then governor, sought to husband the money in anticipation of future needs.

But the late, wise old Sen. George J. Hatfield foresaw the trap. He may not have heard of Parkinson's Law, but he knew that excess funds in the state treasury inevitably lead to higher taxes.

Better, he said, to throw the money to the four winds than to permit it to be used to initiate new continuing programs.

SO HATFIELD devised what came to be known as the Christmas Tree bill. Under its terms the bulk of the surpluses were to be gathered up and distributed to local governments for public works programs.

It was a complete giveaway. It was a sailor on a spree.

The cities and counties loved it.

Warren hated it. He vetoed the bill.

Hatfield, cheered on by local government, promptly overrode the veto.

Governor Reagan may not be right in handing the money back to the taxpayers rather than using it for some one-time-only expenditure. But his determination to get rid of it before someone uses it to burden the taxpayers forever with some new program is consistent with his policy of holding government costs down.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

County Plan Subject To Change, Says Planner

One of the main purposes of widely distributing the proposed Marin Countywide Plan as a users' guide through the newspapers in September was to solicit opinions from the public on how to make the plan better.

As the guide says on page 1 — "The plan isn't frozen — good criticisms have changed it and they can change it again — the planners want to know if they are on the right track." I did not expect the I-J editorial staff to embrace all the goals of the plan or proposals for carrying them out without thoughtful criticism, but I was disappointed in the vicious, unfounded knee-jerk reaction in the Dec. 18 editorial claiming "plotting", "scheming", "blackjack", "effrontery", "gall", "deceit", and "subterfuge" — all pretty loaded and serious charges. They are false. In my opinion, the I-J should retract these rash distortions.

The I-J editorial also says "we think the social environment deterioriates when deceit and subterfuge are used . . ." I agree fully. I also believe the social environment deterioriates when editorials use blood-curdling and emotional charges. . .

The proposed plan has three major goals — social, economic and environmental. The plan says they are not separate — they support each other — they are related — that is the essence of the plan. The parks and recreation commission has requested we change our proposal for tying open space priorities with housing . . . The county parks and recreation commission will present their recommendation for change to the City-County Planning Council. It is both fitting and appropriate that they do so.

Please put down the axe, you are not putting out a fire — isn't it about time for you to offer some constructive proposals for making improvements on the plan so that all juristictions in Marin can work together with a commonly agreed upon overall policy plan.

Judge Gardiner Suing Greenbrae Restaurant

It is too bad that the bench and the press must progressively lose respect for each other. We, on the bench, think that before one can have any fair judgment of any matter worth speaking about, he must hear a little about both sides. You, in the press, seem to think that the first story you hear must be right. Why?

A case in point is the story about me at the Refectory in Greenbrae on Dec. 17. Your article of Dec. 20 was obviously libelous, but I do not propose to do anything about it. I merely ask why a reporter does not try to check out his facts before he prints a story like that?

The simple facts are these: Barbara and I went to the place Sunday evening after she had called and was told there was no waiting. This was at 7 p.m. We arrived about 7:15 and were given a short wait at the bar. We went to our table within five minutes and there met Jordan Martinelli Jr. We ordered dinner and sat there about 15 minutes. Someone then appeared . . . Barbara ordered rack of lamb, which I think is about $4, and I ordered steak terriaki, which is about $4.75. We had had two martinis. I suppose our total bill, if we had been served, would have been $11.50 or $12.00 if you include the martinis, which I think I paid for at the bar . . . After we had sat there for one full hour — or more — I got up and said that we were not about to wait any longer and did not want dinner. The assistant manager asked if we were going to pay for dinner, and I said that I would leave a security deposit of $20 and would sue for it back tomorrow. He said, "Do you mean you will pay for dinner?" I said, "No, I will leave $20 with you as security, but since I have not been served at all, I will not pay for dinner." He said, "That is defrauding an innkeeper, and I will call the police." I said to go ahead and he did. I sued the Refectory on the 18th for $20 plus $475 for defamation. Obviously, I could have sued your paper for a hundred times that. However, I am not angry at the I-J, but merely disgusted with reporters. Why in the Devil does not a reporter check his story? . . .

Countywide Plan Democratically Drawn

The Independent-Journal in its editorials about the countywide plan and planning issues has every right to input its own thinking, raise questions and express its bias. However, it seems to me that it does not have the right to:

1.) Continually mis-represent the circumstances surrounding the evolution of the countywide plan - which is, and has been, a completely democratic process.

2.) Wrongly and inaccurately attribute to individual members of the county planning staff both dishonest, Machiavellian motives and decision-making prowers which they do not have.

I would remind the "Independent-Journal" that:

a) Originally the cities and the county of Marin came together in a joint-powers agreement because it was believed that some of the physical and social problems of the county had to be viewed and treated from a countywide perspective.

b) The preparation of the countywide plan has occurred under the aegis of the City-County Planning Council, the intergovernmental entity created by that joint-powers agreement.

c) The plan has involved the input and participation of four hard-working citizens committees under CCPC.

d) The countywide plan - since it first appeared in preliminary form over two years ago - has undergone more than 75 public hearings - a continuing public forum in the best example of the democratic process.

Your Dec. 18 editorial entitled, "Social Environment and Open Space" . . . accused the county planning staff of "scheming, plotting, effrontery, gall, deceit, subterfuge" and questioned its "regard for fair play and integrity."

I would suggest (measured against my own experience) that these words and the attendant accusations are not based in fact, and in my opinion, do not have any place in responsible journalism. I was present at that particular park and recreation commission meeting. I believe that there was nothing in the manner of words of either Planning staff member which merited the description of your editorial

Snowmobilers Receive Assist In Enhancing Their 'Image'

WASHINGTON — "Out on the lawn there arose such a clatter that I sprang from my bed to see what was the matter . . ." No, it was not old St. Nick and his tiny reindeer. It was a fleet of snowmobiles destroying the silence of the night with their shrieking and whining.

That is happening in snow country all over America. Quiet and privacy are being shattered by sport snowmobilers who have little or no respect for property rights. In New England they bring in their vehicles from Boston and other cities and roar through the countryside.

With growing criticism of these easy riders that takes into account the dangers in hidden barriers, the snowmobilers have now found a champion. With a starting grant from Ford Motor Co. of $60,000, a public relations drive with the catchy title "The Outdoor Nation," is out to promote the use not only of snowmobiles but dune buggies, motorized trail bikes, and a new gadget called an "all-terrain vehicle." They are a branch of the motorization of all Americans with perhaps five million already equipped with powered vehicles capable of roaring through any wilderness.

A SENATE interior subcommittee, headed by Sen. Alan Bible, D-Nev., held hearings into off-the-road vehicles and what they meant for conservation. As Bible put it, once-remote scenic wonders are only as isolated as the capacity of the gas tank and man's desire to get there. A witness was Asst. Sec. of Interior Harrison Loesch, who described how the California desert and other lands under the care of Interior's Bureau of Land Management were being chewed up with an irreplaceable loss and the threat of erosion and drifting sands.

He testified that at that time, more than a year ago, on lands managed by the bureau there were one million motorcycles in use, 700,000 pickup trucks, more than 600,000 four-wheel drive vehicles, 80,000 snowmobiles, and about 50,000 dune buggies. The total impact of this motorized cavalcade on once-secluded places out of the American heritage stuns the imagination.

Last February, President Nixon called attention to the damage done to federal lands by off-the-road vehicles. He issued an executive order calling for a unified policy as to where such vehicles should be permitted.

THIS RAISES the question of the Nixon administration's attitude on conservation. In picking a young, inexperienced White House assistant to be director of the National Park Service, the President broke a long tradition of appointments from the career service. The new park service director, Ronald H. Walker, a former salesman in California, spent 10 months in Interior as an assistant to the then-secretary, Walter J. Hickel, who was subsequently fired by the President. Walker moved over to the White House to take charge of advance arrangements for presidential travel.

The Sierra Club found the appointment "profoundly disturbing." Thefear of Sierra and other conservationist organizations was that politics would intrude increasingly on a service that has had exceptionally high career standards.

The motorized invasion of the far corners of the land is part of the conservation picture. The conversationist groups have expressed the hope that the Outdoor Nation will serve a constructive purpose in setting rules and regulations for the use of vehicles that can go where hitherto only the hiker and the dedicated nature lover have been rewarded with a sense of solitude and lonely grandeur.

There is a place for the snowmobile. For those who live in remote areas, often snowbound, it is an escape hatch. There may even be a place for the dune buggy, but as one who has found pleasure and solace in tramping quiet beaches, I doubt it. That threatened beaches can be damaged is a fact of life on overcrowded shores. Noise, exhaust pollution, the breaking of the spell of the moon on the new fallen snow — all this is inherent in the drive to get in there fastest with the least effort.

Rural Waste Disposal Problem Might Solve Energy Crisis

Most of us probably think of solid waste disposal —getting rid of trash, garbage and other refuse of modern civilization — as an urban problem.

But it isn't. America's most acute waste disposal problem is rural and agricultural. It's how to get rid of animal wastes — or, to use the farmers' word for it, manure.

Agriculture Department scientists calculate American farms and feedlots produce more than one billion cubic yards of manure annually.

To give you some idea how large a quantity this is, Dr. Chester E. Evans of the Agricultural Research Office says that if all this were divided up equally, there would be enough for every family in America to fill an average-sized living room to a depth of five feet.

OBVIOUSLY, THAT'S no solution. But something has to be done, because the situation is growing more serious every year.

Years ago, when most livestock was raised on family farms, each farmer had a manageable amount of manure to cope with. He usually put it to good use as fertilizer for his crops.

Today, the raising of animals and the raising of crops tend to be separate enterprises. Farms that grow corn don't raise cattle — and vice versa. Cattle are raised in huge feedlots, each of which may generate more sewage per day than a medium-sized city. Chickens are grown in giant poultry barns, which have to dispose of tons of droppings daily.

And the farmers who raise crops aren't much interested in buying manure as fertilizer. They've learned they can use chemical fertilizers more easily — and at lower cost.

With no economic alternative available, many livestock and poultry growers are simply piling up ever-growing mountains of manure.

GARY SOUCIE, president of the Environmental Policy Center, says ammonia and other gases escaping from these piles of animal waste and chemical pollutants running off from them are causing widespread contamination of air and water.

Fortunately, there is an alternative if government and private industry will pursue it with sufficient energy. The Bureau of Mines has demonstrated in pilot operations that animal manure can be converted into high-energy fuels similar to oil and gas —fuels of a type desperately needed in America today.

Dr. Hinrich L. Bonn of the University of Arizona has calculated that manure from a single cattle feedlot could produce enough methane gas to supply a city of 30,000 people.

A nation which has a mounting surplus of manure and an acute shortage of energy may not need to deliberate long about the wisdom of converting the former into the latter.

In Which Columnist Learns What Capitol Consultant Does

WASHINGTON — What does a man do when he leaves an administration after serving his President faithfully for four years? He becomes a Washington consultant.

But what does a Washington consultant do?

In order to find out, I went to the office of a former deputy undersecretary of Health, Commerce, Transportation and Meat Inspection. His name is Wendell Watercress and I found him seated in a large leather chair behind a splendid desk.

On the walls were autographed photographs of Watercress with Vice President Agnew, Atty. Gen. Richard Kleindienst, Sec. of Treasury Geroge Shultz, and the entire Joint Chiefs of Staff. And on his desk facing out was an 11 inch by 20 inch photograph of Watercress ,with President Richard Nixon. There was a Secret Service man standing between them, and the President and Watercress were looking in opposite directions.

MR. WATERCRESS, what do you do as a consultant?"

"Just a minute, please," Watercress said. He pressed a button on his desk. "Miss Cobey, if the White Huse calls, tell them I'm in conference."

Then he turned back to me. "What do I do as a consultant? That's an interesting question."

The phone on Watercress' desk rang and he picked it up. "Hello? Oh, hi there, Mr. Cromagnon . . . I was going to call you today. I checked into your complaint . . . Yes, apparently the brake fluid lining you manufacture is polluting the city's reservoir. The environmental people are pretty upset about it, so I thought we'd go around them and put the problem up to Commerce . . . Commerce is more interested in brake fluid than they are in clean water . . . It's a little more complicated than that, Mr. Cromagnon.

"We have to put pressure on the city to move their reservoir to another place. That requires dealing with Housing and Urban Development . . . I've got a call into them now . . . No, no, I think it looks good. The only hitch is that you people only gave $50,000 to the Committee for the Re-Election of the President . . . You'd be willing to double that? Good, that takes care of that problem . . . I'll call you back. Right."

Watercress asked, "Now where were we?"

THE PHONE RANG again. Watercress answered it. "Ah, general, thanks for returning my call. Say, I'm calling on a small matter . . . You know the Air Force contract with Overrun Aircraft Co. for the new Rattlesnake night fighter? . . . Well, it's turned out to be a fantastic plane. There is only one slight hitch at the moment . . . It won't fly at night . . . But this can be corrected for as little as $2 million per plane . . . Now, don't get angry. We're in this together . . . I can tell you something off the record, general. The President told me at church services last Sunday that he's counting on the Rattlesnake to be the bulwark of defense for the '70s. . . Good. . . Talk it over with your people at the Pentagon and let me know.

"Where were we?" Watercress asked.

"What do you do?" I asked.

The phone rang again. Watercress picked it up. "Le Blanc. . . What's that? The FTC has found your carpets are inflammable? We'll have to do something about that . . . I'll call someone at the White House who will give the FTC a piece of his mind . . . Don't worry, Le Blanc. We have a warm spot in our hearts for carpet people, and we're not going to let the FTC walk all over you . . . And a Happy New Year to you."

"Now," said Watercress. "You want me to tell you what I do."

"Never mind," I said getting up, "I think I know."

Truman's Comments On Various Subjects

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Harry S Truman was never a person to use two words when one would do. But he said many important things on a variety of topics. Here are some examples:

On himself: "Missouri has produced three notorious characters—Mark Twain, Jesse James and me. I'm a meat and potatoes man, not overly fond of pheasant under glass."

The presidency: "The honor isn't for the man. He is just a symbol of the office, the highest in the world. I did what had to be done. I don't care a hoot what history says about me. I know what I have done and that is enough."

On ordering the atom bomb dropped on Japan: "It was purely a military decision that saved thousands of American lives. No other course was conceiveable."

His toughest decision as President: "It was sending American troops to Korea. It could have started World War III."

On politicians and press coverage: "A politician is a public relations man who knows how to get along with people. If you can't stand the heat you should get out of the kitchem. The great statesmen were all politicians or they would never have been statesmen. They become statesmen after they're in their graves."

On the press: "Reporters are one thing, editors are another. I have always made a sharp distinction between the working reporter and the editor or publisher."

On presidential libraries: "Every president's papers ought to be organized so that students and historians can get at them in later years after his death. I expect to live until I'm 90. There's still a lot I want to do at the (Truman) Library. It will take about 10 years."

On his wife, Bess: "She's the boss. She's the baseball fan of the family. The boss is the fisherman of this house."

Woman, 22, Is Reported As Missing

Corte Madera police have issued a missing persons bulletin on a 22-year-old woman who hasn't been seen since she left a Corte Madera house in October.

Linda Carol Bowman, 22, was reported missing by her father in Los Gatos, said police.

He told them his daughter had been living at 122 Willow Avenue, and said she planned a trip to Mexico with a "Mr. Moon" in October, saying she would return Dec. 2.

Bowman, of 356 Los Gatos, Los Gatos, said his daughter never returned, "and he feels she is dead," reported police.

John Wiggington of 122 Willow Avenue said Miss Bowman did not get along with other residents of the house and left two months ago. No one knows where she went, he told police, and a "Mr. Moon" had never lived there.

Police said Miss Bowman is white, with brown hair and eyes. She has no distinguishing marks and no description of her clothing is available.

What do doctors recommend for patients in pain?

Doctors all over the country dispense over 50,000,000 of these tablets to their patients each year.

There are many medications a physician or dentist can prescribe for pain. Some are narcotic, many are available only on prescription. But there is one pain reliever, available without prescription, doctors dispense again and again . . . Anacin.

Each year, doctors give up to 50,000,000 Anacin tablets to their patients in pain. If doctors think enough about Anacin to dispense all these tablets, what better recommendation can you ask when you are in pain?

You see, Anacin contains more of the pain reliever doctors recommend most than any other leading tablet.

Headache and dental pain is relieved incredibly fast; minor pains of arthritis are dependably eased for hours; even the aches and pains of colds and flu respond to Anacin. So the tension and depression that can be caused by such pain will be relieved too. And millions take Anacin without stomach upset.

When you're in pain, why don't you follow the practice of so many doctors and take the tablet a doctor might give you in his own office. Take Anacin®

Popcorn!

Calorie-counting is a near impossibility during the holiday season. Yet, there is a low calorie snack which can be enjoyed by young and old. Popcorn! This ancient crop is unique to the Americas. The oldest grains found so far were located in Bat Cave in New Mexico. They are thought to date back to 2,500 B.C. The popping of corn seems to have been a common practice among the Indians of South and Central America long before the first European landed. Popcorn is not a good crop to grow in your garden. Its pollen will adversely affect the quality of the sweet corn grown in the same garden.

DO YOU KNOW — Is popcorn the only variety of corn which pops?

Pair Donates Land To Park

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — Two Marin County men have donated 160 acres of land to become part of Sonoma County's Hood Mountain Park.

The Sonoma County Board of Supervisors officially accepted the gift today from Benjamin P. Bonelli, an attorney, 56 Peninsula Road, Belvedere, and from Dr. Robert E. Oslar of Point Reyes Station.

The acreage, adjoining the park southeast of Santa Rosa, is valued at $120,000. Joseph P. Rodota, parks and recreation director, said the land will bring the park to 1,360 acres and make it one of the largest county parks in the state.

The Wedding Of Truman Is Recalled

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (UPI) —When former President Harry S Truman married his childhood sweetheart Bess Wallace, he helped gather the flowers used to decorate the little Episcopal church where the ceremony took place June 28, 1919.

Truman's sister Mary Jane Truman recalled, "Harry and I went out in a huge field of daisies and gathered armloads of the flowers and carried them to the church. Some of the girls got hollyhocks."

Truman's sister remembered her brother's wedding day was a difficult one for her and her mother, who used to boast that "Harry can plow the straightest farrow of corn in Missouri."

It was harvest time on the Truman family farm near Grandview, some 30 miles from Independence, and "Mother and I had to cook dinner for 12 farm hands, clean up the kitchen and get to the wedding way up in Independence by 4 o'clock."

To foil any tricks by Truman's friends, Miss Truman traded cars with her brother for the trip to the church, and "I was weeks getting the rice out of my car," she remembered.

Former President Felt Unworthy Of Top Medal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former President Harry S Truman, who said often while presenting the Congressional Medal of Honor that he would rather have it than be president, stopped an attempt by the House last year to give him the award.

Truman said the medal was for combat bravery and to change the requirements would detract from the medal's true significance.

His comments were in a letter to Rep. William J. Randall, D-Mo., who represents the district that includes Truman's home of Independence. Randall read the former president's letter to the House May 6, 1971, two days before Truman's 87th birthday.

"I do not consider that I have done anything which should be the reason of any award, congressional or otherwise," the letter said.

"This does not mean I do not appreciate what you and others have done, because I do appreciate the kind things that have been said and the proposal to have the award offered to me," Truman said. "Therefore, I close by saying, 'Thanks, but I will not accept a Congressional Medal of Honor.'"

Great Salt Lake in Utah is 2,360 square miles in area.

BEAUTIFUL BASE — When the announcement was made back in 1935 that Hamilton Field was ready to open, Marin County residents were determined to make the base as beautiful as their county. Civilians donated hundreds of trees and shrubs. The current security police barracks is pictured here with its freshly planted palms and oaks.

A VISION COMPLETE — Nearly 40 years later, the same building with its palm tree surpassing the tile roof. The oaks now hide the windows and shade the walkways. The biggest sign of 40 years of progress, however, naturally points in only one direction.

THE OLD LOOK — AND THE NEW — This front-line observation aircraft, an O-35 belonging to Hamilton's 88th Observation Squadron in 1935, is pictured flying over the North tower of the Golden Gate Bridge —then under construction. That tiny head with black goggles is Ronald (Snoopy) Green, who was taken out for a joy ride. Green will soon retire after serving 39 years at this Marin County base in both military and civilian roles with the Postal Service.

MOSTLY AT HAMILTON

38-Year Service To End Jan. 5

By FRANK FARRARA

AT THE BEGINNING — Flushed with esprit de corps and decked out in his boots and leathers, Private Ronald Green, United States Army Air Corps, begins the first of what proved to be 39 years at Hamilton Field-Hamilton Air Force Base.

Ronald J. Green, who is believed to have worked at Hamilton Air Force Base longer than anyone, will retire Jan. 5 from the U.S. Postal Service.

Green's federal service, both military and civilian covers a 38-year span, all at Hamilton except for four years in Santa Rosa.

The 55-year-old Green is the first and only assistant postmaster to serve at the base and will be the last since his job will be phased out after his retirement.

Green, a native of Sacramento, arrived at Hamilton Field in August, 1935, after graduation from Napa High School, a 19-year-old recruit entering the Army Air Corps.

"Yes, I can still remember quite clearly the first day I spent at Hamilton," Green said. "A Lt. Col. Tinker was commander then. They put me to work in the message center which was then in today's headquarters building. I used to take orders for stamps, PX articles and money orders, and then make a 45-minute drive from San Rafael to drop the mail and pick up their items."

"I worked there as a serviceman until 1940 — then I became a civilian sub-clerk for the postal service, working inthe same building at the same job for 42 cents an hour," Green said.

When World War II started, Green took military leave from the postal service and was assigned to run the Army mail service office in Santa Rosa.

He returned to Hamilton in 1946 and has served there since. "I've watched this base progress to several units, including headquarters commands, and then regress again," he said. "It has become almost a personal possession to me. You know, I couldn't count the number of wonderful people who have come and gone."

Green also commented that he believed the attitudes in the military have changed through the years.

"I can remember back in 1935 and even during the war, if you were told to do something and didn't do it, there'd be hell to pay. The young people are different now. They question things. Things are lax in comparison with the way things were when I came in. And you know, it's kind of funny. There was one time when I could say I knew everyone here. I can't do that anymore.

Green, a resident of Novato for 25 years, and his wife, Ann, live at 711 Lamont Avenue. They have two sons, Ronald Green Jr. of Auburn and Timothy Green of Honolulu.

TODAY — Ronald Green, assistant postmaster, as he looks today. Green is displaying the patch from leather jacket (above) worn nearly 40 years ago. His retirement plans call for nothing but relaxation with his wife, Ann, hunting and fishing and pleasant memories.

EXPERIMENTAL — Highly experimental for its day, a YB-15 rolls down the Hamilton Field taxi-way in 1937. The biggest airplane in the world at that time, the YB-15 proved to be much too heavy for the runways in existence, and was never mass-produced. However, its smaller cousin, the B-17, thanks to the experimental flights of this aircraft, had a glorious record in World War II.

Supervisor Unveils Plan To Save San Pedro Ridge

A Marin County supervisor has unveiled a proposal for acquisition of more than 400 acres of San Pedro Ridge between Santa Venetia and San Rafael for open space.

Supervisors Robert A. Roumiguiere told the Independent-Journal he will outline his idea tomorrow at 8 p.m. to the Santa Venetia Homeowners Association, meeting at Santa Venetia Middle School.

The area proposed for acquisition can be described generally as the undeveloped portion of the forested ridge overlooking Santa Venetia. It is a dominant feature of Marin's landscape for anyone driving south on Highway 101.

Roumiguiere, who said he has been working on the idea since he took office this fall, called the proposal "an alternative" to having the scenic slopes cut up and developed.

His rough draft calls for each Santa Venetia homeonwer to chip in between $1.75 and $2.75 per month depending on the value of his home, to pay off a 20-year bond issue at 5.5 per cent interest in much the same way Lucas Valley residents purchased the 285-acre Nunes Ranch earlier this year.

For the owner of a $40,000 home, he said, that would mean about $2.58 per month toward the estimated purchase price of about $450,000. There are 1,212 dwellings in the Santa Venetia area east of Highway 101.

"I'm hopeful the county (open space district) can help out, since the Civic Center is a part of the Santa Venetia neighborhood," Roumiguiere added.

The 407 acres being studied for acquisition are in six separate parcels with a market value of about $442,000, according to the county assessor's office.

One of the parcels, a 257-acre site behind Temple Rodef Sholom on North San Pedro Road, is proposed already for a 1,100-unit townhouse development by landowners Jack and Ron Fierman of Philadelphia.

Preliminary drawings for the project have been submitted to the county planning department by Sausalito architect Eugene Wedell and show five cluter villages nestled in the hillsides — most out of view of Santa Venetia.

The development proposal, which its backers refer to as "n environmental development," is bogged down awaiting an environmental impact study and straightening out of problems over its waste water recycling plan.

Roumiguiere said he had heard of the development proposal but quickly added his open space idea had not been prompted solely by that.

"I think we have to look at open space and recreational lands nearer existing communities," he said. "With the move to keep housing in the eastern urbanized corridor we need more local recreation.

"The countywide plan proposes this area be left in open space, I just want to see if Santa Venetia residents want to pursue the idea."

Robber Gets $200 From Gas Station

In what may, or may not, have been an armed hold-up, a Corte Madera service station was robbed of $200 cash on Friday evening, shortly before 11 o'clock.

John Thomas Dotson, 31, an attendant at Fitzgibbons Union at 700 Tamalpais Drive, told police he was standing at the cash register when he felt "a hard object" jabbing his back and a voice saying "don't move, don't turn around."

Dotson, a radar operator at Fort Barry, told police the robber told him to put money from the cash register in a paper bag. He said it felt like a gun in his back, but all he could see of the assailant was a brown corduroy jacket sleeve and a hand.

Warning Dotson not to turn around, the intruder fled, said police, and the attendant took several minutes to recover from shock before calling them.

Two police officers within 300 yards radius searched for the robber but found no trade, said police, and investigation is continuing.

Charges Filed In Fatal Crash

A Sebastopol man has been charged with manslaughter in connection with the Dec. 13 accident that claimed the life of a Sonoma State College student.

Allan M. Skarie, 56, has been charged with misdemeanor manslaughter and misdemeanor drunken driving. Skarie's car struck head-on a car driven by Debra Walcutt, 19, of 8025 Beverly Drive, Rohnert Park.

Skarie was reported in satisfactory condition at Hillcrest Hospital. Dist. Atty. John W. Hawkes said misdemeanor charged were filed because highway patrol officers found no evidence of gross negligence.

Window Smashed

Someone smashed a window at the Noramedic Building, 712 D Street, San Rafael, on Saturday or Sunday, but apparently took nothing, police reported today.

Store Owner Gives Chase

The owner of a men's clothing store in Bon Air Center chased a burglar who had lifted six suede coats worth $900 from her shop on Wednesday, reported Larkspur police today, and succeeded in retrieving four of them.

Margaret Jane Bennett, owner of the Magi B shop in the Greenbrae center, told police a young man with very long blonde hair entered the shop at lunchtime, then walked out with six $150 suede coats rolled up under his arm.

Mrs. Bennett said she chased the intruder through the center, and by the time she had picked up four dropped coats the robber escaped.

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

A Reminder: Don't Force Enemy To Make Right Play

If you push your opponent into a corner he will take the only way out. And if you can foresee that the only way out will lead him to success, don't push your opponent into that particular corner. The point is illustrated in today's hand taken from the recent playoff held in Lancaster, Pa., to pick the North American team for the 1973 world championship.

BOTH TABLES

The contract and the opening lead were the same at both tables of the match. Each declarer played low from the dummy, capturing East's jack of diamonds with the ace. Back came a diamond to the queen and king, and each East returned a trump.

Each declarer stepped up with the ace of spades and led the ten of diamonds. (It would be fatal to lead the seven of diamonds. West would get in with the king of spades and lead a club to the ace, and a diamond return would give West a ruff.)

RUFFS DIAMOND

At one table West ruffed the ten of diamonds with the king of spades and returned a spade to take the last trump out of dummy. This play pushed South into a corner, since he had a losing diamond in his hand. After drawing trumps, South led a heart and desperately took a finesse with dummy's queen. The finesse worked, and South had found his way out of the corner.

LOOKS AHEAD

At the other table West looked ahead and saw what was going to happen. He discarded the deuce of clubs on the ten of diamonds. South continued with the seven of diamonds, and West discarded the ten of clubs.

Declarer cashed the ace of hearts, ruffed a heart and craftily led the nine of spades. Young Michael Becker of New York was not to be lured into playing low. He stepped up with the king of spades and led his five of clubs. East took the ace of clubs and returned a club, giving Becker the setting trick in the shape of a ruff.

BIRTHDAY QUIZ

By GORDON B. GREB

Today's listing of birthday celebrities goes from "A" to "Tse." Needless to say, there's a humorist mixed up with this group of heros.

1. STEVE ALLEN, New York-born TV funnyman, is 51 today. He quit college journalism studies in 1942 to take a job as a radio announcer and five years later was a CBS star in Hollywood. Besides having a quick wit, Steve is a talented composer, having written more than 2,000 songs, including "Picnic" and "This Could Be the Start of Something." Know whether he is married to Zsa Zsa Gabor or Jayne Meadows? Or neither?

2. RICHARD WIDMARK, 58 today, completed a bachelor's degree at Lake Forest College in Illinois and stayed for two years as a drama instructor. Then he went to New York to try radio acting, then the stage, and finally the movies. He was an immediate hit in his first 1947 film, "Kiss of Death,"-and his long list of credits now include "Judgment at Nuremberg" and "Bedford Incident." Has he ever won an Academy Award? Yes? No?

3. MAO TSE-TUNG, founder of Communist China, is 79 today. He joined the revolutionary army of Sun Yat Sen in 1911, became an army officer and helped start the Chinese Communist Party in the 1920s. Is he called today Chairman Mao or President Mao in Red China?

4. GEORGE DEWEY (1837-1917) was a United States naval officer who became famous in 1898 by sinking the Spanish fleet in Manila Bay. This victory earned for the American Navy superiority in the Pacific and Dewey was made an Admiral of the Navy, highest rank ever held by an American naval officer. Graduating from Annapolis in 1858, he soon found himself involved in the Civil War, serving the north or the south? Know which?

ANSWERS: 1 - Jayne Meadows; 2 - No; 3 - Chairman Mao; 4 - North.

Prisons Closing As Crime Increases

"Susanville might be the only city in California that wants a prison in its backyard, but we know that we are not the only community that wonders about the system that permits criminals to roam the streets while its prisons stand empty."

That statement by Dick Myers, publisher of the Lassen Advocate at Susanville, resulted from the sudden announcement early this month that the minimum security state prison at Susanville will close by April 1.

Susanville residents are alarmed over the closing. The prison opened in 1963. In less than a decade, it has become an important economic factor for the little town (population 6,553), which was in the doldrums because of decline of the lumber business that provided its main support. The prison's $3.8 million annual payroll looms big in such a place.

THE CLOSING, however, involves more than the economy of Susanville, as publisher Myers' statement indicates.

It is part — along with the phasing out of San Quentin Prison here — of a state program of putting criminals on probation instead of behind bars.

There are now only about 1,300 prisoners in San Quentin, whereas a decade ago there were about 5,000. There are only 700 in Susanville, where there were 1,200 shortly after it opened in 1963.

In the meantime, California crime rates have skyrocketed.

Roscoe Antrim, president of the California Correctional Officers Association, puts it this way:

"What the public must be made aware of is that the declining prison population is not indicative of a corresponding decrease in crime, but instead it is a shift of responsibility from the state to local government."

IT WORKS very simply:

If a convicted felon is put on probation, the state underwrites the cost. In Marin County, this state probation subsidy is budgeted at $118,248 this year.

The state does this because it is cheaper to underwrite probation than to put a man in prison.

This program was started in 1965. Some counties — Marin among them — refused for several years to go along with it, but nearly all are now participating, lured by the chance to get state funds for their probation departments.

BUT WHAT IS the result in public protection?

It's not encouraging. Many felons free on probation commit additional crimes. As Clare Berryhill, newly elected state senator from the district that includes Susanville, put it: "We've got felons who've been arrested three and four times on probation subsidy. Obviously we're missing the boat somewhere."

Part of this program is closing prisons — including relatively new ones, built at high cost, like that in Susanville. Part of it is light sentences — county jail and probation — instead of prison terms for criminals.

And part of it is that we no longer can safely walk the streets.

Falling Leaves

Each vagrant breeze sends a few colored leaves fluttering to the ground. As it was in England, where the "fall" season was born, so it is to a lesser degree in Marin. It does not require an expert on word origins to figure out that the word for the season refers to leaf fall. The elms and oaks and other dieciduous broad-leaf trees, which made up most of Britain's forests, must have made the English countryside a brilliant sight this season.

Opposition To Rebate Confirms Parkinson's Law

By EARL G. WATERS

The old battle of government spending versus surpluses is back again. The issue which always brings economists into conflict has been brought to the front by the unexpected increases in the state's revenues.

Changes in the economy unanticipated at the time taxes were increased last year account for part of this. The one-time windfall which resulted from the adoption of the withholding tax also contributed.

Governor Reagan has announced his intention to dispose of this spillover by giving rebates to the taxpayers. There is opposition to his plan on the part of some lawmakers.

THE OPPOSITION merely confirms a truism of government: Expenditures rise to meet public revenue.

And notwithstanding the wisdom of those who favor stockpiling revenues against the proverbial rainy day, nothing is more lastingly costly to the taxpayer than the accumulation of money in the treasury.

For every dollar left over in a government budget, there are a thousand ideas on how to spend it.

Unfortunately for the downtrodden taxpayer, it is usually spent in a manner which commits the state to new programs and thus becomes a continuing cost of government forever after.

It was this very issue which was responsible for the last legislative override of a governor's veto.

BACK IN 1945 the state had risen from the depths of poverty which had witnessed it issuing warrants instead of money to pay its bills. Huge surpluses had accumulated in the treasury.

The state had grown fat only because, with a world war utilizing all available manpower and materials, it had no opportunity to spend its revenues. The revenues had swelled from the influx of war workers and the war-expanded industries.

Earl Warren, then governor, sought to husband the money in anticipation of future needs.

But the late, wise old Sen. George J. Hatfield foresaw the trap. He may not have heard of Parkinson's Law, but he knew that excess funds in the state treasury inevitably lead to higher taxes.

Better, he said, to throw the money to the four winds than to permit it to be used to initiate new continuing programs.

SO HATFIELD devised what came to be known as the Christmas Tree bill. Under its terms the bulk of the surpluses were to be gathered up and distributed to local governments for public works programs.

It was a complete giveaway. It was a sailor on a spree.

The cities and counties loved it.

Warren hated it. He vetoed the bill.

Hatfield, cheered on by local government, promptly overrode the veto.

Governor Reagan may not be right in handing the money back to the taxpayers rather than using it for some one-time-only expenditure. But his determination to get rid of it before someone uses it to burden the taxpayers forever with some new program is consistent with his policy of holding government costs down.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

County Plan Subject To Change, Says Planner

One of the main purposes of widely distributing the proposed Marin Countywide Plan as a users' guide through the newspapers in September was to solicit opinions from the public on how to make the plan better.

As the guide says on page 1 — "The plan isn't frozen — good criticisms have changed it and they can change it again — the planners want to know if they are on the right track." I did not expect the I-J editorial staff to embrace all the goals of the plan or proposals for carrying them out without thoughtful criticism, but I was disappointed in the vicious, unfounded knee-jerk reaction in the Dec. 18 editorial claiming "plotting", "scheming", "blackjack", "effrontery", "gall", "deceit", and "subterfuge" — all pretty loaded and serious charges. They are false. In my opinion, the I-J should retract these rash distortions.

The I-J editorial also says "we think the social environment deterioriates when deceit and subterfuge are used . . ." I agree fully. I also believe the social environment deterioriates when editorials use blood-curdling and emotional charges. . .

The proposed plan has three major goals — social, economic and environmental. The plan says they are not separate — they support each other — they are related — that is the essence of the plan. The parks and recreation commission has requested we change our proposal for tying open space priorities with housing . . . The county parks and recreation commission will present their recommendation for change to the City-County Planning Council. It is both fitting and appropriate that they do so.

Please put down the axe, you are not putting out a fire — isn't it about time for you to offer some constructive proposals for making improvements on the plan so that all juristictions in Marin can work together with a commonly agreed upon overall policy plan.

Judge Gardiner Suing Greenbrae Restaurant

It is too bad that the bench and the press must progressively lose respect for each other. We, on the bench, think that before one can have any fair judgment of any matter worth speaking about, he must hear a little about both sides. You, in the press, seem to think that the first story you hear must be right. Why?

A case in point is the story about me at the Refectory in Greenbrae on Dec. 17. Your article of Dec. 20 was obviously libelous, but I do not propose to do anything about it. I merely ask why a reporter does not try to check out his facts before he prints a story like that?

The simple facts are these: Barbara and I went to the place Sunday evening after she had called and was told there was no waiting. This was at 7 p.m. We arrived about 7:15 and were given a short wait at the bar. We went to our table within five minutes and there met Jordan Martinelli Jr. We ordered dinner and sat there about 15 minutes. Someone then appeared . . . Barbara ordered rack of lamb, which I think is about $4, and I ordered steak terriaki, which is about $4.75. We had had two martinis. I suppose our total bill, if we had been served, would have been $11.50 or $12.00 if you include the martinis, which I think I paid for at the bar . . . After we had sat there for one full hour — or more — I got up and said that we were not about to wait any longer and did not want dinner. The assistant manager asked if we were going to pay for dinner, and I said that I would leave a security deposit of $20 and would sue for it back tomorrow. He said, "Do you mean you will pay for dinner?" I said, "No, I will leave $20 with you as security, but since I have not been served at all, I will not pay for dinner." He said, "That is defrauding an innkeeper, and I will call the police." I said to go ahead and he did. I sued the Refectory on the 18th for $20 plus $475 for defamation. Obviously, I could have sued your paper for a hundred times that. However, I am not angry at the I-J, but merely disgusted with reporters. Why in the Devil does not a reporter check his story? . . .

Countywide Plan Democratically Drawn

The Independent-Journal in its editorials about the countywide plan and planning issues has every right to input its own thinking, raise questions and express its bias. However, it seems to me that it does not have the right to:

1.) Continually mis-represent the circumstances surrounding the evolution of the countywide plan - which is, and has been, a completely democratic process.

2.) Wrongly and inaccurately attribute to individual members of the county planning staff both dishonest, Machiavellian motives and decision-making prowers which they do not have.

I would remind the "Independent-Journal" that:

a) Originally the cities and the county of Marin came together in a joint-powers agreement because it was believed that some of the physical and social problems of the county had to be viewed and treated from a countywide perspective.

b) The preparation of the countywide plan has occurred under the aegis of the City-County Planning Council, the intergovernmental entity created by that joint-powers agreement.

c) The plan has involved the input and participation of four hard-working citizens committees under CCPC.

d) The countywide plan - since it first appeared in preliminary form over two years ago - has undergone more than 75 public hearings - a continuing public forum in the best example of the democratic process.

Your Dec. 18 editorial entitled, "Social Environment and Open Space" . . . accused the county planning staff of "scheming, plotting, effrontery, gall, deceit, subterfuge" and questioned its "regard for fair play and integrity."

I would suggest (measured against my own experience) that these words and the attendant accusations are not based in fact, and in my opinion, do not have any place in responsible journalism. I was present at that particular park and recreation commission meeting. I believe that there was nothing in the manner of words of either Planning staff member which merited the description of your editorial

PAMELA LLOYD

Snowmobilers Receive Assist In Enhancing Their 'Image'

WASHINGTON — "Out on the lawn there arose such a clatter that I sprang from my bed to see what was the matter . . ." No, it was not old St. Nick and his tiny reindeer. It was a fleet of snowmobiles destroying the silence of the night with their shrieking and whining.

That is happening in snow country all over America. Quiet and privacy are being shattered by sport snowmobilers who have little or no respect for property rights. In New England they bring in their vehicles from Boston and other cities and roar through the countryside.

With growing criticism of these easy riders that takes into account the dangers in hidden barriers, the snowmobilers have now found a champion. With a starting grant from Ford Motor Co. of $60,000, a public relations drive with the catchy title "The Outdoor Nation," is out to promote the use not only of snowmobiles but dune buggies, motorized trail bikes, and a new gadget called an "all-terrain vehicle." They are a branch of the motorization of all Americans with perhaps five million already equipped with powered vehicles capable of roaring through any wilderness.

A SENATE interior subcommittee, headed by Sen. Alan Bible, D-Nev., held hearings into off-the-road vehicles and what they meant for conservation. As Bible put it, once-remote scenic wonders are only as isolated as the capacity of the gas tank and man's desire to get there. A witness was Asst. Sec. of Interior Harrison Loesch, who described how the California desert and other lands under the care of Interior's Bureau of Land Management were being chewed up with an irreplaceable loss and the threat of erosion and drifting sands.

He testified that at that time, more than a year ago, on lands managed by the bureau there were one million motorcycles in use, 700,000 pickup trucks, more than 600,000 four-wheel drive vehicles, 80,000 snowmobiles, and about 50,000 dune buggies. The total impact of this motorized cavalcade on once-secluded places out of the American heritage stuns the imagination.

Last February, President Nixon called attention to the damage done to federal lands by off-the-road vehicles. He issued an executive order calling for a unified policy as to where such vehicles should be permitted.

THIS RAISES the question of the Nixon administration's attitude on conservation. In picking a young, inexperienced White House assistant to be director of the National Park Service, the President broke a long tradition of appointments from the career service. The new park service director, Ronald H. Walker, a former salesman in California, spent 10 months in Interior as an assistant to the then-secretary, Walter J. Hickel, who was subsequently fired by the President. Walker moved over to the White House to take charge of advance arrangements for presidential travel.

The Sierra Club found the appointment "profoundly disturbing." Thefear of Sierra and other conservationist organizations was that politics would intrude increasingly on a service that has had exceptionally high career standards.

The motorized invasion of the far corners of the land is part of the conservation picture. The conversationist groups have expressed the hope that the Outdoor Nation will serve a constructive purpose in setting rules and regulations for the use of vehicles that can go where hitherto only the hiker and the dedicated nature lover have been rewarded with a sense of solitude and lonely grandeur.

There is a place for the snowmobile. For those who live in remote areas, often snowbound, it is an escape hatch. There may even be a place for the dune buggy, but as one who has found pleasure and solace in tramping quiet beaches, I doubt it. That threatened beaches can be damaged is a fact of life on overcrowded shores. Noise, exhaust pollution, the breaking of the spell of the moon on the new fallen snow — all this is inherent in the drive to get in there fastest with the least effort.

Rural Waste Disposal Problem Might Solve Energy Crisis

Most of us probably think of solid waste disposal —getting rid of trash, garbage and other refuse of modern civilization — as an urban problem.

But it isn't. America's most acute waste disposal problem is rural and agricultural. It's how to get rid of animal wastes — or, to use the farmers' word for it, manure.

Agriculture Department scientists calculate American farms and feedlots produce more than one billion cubic yards of manure annually.

To give you some idea how large a quantity this is, Dr. Chester E. Evans of the Agricultural Research Office says that if all this were divided up equally, there would be enough for every family in America to fill an average-sized living room to a depth of five feet.

OBVIOUSLY, THAT'S no solution. But something has to be done, because the situation is growing more serious every year.

Years ago, when most livestock was raised on family farms, each farmer had a manageable amount of manure to cope with. He usually put it to good use as fertilizer for his crops.

Today, the raising of animals and the raising of crops tend to be separate enterprises. Farms that grow corn don't raise cattle — and vice versa. Cattle are raised in huge feedlots, each of which may generate more sewage per day than a medium-sized city. Chickens are grown in giant poultry barns, which have to dispose of tons of droppings daily.

And the farmers who raise crops aren't much interested in buying manure as fertilizer. They've learned they can use chemical fertilizers more easily — and at lower cost.

With no economic alternative available, many livestock and poultry growers are simply piling up ever-growing mountains of manure.

GARY SOUCIE, president of the Environmental Policy Center, says ammonia and other gases escaping from these piles of animal waste and chemical pollutants running off from them are causing widespread contamination of air and water.

Fortunately, there is an alternative if government and private industry will pursue it with sufficient energy. The Bureau of Mines has demonstrated in pilot operations that animal manure can be converted into high-energy fuels similar to oil and gas —fuels of a type desperately needed in America today.

Dr. Hinrich L. Bonn of the University of Arizona has calculated that manure from a single cattle feedlot could produce enough methane gas to supply a city of 30,000 people.

A nation which has a mounting surplus of manure and an acute shortage of energy may not need to deliberate long about the wisdom of converting the former into the latter.

ART BUCHWALD

In Which Columnist Learns What Capitol Consultant Does

WASHINGTON — What does a man do when he leaves an administration after serving his President faithfully for four years? He becomes a Washington consultant.

But what does a Washington consultant do?

In order to find out, I went to the office of a former deputy undersecretary of Health, Commerce, Transportation and Meat Inspection. His name is Wendell Watercress and I found him seated in a large leather chair behind a splendid desk.

On the walls were autographed photographs of Watercress with Vice President Agnew, Atty. Gen. Richard Kleindienst, Sec. of Treasury Geroge Shultz, and the entire Joint Chiefs of Staff. And on his desk facing out was an 11 inch by 20 inch photograph of Watercress ,with President Richard Nixon. There was a Secret Service man standing between them, and the President and Watercress were looking in opposite directions.

MR. WATERCRESS, what do you do as a consultant?"

"Just a minute, please," Watercress said. He pressed a button on his desk. "Miss Cobey, if the White Huse calls, tell them I'm in conference."

Then he turned back to me. "What do I do as a consultant? That's an interesting question."

The phone on Watercress' desk rang and he picked it up. "Hello? Oh, hi there, Mr. Cromagnon . . . I was going to call you today. I checked into your complaint . . . Yes, apparently the brake fluid lining you manufacture is polluting the city's reservoir. The environmental people are pretty upset about it, so I thought we'd go around them and put the problem up to Commerce . . . Commerce is more interested in brake fluid than they are in clean water . . . It's a little more complicated than that, Mr. Cromagnon.

"We have to put pressure on the city to move their reservoir to another place. That requires dealing with Housing and Urban Development . . . I've got a call into them now . . . No, no, I think it looks good. The only hitch is that you people only gave $50,000 to the Committee for the Re-Election of the President . . . You'd be willing to double that? Good, that takes care of that problem . . . I'll call you back. Right."

Watercress asked. "Now where were we?"

THE PHONE RANG again. Watercress answered it. "Ah, general, thanks for returning my call. Say, I'm calling on a small matter . . . You know the Air Force contract with Overrun Aircraft Co. for the new Rattlesnake night fighter? . . . Well, it's turned out to be a fantastic plane. There is only one slight hitch at the moment . . . It won't fly at night . . . But this can be corrected for as little as $2 million per plane . . . Now, don't get angry. We're in this together . . . I can tell you something off the record, general. The President told me at church services last Sunday that he's counting on the Rattlesnake to be the bulwark of defense for the '70s. . . Good. . . Talk it over with your people at the Pentagon and let me know.

"Where were we?" Watercress asked.

"What do you do?" I asked.

The phone rang again. Watercress picked it up. "Le Blanc. . . What's that? The FTC has found your carpets are inflammable? We'll have to do something about that . . . I'll call someone at the White House who will give the FTC a piece of his mind . . . Don't worry, Le Blanc. We have a warm spot in our hearts for carpet people, and we're not going to let the FTC walk all over you . . . And a Happy New Year to you."

"Now," said Watercress. "You want me to tell you what I do."

"Never mind," I said getting up, "I think I know."

Truman's Comments On Various Subjects

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Harry S Truman was never a person to use two words when one would do. But he said many important things on a variety of topics. Here are some examples:

On himself: "Missouri has produced three notorious characters—Mark Twain, Jesse James and me. I'm a meat and potatoes man, not overly fond of pheasant under glass."

The presidency: "The honor isn't for the man. He is just a symbol of the office, the highest in the world. I did what had to be done. I don't care a hoot what history says about me. I know what I have done and that is enough."

On ordering the atom bomb dropped on Japan: "It was purely a military decision that saved thousands of American lives. No other course was conceiveable."

His toughest decision as President: "It was sending American troops to Korea. It could have started World War III."

On politicians and press coverage: "A politician is a public relations man who knows how to get along with people. If you can't stand the heat you should get out of the kitchem. The great statesmen were all politicians or they would never have been statesmen. They become statesmen after they're in their graves."

On the press: "Reporters are one thing, editors are another. I have always made a sharp distinction between the working reporter and the editor or publisher."

On presidential libraries: "Every president's papers ought to be organized so that students and historians can get at them in later years after his death. I expect to live until I'm 90. There's still a lot I want to do at the (Truman) Library. It will take about 10 years."

On his wife, Bess: "She's the boss. She's the baseball fan of the family. The boss is the fisherman of this house."

Woman, 22, Is Reported As Missing

Corte Madera police have issued a missing persons bulletin on a 22-year-old woman who hasn't been seen since she left a Corte Madera house in October.

Linda Carol Bowman, 22, was reported missing by her father in Los Gatos, said police.

He told them his daughter had been living at 122 Willow Avenue, and said she planned a trip to Mexico with a "Mr. Moon" in October, saying she would return Dec. 2.

Bowman, of 356 Los Gatos, Los Gatos, said his daughter never returned, "and he feels she is dead," reported police.

John Wiggington of 122 Willow Avenue said Miss Bowman did not get along with other residents of the house and left two months ago. No one knows where she went, he told police, and a "Mr. Moon" had never lived there.

Police said Miss Bowman is white, with brown hair and eyes. She has no distinguishing marks and no description of her clothing is available.

What do doctors recommend for patients in pain?

Doctors all over the country dispense over 50,000,000 of these tablets to their patients each year.

There are many medications a physician or dentist can prescribe for pain. Some are narcotic, many are available only on prescription. But there is one pain reliever, available without prescription, doctors dispense again and again . . . Anacin.

Each year, doctors give up to 50,000,000 Anacin tablets to their patients in pain. If doctors think enough about Anacin to dispense all these tablets, what better recommendation can you ask when you are in pain?

You see, Anacin contains more of the pain reliever doctors recommend most than any other leading tablet.

Headache and dental pain is relieved incredibly fast; minor pains of arthritis are dependably eased for hours; even the aches and pains of colds and flu respond to Anacin. So the tension and depression that can be caused by such pain will be relieved too. And millions take Anacin without stomach upset.

When you're in pain, why don't you follow the practice of so many doctors and take the tablet a doctor might give you in his own office. Take Anacin®

Popcorn!

Calorie-counting is a near impossibility during the holiday season. Yet, there is a low calorie snack which can be enjoyed by young and old. Popcorn! This ancient crop is unique to the Americas. The oldest grains found so far were located in Bat Cave in New Mexico. They are thought to date back to 2,500 B.C. The popping of corn seems to have been a common practice among the Indians of South and Central America long before the first European landed. Popcorn is not a good crop to grow in your garden. Its pollen will adversely affect the quality of the sweet corn grown in the same garden.

DO YOU KNOW — Is popcorn the only variety of corn which pops?

Pair Donates Land To Park

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — Two Marin County men have donated 160 acres of land to become part of Sonoma County's Hood Mountain Park.

The Sonoma County Board of Supervisors officially accepted the gift today from Benjamin P. Bonelli, an attorney, 56 Peninsula Road, Belvedere, and from Dr. Robert E. Oslar of Point Reyes Station.

The acreage, adjoining the park southeast of Santa Rosa, is valued at $120,000. Joseph P. Rodota, parks and recreation director, said the land will bring the park to 1,360 acres and make it one of the largest county parks in the state.

The Wedding Of Truman Is Recalled

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (UPI) —When former President Harry S Truman married his childhood sweetheart Bess Wallace, he helped gather the flowers used to decorate the little Episcopal church where the ceremony took place June 28, 1919.

Truman's sister Mary Jane Truman recalled, "Harry and I went out in a huge field of daisies and gathered armloads of the flowers and carried them to the church. Some of the girls got hollyhocks."

Truman's sister remembered her brother's wedding day was a difficult one for her and her mother, who used to boast that "Harry can plow the straightest farrow of corn in Missouri."

It was harvest time on the Truman family farm near Grandview, some 30 miles from Independence, and "Mother and I had to cook dinner for 12 farm hands, clean up the kitchen and get to the wedding way up in Independence by 4 o'clock."

To foil any tricks by Truman's friends, Miss Truman traded cars with her brother for the trip to the church, and "I was weeks getting the rice out of my car," she remembered.

Former President Felt Unworthy Of Top Medal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former President Harry S Truman, who said often while presenting the Congressional Medal of Honor that he would rather have it than be president, stopped an attempt by the House last year to give him the award.

Truman said the medal was for combat bravery and to change the requirements would detract from the medal's true significance.

His comments were in a letter to Rep. William J. Randall, D-Mo., who represents the district that includes Truman's home of Independence. Randall read the former president's letter to the House May 6, 1971, two days before Truman's 87th birthday.

"I do not consider that I have done anything which should be the reason of any award, congressional or otherwise," the letter said.

"This does not mean I do not appreciate what you and others have done, because I do appreciate the kind things that have been said and the proposal to have the award offered to me," Truman said. "Therefore, I close by saying, 'Thanks, but I will not accept a Congressional Medal of Honor.'"

Great Salt Lake in Utah is 2,360 square miles in area.

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

A Reminder: Don't Force Enemy To Make Right Play

If you push your opponent into a corner he will take the only way out. And if you can foresee that the only way out will lead him to success, don't push your opponent into that particular corner. The point is illustrated in today's hand taken from the recent playoff held in Lancaster, Pa., to pick the North American team for the 1973 world championship.

Opening lead — ◇ 9

BOTH TABLES

The contract and the opening lead were the same at both tables of the match. Each declarer played low from the dummy, capturing East's jack of diamonds with the ace. Back came a diamond to the queen and king, and each East returned a trump.

Each declarer stepped up with the ace of spades and led the ten of diamonds. (It would be fatal to lead the seven of diamonds. West would get in with the king of spades and lead a club to the ace, and a diamond return would give West a ruff.)

RUFFS DIAMOND

At one table West ruffed the ten of diamonds with the king of spades and returned a spade to take the last trump out of dummy. This play pushed South into a corner, since he had a losing diamond in his hand. After drawing trumps, South led a heart and desperately took a finesse with dummy's queen. The finesse worked, and South had found his way out of the corner.

LOOKS AHEAD

At the other table West looked ahead and saw what was going to happen. He discarded the deuce of clubs on the ten of diamonds. South continued with the seven of diamonds, and West discarded the ten of clubs.

Declarer cashed the ace of hearts, ruffed a heart and craftily led the nine of spades. Young Michael Becker of New York was not to be lured into playing low. He stepped up with the king of spades and led his five of clubs. East took the ace of clubs and returned a club, giving Becker the setting trick in the shape of a ruff.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one spade, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ - K 7 3
♥ - K 10 8 5 3
♦ - 9 2
♣ - 10 5 2.
Whay do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two spades.

This weak response promises trump support and about six to 10 points, counting short suits as well as high cards.

BIRTHDAY QUIZ

By GORDON B. GREB

Today's listing of birthday celebrities goes from "A" to "Tse." Needless to say, there's a humorist mixed up with this group of heros.

1. STEVE ALLEN, New York-born TV funnyman, is 51 today. He quit college journalism studies in 1942 to take a job as a radio announcer and five years later was a CBS star in Hollywood. Besides having a quick wit, Steve is a talented composer, having written more than 2,000 songs, including "Picnic" and "This Could Be the Start of Something." Know whether he is married to Zsa Zsa Gabor or Jayne Meadows? Or neither?

2. RICHARD WIDMARK, 58 today, completed a bachelor's degree at Lake Forest College in Illinois and stayed for two years as a drama instructor. Then he went to New York to try radio acting, then the stage, and finally the movies. He was an immediate hit in his first 1947 film, "Kiss of Death," and his long list of credits now include "Judgment at Nuremberg" and "Bedford Incident." Has he ever won an Academy Award? Yes? No?

3. MAO TSE-TUNG, founder of Communist China, is 79 today. He joined the revolutionary army of Sun Yat Sen in 1911, became an army officer and helped start the Chinese Communist Party in the 1920s. Is he called today Chairman Mao or President Mao in Red China?

4. GEORGE DEWEY (1837-1917) was a United States naval officer who became famous in 1898 by sinking the Spanish fleet in Manila Bay. This victory earned for the American Navy superiority in the Pacific and Dewey was made an Admiral of the Navy, highest rank ever held by an American naval officer. Graduating from Annapolis in 1858, he soon found himself involved in the Civil War, serving the north or the south? Know which?

ANSWERS: 1 - Jayne Meadows; 2 - No; 3 - Chairman Mao; 4 - North.

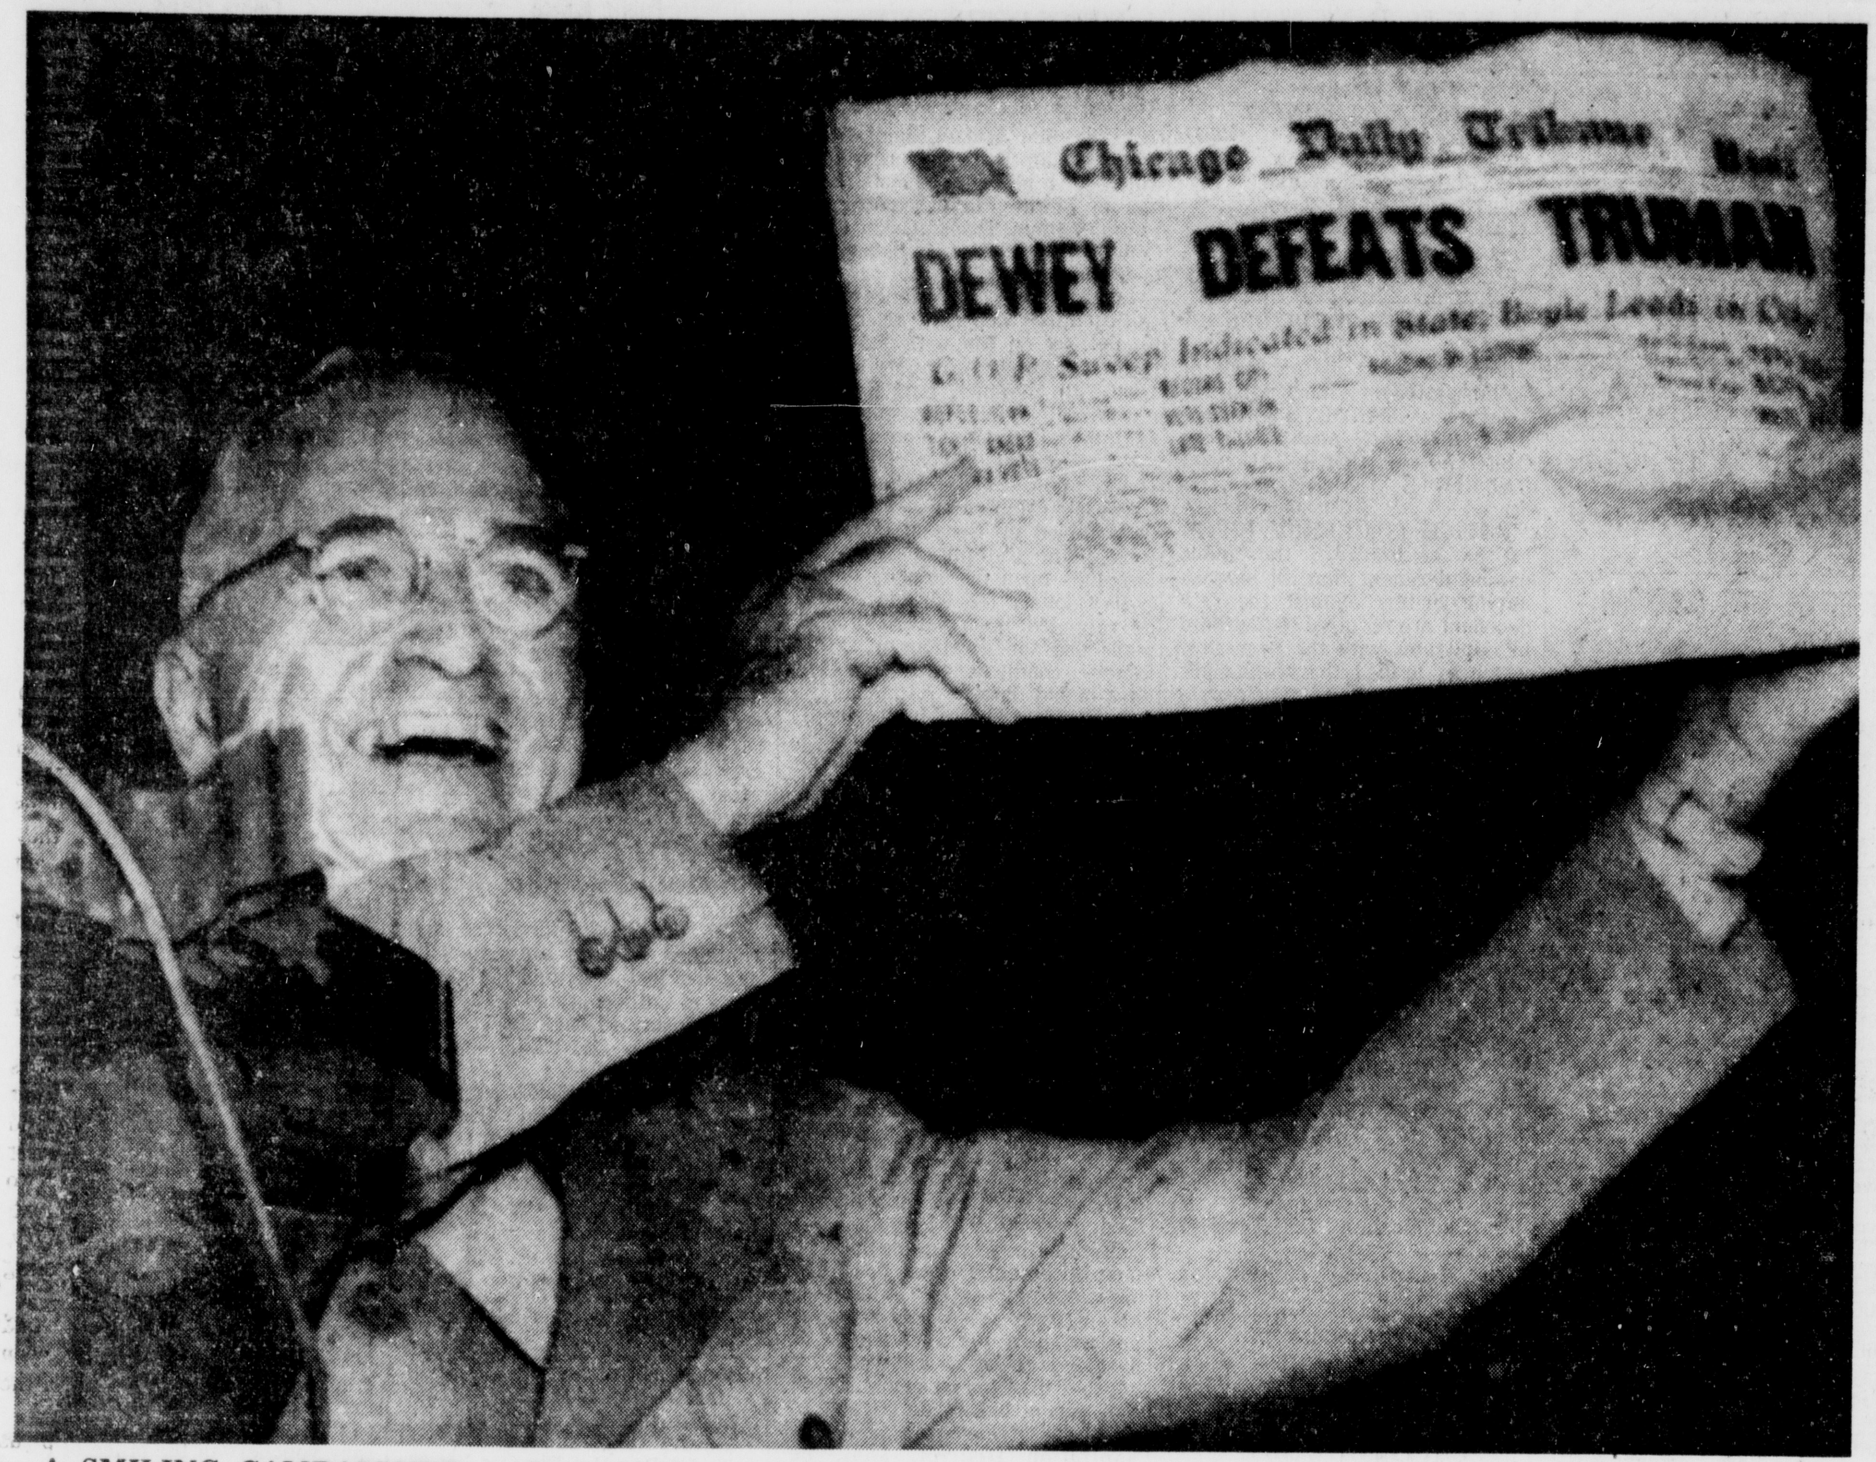
Harry S Truman— Man From Missouri



A SMILING CAMPAIGNER — Harry S Truman gives a big smile as he displays his newspaper — Chicago Daily Tribune — announcing his defeat for the presidency in 1948. His victory over Thomas E. Dewey in that presidential election has been described as one of the most stunning upsets in U.S. political history.

(UPI Telephotos)

TWO LEADERS — Fate permitted former President Harry S Truman to outlive most of those with whom he shared a place in history. In this picture taken Oct. 15, 1950, he chats with Gen. Douglas MacArthur on Wake Island as they met for a conference on Far Eastern policy. He subsequently fired MacArthur during the Korean War.

Two Stabbed In Incident At Soledad

SOLEDAD (AP) — Two Soledad Prison inmates have been stabbed to death and two others wounded in an incident a prison official says involved rival Mexican groups.

Guards found the bleeding bodies in two central facility housing units Monday, said George Baker, Soledad information officer.

"This appeared to be a continuation of a struggle between two rival Mexican factions, the New Familia and the Mexican Mafia." Baker said in a statement. "It appears to be that members of both factions were hurt in the incident."

He said tension between the two Mexican-American prisoner groups had been building in recent months, Baker said the nature of the incident was not known, but several crudely made blade-type weapons have been found. The Monterey County district attorney's office is investigating.

Baker identified the dead men as Frank Villalobos, 24, of San Joaquin County, who had been at Soledad since May, 1972, serving a term for attempted escape from a state prison; and Pablo Najera, 28, also at San Joaquin County, at Soledad since May, 1971, on a first-degree robbery conviction.

The wounded prisoners, Joe Garcia, 30, and Arthur Chavez, 33, were in satisfactory condition at the prison hospital, Baker said.

He said another incident involving the rival prison-based gangs occurred last week at the state prison in Chino.

Robbers Take Cash At Church

FRESNO, Calif. (UPI) — Armed bandits invaded a church during Christmas Eve services and robbed six members of the congregation of a total of $80.

Police said that despite the intrusion of three bandits, one of them armed with a shiny revolver, the services continued at the Church of God in West Fresno.

No report was made, police added, until an hour after the holdup. Purses and wallets of worshipers were taken.

The Children Play Cupid In Marriage

BENTON HARBOR, Mich. (UPI) —In a Christmas season surprise from their nine children, Royce R. Champion and his second wife were married for a second time while Champion was lying in a hospital bed.

Champion and his ex-wife, Leona, both 46, of Benton Harbor had been planning to remarry for some time, but an extended illness and money troubles prevented that.

So his five children from a previous marriage and her four played Cupid, surprising them three days before Christmas with ceremony plans — complete with flowers, cake and guest list of Berrien General Hospital employes.

"It was supposed to be a Christmas Day surprise," Mrs. Champion said Monday. "But they had to let us know ahead of time so we could get a marriage license."

Mrs. Champion wore a knee-length red dress for the ceremony. A shirt, tie and sport coat was placed over Champion's hospital gown.

The Champions were divorced in 1969 following an eight-year marriage because of "the usual troubles," Mrs. Champion said.

"But we knew almost from the start it was a mistake. Neither of us found anyone else we liked. I guess we were always in love with each other," said Mrs. Champion.

It was Mrs. Champion's eldest daughter, Sandra, 22, who instigated the plot, collecting money from her natural siblings and step brothers and sisters, ranging in age from 25 to 15.

"She knows just how to make her mother happy," Mrs. Champion said.

Champion, widowed in his first marriage, has been in and out of the hospital since last spring, suffering a back injury in a fall on a carpentry job and four heart attacks. He has been out of work since the fall.

His latest hospital stay has been four weeks long, and doctors say it will be at least a couple of more weeks before he's able to go home.

"I really don't feel like a new bride," Mrs. Champion said. "I guess that'll have to wait until I can bring him home. Until then, I'll just take care of him, like I always wanted to."

Boy's Dream Comes True

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Danny Roberts' dream of becoming a San Francisco fireman came true—11 years earlier than he expected.

The 9-year-old youngster is Engine Company 41's biggest fan, friend and volunteer worker.

Sunday, Fire Chief Keith Calden made Danny "an honorary member of Engine Company 41, by the order of the officers and men of the company."

A red wagon, officer's belt, citation, a fireman's card and a box of candy went along with the Christmas presentation by Calden, with Engine 41 friends looking on outside Danny's house.

Park To Begin Six-Year Term

SEOUL (UPI) — South Korean President Park Chung-hee will take up his new six-year presidential term Wednesday, returning his nation to full constitutional rule based on a new political order.

Park, elected Saturday to the new term by the National Conference for Unification, will take the oath of office in an inaugural ceremony to be held at Changchung Municipal Gymnasium. Shortly before his inauguration, the government will officially endorse a new constitutional law adopted through a national referendum Nov. 21.

With the new basic law going into force and Park inaugurated, full constitutional government will be restored and political activities that were banned over the past two and a half months will be allowed to resume.

Brother Dead From Quarrel

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A Christmas night quarrel between two brothers has resulted in one of them being killed and the other being charged with murder.

Police said the victim, David B. Schouten, 34, and his brother, Ralph Schouten, 37, had been quarreling over something David had said in a Christmas telephone call to their grandmother.

Police said Ralph was shot in the chest.

Officers were summoned by the younger brother.

Thieves Take The Turkey, Too

GREENWICH, N.Y. (UPI) — Walter Fish, his wife and their four children came home just before midnight Christmas Eve to find their front door had been forced open.

All the presents had been stolen from under the Christmas tree. When they looked in the refrigerator, they saw that even the famiily turkey had been taken.

Speedy Drive To Freedom

HOF, Germany (AP) — An East German electrician caught Communist border guards napping early today and rammed his speeding auto through three border barriers on the Berlin-Hof autobahn to escape into West Germany. Bavarian police reported.

Not realizing he had already crossed the border, the refugee kept his foot on the gas and shattered another autobahn crossing gate manned by Bavarian border police. The police gave chase to the battered car.

When they caught up with the electrician, his first question was' "Am I in West Germany?" Assured that he was, the refugee gave a sigh of relief.

Sailor Lass Not Happy With Navy

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — Life aboard ship with nearly 500 men isn't all it's cracked up to be, according to at least one Navy lass.

Rebecca Johnson, 18, is one of 40 women aboard the USS Sanctuary, the only co-ed ship in the Navy.

"Things may change, but at this time I don't feel I'd be suited for Navy life," Miss Johnson said while visiting her home during Christmas. She said she doesn't care much for the strict regulations.

"They made restrictions (in boot camp) that if a guy talked to one of us he could be put in the brig for a month," Miss Johnson said. "But sometimes when no one was looking, they would walk by and try to act funny."

There were a few secret boot camp romances but "about the only time a couple could see each other was in church or something like that."

At the end of boot camp, Miss Johnson volunteered to serve on the hospital ship Sanctuary and was sent to Norfolk, Va., for training as a ship's clerk. Two weeks ago she was permanently assigned to the Sanctuary, which is undergoing remodeling at San Francisco.

Miss Johnson said she and the other women have been well received by the rest of the crew.

"The guys try to help us when we're carrying boxes and things like that," she said. "Being on board is interesting. I've never been on a ship that big."

She said the ship is totally integrated except for the women's quarters, which are off limits to men.

But she said that as interesting as the Sanctuary might be, it doesn't really make up for having to do everything the Navy way. She said she doubted that when her hitch is up in 2 1-2 years she would sign up again.

Protest Handed To Nixon Leader

MOUNTAIN LAKES, N.J. (UPI) —Harry L. Sears, chairman of President Nixon's New Jersey re-election campaign, promised to pass along to the President a message from some 100 local citizens who protested renewed bombing in North Vietnam in front of Sears' home Christmas Day.

"I was surprised and disappointed at the renewal of bombing," Sears told newsmen. However, he said, "There's nobody in my opinion who wants more desperately to end the war than he (Nixon) does. I'm not at this point prepared to abandon him."

Leaders of the demonstrators handed Sears a page-long statement calling on those "who were responsible for the re-election of the President to disavow their role."

Gorillas Get Visit From Santa

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — Santa Claus didn't forget four young gorillas at Woodland Park.

They had a special party yesterday at which they were given wrapped packages containing their favorite foods.

The packages were attached to a fur tree in the zoo's great ape house.

Historic Structures Disappearing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — James Biddle doesn't like to see America's history paved over.

Biddle is president of the National Trust for Historic Preservation, a group devoted to working for the preservation of historic structures which are in danger of being swept away by progress.

Writing in Travel Leisure magazine, Biddle said that of 1,500 buildings listed by the federal government in 1933 as having historical significance, nearly half have been torn down.

"We Americans must decide if we want to preserve what we have or if we just want to pave it over, high-rise it and factory it," he said. "We've got to decide at what point your land ceases to be your land, at what point you must yield to overall planning."

Among the architectural endangered species about which Biddle's group is concerned are the following:

—The U.S. Capitol, endangered by a proposal to extend the west front, the only remaining portion of the original exterior.

—Grand Central Station in New York, endangered by talk of a high-rise office building over the present station, which the group says would destroy its character.

—Potomac Park in Washington, site of the Lincoln and Jefferson memorials endangered by the proposed route of Interstate 695.

—The old Washington Post Office, a Romanesque Revival building built in 1897, threatened with demolition.

—Drayton Hall in Charleston, S.C., considered the finest example of a South Carolina plantation house, but which has been put up for sale.

—The Delta Queen, Mississippi River paddlewheel steamboat, threatened because it cannot meet fire provisions of 1966 Safety at Sea Law.

—The Mission Inn in Riverside, Calif., 19th century hotel, in jeopardy although there is a proposal to save it by converting it into a cultural community with apartments, shops, theaters and galleries.

—The Reliance Building in Chicago, one of the few surviving examples of the Chicago school of architecture, threatened because it fails to produce the revenues possible from its location.

—Hotel Del Coronado, a Victorian-style seaside resort outside San Diego, Calif., located on land so valuable tax pressure threatens it.

—Union Station, New London, Conn., one of the remaining grand old-style rail terminals, threatened by the continued consolidation of railroads.

"In this country," said Biddle, "we've got to re-think the whole business of land use, reexamine the principle that the best use is the most profitable use."

Yule Blazes Leave 46 Dead In U.S.

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

At least 46 persons were killed during the Christmas weekend in fires, some believed to have been caused by Christmas decorations.

In one of the blazes, a family of four died when fire swept their home in Avalon Hills, a suburb of Indianapolis, Ind. Firemen speculated the fire started when Christmas tree lights were left burning all night.

In Woodbridge, N.J., Christmas decorations were believed to be the cause of a fire that killed a 6-year-old girl and severely burned her father Monday. The girl, Pamela Claesson, and her father, Carl, were sleeping when the fire broke out.

Five persons were killed Monday when fire destroyed a two story home in Schodack Landing, N.Y. Three of the dead were children. Three others suffered injuries in the blaze. The fire was believed to have started in the kitchen near a wood-burning stove used for heating.

A 4-year-old girl died in a blaze that damaged five frame homes in the Borough of Queens, New York City, where nine families, 50 persons in all, were made homeless.

An overloaded circuit was blamed for a fire in Susquehanna, Pa., that killed two children.

A dozen homes were gutted by fire near the UCLA campus in Los Angeles Monday when 45-mile-an-hour winds spread the blaze from one house. There were no injuries.

Sihanouk Pledges Total Resistance

HONG KONG (UPI) —Prince Norodom Sinahouk, head of the exile government of Cambodia, told the North Vietnamese people in a message from Peking that "No escalation of the armed aggression of the U.S.A. can bend our knees," the New China News Agency reported today.

The official Chinese agency quoted Sihanouk as saying:

"Our choice is made, no escalation of the armed aggression of U.S.A. can bend our knees. The U.S. Air Force, the strongest and the most murderous of the world and of all times, has already sustained the most disastrous and the most ignominious defeat in its history, which is inflictead on it by the supremely heroic and talented defenders of the soil and air of the DRVN (North Vietnam).

200 Hurt When Bullring Tumbles

BOGOTA (UPI) —The grandstand of a village bullring about 25 miles from Bogota collapsed Monday while about 2,000 spectators were cheering a trio of local matadors.

Officials said about 200 persons were injured, about 30 of them seriously. They said they did not know what caused the wooden grandstand to fall.

JERUSALEM (UPI) -- Mexican violinist Henry Szeryng gave Jerusalem a 1743 Stradivarious violin Sunday during a concert of the Israel philharmonic orchestra. The Polish-born musician named it the Kinor David Stradivarious in honor of what Jews call the city of King David.

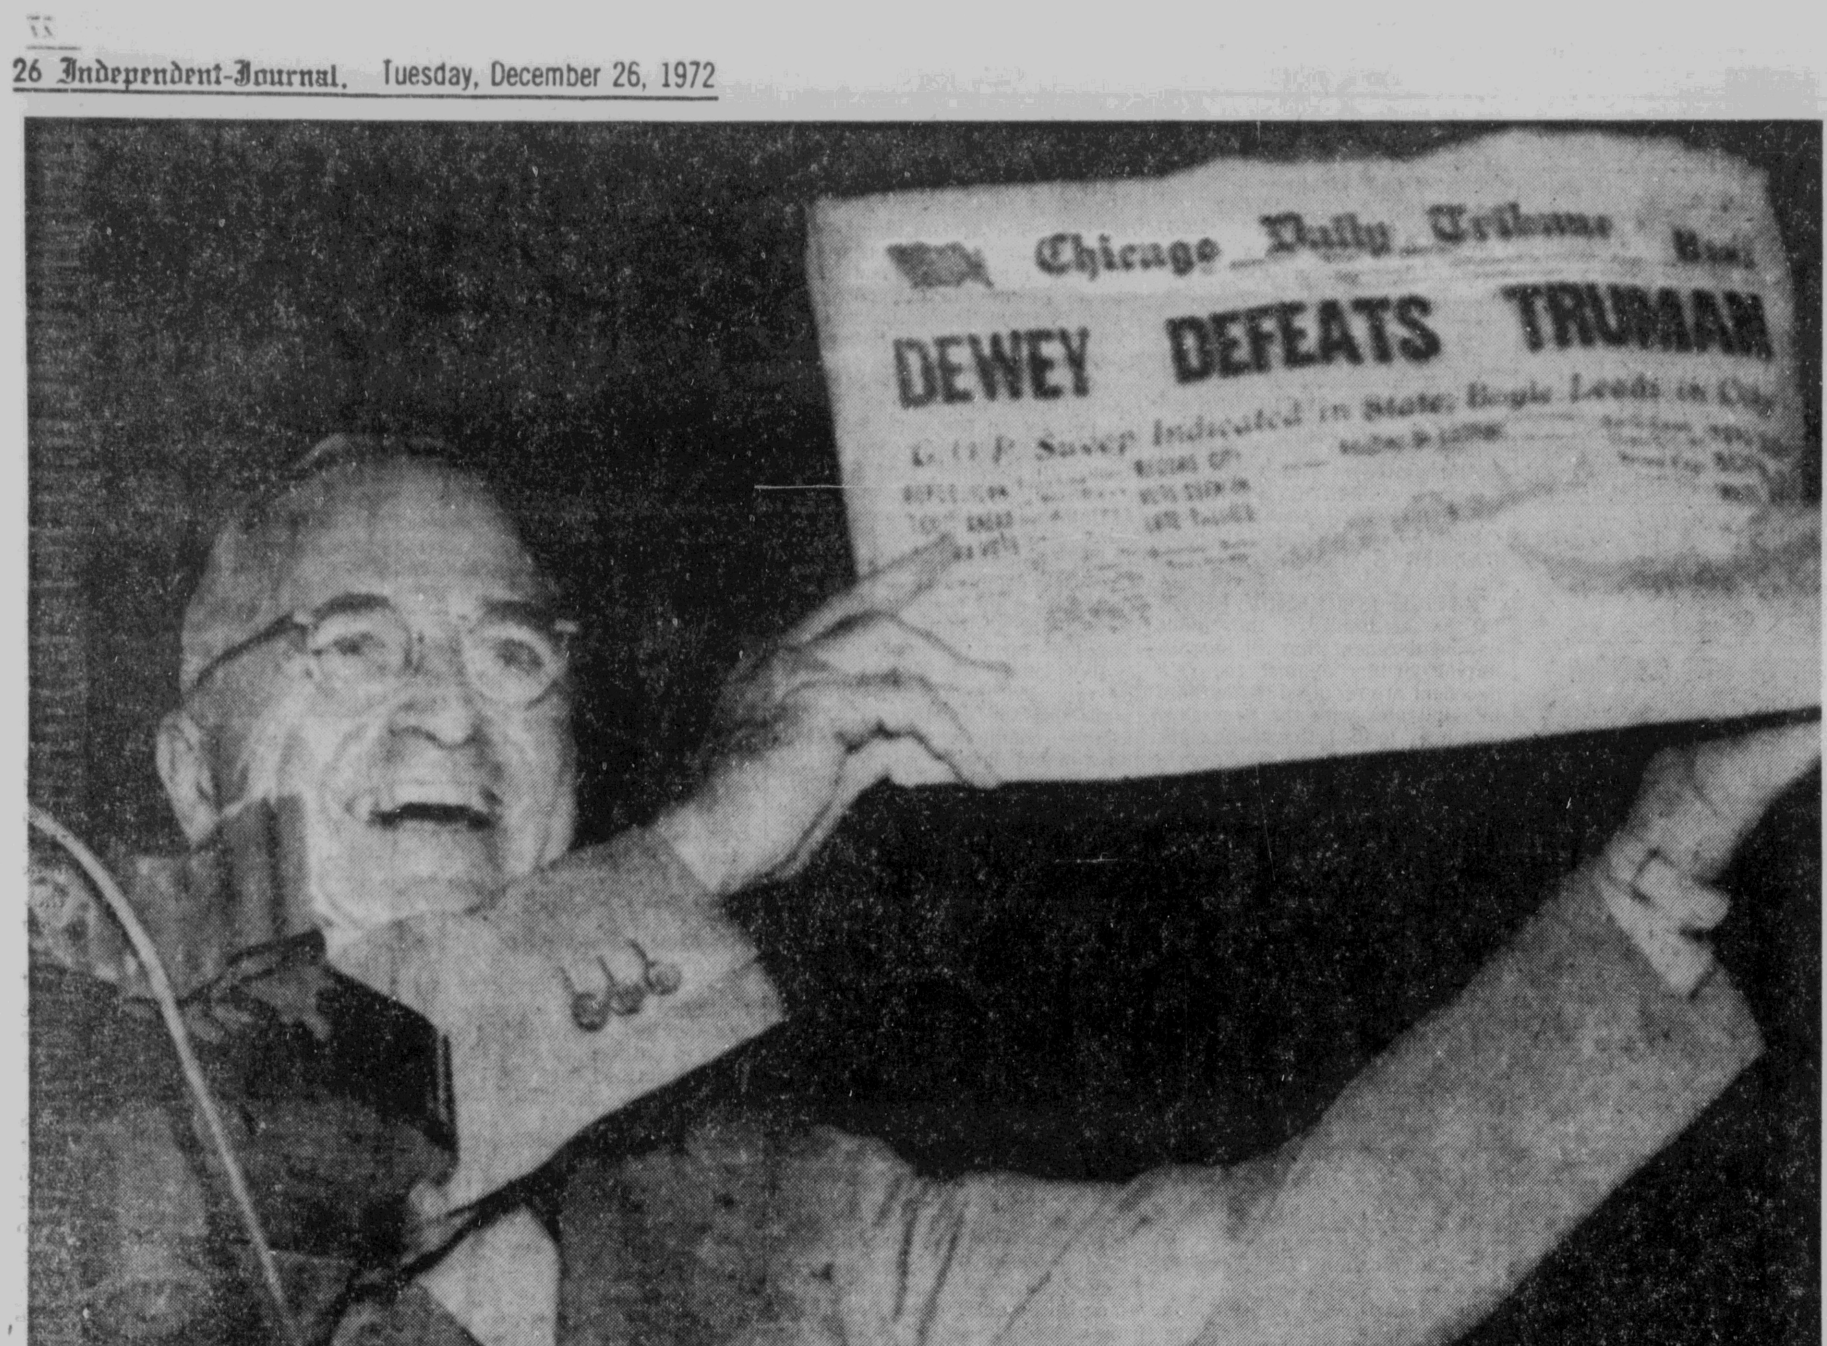
Harry S Truman— Man From Missouri



Chicago Daily Tribune
DEWEY DEFEATS TRUMAN
G.O.P. Sweep Indicated in State; Boyle Leads in City

A SMILING CAMPAIGNER — Harry S Truman gives a big smile as he displays his newspaper — Chicago Daily Tribune — announcing his defeat for the presidency in 1948. His victory over Thomas E. Dewey in that presidential election has been described as one of the most stunning upsets in U.S. political history.

(UPI Telephotos)

TWO LEADERS — Fate permitted former President Harry S Truman to outlive most of those with whom he shared a place in history. In this picture taken Oct. 15, 1950, he chats with Gen. Douglas MacArthur on Wake Island as they met for a conference on Far Eastern policy. He subsequently fired MacArthur during the Korean War.

A Visit To The Sad 49er Dressing Room

Trying to forget what happened last weekend to both Bay Area pro football teams, but still remembering, fans can be forgiven for not getting overly excited about the upcoming NFL conference championship games Sunday.

Dallas will be playing against Washington for the National Football Conference title. Great. Pittsburgh will go against Miami for the American Conference title. Great.

But the way Dallas and Pittsburgh got there left 49er and Raider fans in a state of shock that still lasts today. What happened last Saturday had to be the most shocking day in Bay Area pro sports. A loss is a loss, most of them the kind that can be forgotten quickly, with maybe a day or two of thought. But the kind of losses San Francisco and Oakland suffered? Those players will be remembering the circumstances through the entire summer.

The Raiders' loss was on a fluke play when Steeler Franco Harris caught a batted down pass and ran 60 yards for a touchdown with five seconds left in the game. Result: Raiders lose, 13-7. Some watched in horror on television. I was depending on the radio, listening to Bill King describe it all while I sat in my car in the parking lot at Candlestick Park before the start of the 49er game with Dallas. I thought that would be the only stunning shocker of the day. How wrong I was.

THE 49ERS were beaten in a game they "couldn't" lose. They were in front of the Cowboys, 28-16, with only one minute and 53 seconds left. Seven plays and one on-sides kick later the 49ers were beaten, 30-28.

By then many fans were already in their cars, having left the stadium early thinking of certain victory for the 49ers. The fans who remained sat there stunned by the quick turnaround.

The 49er dressing room was like a mortuary. A feeling of shock and disappointment hung heavily in the air as reporters searched their minds to find questions for players who didn't feel much like answering.

LONG AFTER the first questions were being asked, veteran tackle Charlie Krueger sat there on a chair in front of his cubicle, still wearing his football pants. There was still some tape to pull off his massive hands.

"This is a good team. It's a hell of a good team," he said looking around at the slowly emptying room. "We went through tough spots all year. Maybe this loss helped us become a better team. We'll be a really good team next year."

Will Charlie, a 35-year-old 14-year veteran be part of that 1973 team?

"If I am at the weight limit coach (Dick) Nolan sets for me I will be at training camp next year," said Krueger. "If I'm not at that weight he wouldn't let me through the training camp gate. Dick Nolan is a fine, fair coach. He has to be to have an old guy like me around."

THEN KRUEGER looked over at offensive guard Woody Peoples who was quietly dressing four feet away. "You guys should go over and congratulate Woody for making all-pro. I would really hate to play against that guy all day . . . he holds on every play."

That crack made Peoples smile faintly. Charlie has a way of picking up a fellow player's spirit when he needs it most.

Preston Riley will be reliving that on-sides kick which he bobbled for a long time. Dallas kicker Toni Fritsch sent a spinning, twisting kick toward Riley and it bounced off his fingers, Mel Renfro recovering on the 50. Three plays later came the winning touchdown from Roger Staubach to Ron Sellers.

When asked about the muff, Riley said, "I just missed it." Then he looked down, slowly shaking his head.

Some might have thought back to 1957 when the 49ers, in a playoff for the Western Division title, held a 7-7 lead in the third quarter against the Detroit Lions, and then stole defeat from the jaws of victory, losing, 31-27.

That was a slow, agonizing thing, the 49ers gasping and finally bleeding to death. Last Saturday death came surprisingly quickly, a bullet in the heart.

OVER WASHINGTON

49ers' Coach Nolan Picks Cowboys' Win

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—San Francisco 49er Coach Dick Nolan thinks Dallas can beat Washington in Sunday's National Football Conference playoff.

"I think Dallas can win it all," he said in the wake of his team's unbelievable 30-28 loss to the Cowboys. "Sure, Washington looked good beating Green Bay, but Dallas is a better club."

The Cowboys' win helped the Redskins, who would have had to play the 49ers at San Francisco but now can play host to the Cowboys.

Nolan praised Washington Coach George Allen for going with a five-man line Sunday against the tough Green Bay running attack and so-so Packer air game.

"He gambled and won that he could put five men in front to stop John Brockington and MacArthur Lane and still contain the pass."

With his playoff hopes shattered, Nolan is turning his attention to the forthcoming draft.

"We're looking for another linebacker," he says. "We carried five instead of the usual six and it carried some problems."

Turning to last Saturday's game, Nolan says "it's hard not to look back and wonder what would have happened if we beat the Cowboys last Saturday. But we lost, even if it was in the final minute and a half. The thing to do now is to look ahead towards next year and what we can do to improve ourselves."

Raiders' Coach Madden Seething

OAKLAND (UPI)—John Madden, still seething two days after his Oakland Raiders were knocked out of the National Football League playoffs by the most controversial play in years, said Monday he was positive his team "was had."

After spending part of Christmas Eve viewing films of the final seconds of the Oakland-Pittsburgh game during which time Franco Harris of the Steelers scooped up a deflected pass and scored the game-winning touchdown, the Raider coach said he was positive defensive back Jack Tatum did not touch the ball.

If Tatum had not touched the ball, the pass should have been ruled incomplete with the Raiders holding a 7-6 edge with just five seconds left on the clock.

Instead, referee Fred Swearingen, after consultation with NFL officials in the pressbox, ruled Tatum had indeed deflected the ball into the hands of Harris and that the touchdown stood for the Steelers' 13-7 victory Saturday.

"What Jack did was give him (Frenchy Fuqua, the intended receiver) a good shot from behind as the ball hit him on the shoulder pad," Madden explained. "And then, after the ball went to Harris, they clipped Phil Villapiano (Raider linebacker).

"But there was no way they were going to call it the other way with all those people out on the field. They couldn't have any other decision with all those wild people on the field. Something would have happened. Those people might have killed them (the officials)."

Madden also insisted that NFL officials in the pressbox established precedent by making the touchdown decision from the television instant replay.

"The officials told me they didn't know what happened," Madden said. "And they were going to check upstairs to see what it was. The referee went in to use the dugout telephone and when he came out, he called it a touchdown."

Oakland writers said Steeler Public Relations Director Joe Gordon told reporters in the pressbox that the NFL officials had made the decision from the replay. However, NFL officials denied it.

"The decision was made on the field," said Val Pinchback of the NFL. "The referee was just phoning us to inform us of his decision."

"If that was the case, why didn't the referee just signal a touchdown before going into the dugout for his conversation?" Madden asked.

"It's just so disappointing," Madden added. "It doesn't make any sense to come down through a whole season and have it end like that. It's unfair.

"If they would admit they set that precedent then maybe we could get a recall on this game and look at those films again. But it'll never happen."

Prep Teams Schedule Is Tough

The high schools in Marin and southern Sonoma are supposed to be on vacation this week, but the schedule-makers have made sure that few of the basketball players will be able to relax. Some tough opponents have been lined up for this week.

San Marin High School, for example, must journey to Oakland for an 8 o'clock game tonight against fearsome St. Elizabeth, which is averaging almost 100 points a game and has been called by some the best team in the East Bay. Today's other game was to pit Terra Linda against the College of Marin freshmen in Kentfield at 4 p.m.

Tomorrow at 8:30 p.m., Marin Catholic will play Bishop O'Dowd in O'Dowd's tournament in Oakland. The Dragons may have graduated everybody from last year's 30-1 team, but they're still tough as their own bandbox gym, said Marin Catholic coach Dave Gonsalves.

The tournament continues through Saturday, with the Wildcats playing again Friday against the winner or loser of the Oakland Tech-San Leandro game. Also in the tourney are such luminaries as Hayward, which won the Rose City tournament, and Moreau, which beat Hayward by 30.

Other games tomorrow find Lincoln of San Francisco at Drake, 11 a.m.; Washington of San Francisco at San Rafael, 1 p.m.; and Redwood vs. Mills of

Grid Game Laden With Turnovers

MIAMI (UPI)—The players appeared to be trying too hard to land a professional football contract in the Orange Bowl Christmas night and turned the annual Shrine North-South college all-star football show into a game of turnovers.

The North team collected four second-half South bobbles for a come-from-behind 17-10 victory with two fourth-quarter touchdowns. There were a total of nine turnovers in the game.

"I don't think we found any No. 1 draft choices tonight," said San Francisco 49ers' Clarence Parker, one of the more than 75 pro scouts watching the game.

They may have found a high pick in Purdue linebacker Gary Bingham, however.

His theft of Arkansas Joe Ferguson's pass and 37-yard runback in the opening minutes of the game set up the North's first score, a 21-yard field goal by Marvin Roberts of Michigan State.

And Bingham saved the victory for the North with only 58 seconds remaaining in the game by pouncing on a fumble by Miami's Chuck Foreman.

The South had driven 80 yards to the North one-yard line and seemed to have victory in its grasp. Californian Bill Armstrong's interception of a South pass thrown by John Madeya of Louisville and 27-yard runback put the Northerners in position at the South 10 to score the tying touchdown.

Wisconsin's Rufus "Roadrunner" Ferguson crunched over from the two with 13:50 remaining in his fourth straight crack at the South line. Moments later, Foreman committed his first bobble and Kevin Riley of Villanova recovered for the North at midfield.

The winning North drive was aided by an offside penalty against the South on an attempted field goal which gave the North a first down on the South 11. Two plays later, Bob McCall of Arizona ran 14 yards untouched around left end for the winning score.

The South's Ferguson engineered a 59-yard drivein the second quarter, throwing 18 yards to David Knight of William and Mary for the touchdown 6:10 before the half.

The other Rebel score came on a 23-yard field goal by Alfred Reese of Tennessee State with 4:57 left in the third period.

Rufus Ferguson won the North's most valuable player award and Foreman, the game's leading ground gainer despite his costly fumbles, was chosen MVP for the South.

The North victory evened the series at 12-12-1, but was played on a chilly night before a sparse crowd of less than 10,000. the Shrine, however, collected $120,000 for its charities from ABC television and from ticket sales which topped 18,000.

ROSE BOWL

Ohio State Scout Sizes Up Squads

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Three teams pop into Esco Sarkkinen's mind when the Ohio State scout of nearly three decades thinks of the greatest college football squads he's seen.

Sarkkinen, completing his 27th season with the Buckeyes, prefers to think of eras rather than teams when he talks about the great ones.

"I would say the 1947-48 Michigan team, Michigan State of the mid-60s and the three Ohio State teams of Rex Kern and company," Sarkkinen said.

He refuses to put top-ranked Southern California which plays Ohio State in the Rose Bowl New Year's day, in the same class for one reason.

"This has to rank with John McKay's finest, but it's only for one season, not two or three years, like those others," he explained.

The Michigan team had trick-type plays," he said. "They could hit you with so many different offensive patterns."

Of the Michigan State squads, he said, "They had perhaps the finest defensive talent the Big 10 has ever seen. Players such as Bubba Smith and George Webster are once in a lifetime."

Kern led Ohio State to a 27-2 record in three years, including a victory over Southern Cal in the 1969 Rose Bowl.

Sarkkinen said, "It was the best for total commitment by one class.

"They had more offensive and defensive blue-chippers in balanced positions than any team I ever saw," he said of the 1968-70 Buckeye powerhouses.

However, Sarkkinen isn't underselling the top-ranked Trojans who ripped through 11 straight opponents during the season.

"All their best players are in the key positions," he said.

Warriors Host Sonics Tonight

OAKLAND (UPI)—The Golden State Warriors seem to be jelling into a formidable unit while the Seattle SuperSonics can't seem to.

"We've had a few basic personnel problems," says Sonics coach Tom Nissalke, "but I feel we're going to get on the right track pretty soon."

The Sonics call on the Warriors in National Basketball Association action tonight and coach Al Attles of Golden State says of the Sonics "they've got a lot of talent and one night they'll suddenly find themselves. I'm hoping it won't be against us."

Golden State is 21-11 and still stands midway between Los Angeles and Phoenix in the Western Division. The trail the former by 5 1-2 games and lead the latter by the same number of contests. Seattle is at 10-28.

Seattle's potential is shown by its win and overtime loss to Milwaukee, a team the Warriors have so far been unable to handle.

But Golden State has dumped powerhouses Boston and Chicago in its last two outings and won five of the last six. In those last two wins, Golden State moved the ball well and thus got numerous easy shots and balanced scoring.

"That's what we're looking for," said Attles.

Landry Is Left With A Decision

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Don Shula has made his choice. Now Tom Landry is left with a decision.

Shula said Monday that Earl Morrall, the 38-year-old veteran, will be the starting quarterback for the unbeaten Mimai Dolphins in Sunday's American Conference title game against the Steelers in Pittsburgh.

There had been talk that perhaps Bob Griese, last year's AFC passing leader who was out almost all season with a broken ankle, would be reinstated at quarterback. Morrall had problems moving Miami through most of the Dolphins' 20-14 victory over Cleveland Sunday.

But Shula put down that talk Christmas Day when he announced that Morrall, who took over for Griese early in the season and has helped lead the Dolphins to an unprecedented 15-0 record, will be his starter against the Steelers.

"Earl will start in Pittsburgh," Shula said. The Dolphins' coach did admit that he was thinking of inserting Griese when Morrall had a horrible first half against the Browns but decided to stick with the veteran quarterback.

UNDECIDED

Landry, who'll send his Dallas Cowboys against the Redskins in Washington for the National Football Conference title, still hasn't decided between Craig Morton, his season-long starter, or Roger Staubach, last year's hero, for the starting quarterback role.

Morton was unable to move the club against San Francisco in Saturday's semifinal playoff and Staubach, who missed virtually all of the season with an injured shoulder, came on to throw two touchdown passes, one in the last minute, to lift the Cowboys to a 30-28 triumph.

The winners of Sunday's games will meet in the Super Bowl in Los Angeles on Jan. 14.

The four playoff finalists spent a leisurely Christmas Monday before getting down to the task of preparing for Sunday's showdowns.

Pittsburgh Coach Chuck Noll, still pretty much in a state of shock after his club's storybook victory over Oakland, said he, "got everything I wanted for Christmas on Saturday."

A GIFT

The Christmas gift came in the form of a weird deflected pass caught by rookie Franco Harris and carried into the end zone for the winning touchdown with only five seconds left. The score came 1:08 after Oakland apparently had clinched the game 7-6 on Kenny Stabler's 30-yard touchdown run and gave Pittsburgh a 13-7 triumph.

The play touched off a storm of controversy concerning its legality and bedlam erupted when the touchdown was ruled valid.

"I saw it on the replay and it looked perfectly legal to me," Noll siad. "and the fans were not unruly, just happy."

In Washington, Larry Brown, the Redskins' one-man rushing gang, said he was at only 90 per cent efficiency against Green Bay Sunday as the Redskins won 16-3.

APPRECIATE

"It wasn't until about 7 p.m. Sunday night that I could really sit back and appreciate what we had accomplished," Brown said. "Until then, I was just recuperating and catching my breath. I'm probably about only 90 per cent but I'll be ready for the Cowboy game. You've got to play in the playoffs."

The Miami-Pittsburgh game will begin at noon EDT and will be telecast nationally by NBC, Channel 4. The Dallas-Washington game will begin at 3 p.m. EST and will be carried by CBS, Channel 5. There will be a blackout within the 75-mile radius.

Sharon Wins 2 Tennis Crowns

Sharon Walsh is spending the holidays 10,248 miles from home, but shed no tears for her. She got what she wanted for Christmas.

The tennis player from San Rafael Saturday won the women's singles championship in a Sugar Circuit tournament in Capetown, South Africa, adding that title to the mixed doubles crown she won Friday. Only a defeat in the finals of the women's doubles dampened her holiday cheer.

The singles victory came in a slam-bang, 6-0, 5-7, 6-4 match with South Africa's No. 1 woman player, Pat Pretorius. "Sharon called us and said it was a terrific match," said her father, Les, a San Rafael photographer. "She said the people down there gave both players a standing ovation after it was over."

Miss Pretorius got even in the women's doubles, when she and South Africa's top-ranked junior player, Ilana Kloss, beat Miss Walsh and Daniele Bouteleux of France, 6-2, 6-4.

Miss Walsh and Jergen Fassbender of West Germany Friday defeated Miss Pretorius and Pat Cramer of South Africa, 6-2, 6-4, for the mixed doubles title.

Miss Walsh will continue to compete on the Sugar Circuit until late January, and will play this week at Port Elizabeth, her father said.

Hockey Team Aide Dismisses Himself

BALTIMORE (UPI)—General Manager Terry Reardon fired himself as head coach of the American Hockey League Baltimore Clippers Monday and named veteran defenseman Jim Morrison as his replacement. Morrison will become a player-coach while Reardon will concentrate on his front-office duties.

Reardon blamed recent hockey expansion and the creation of the World Hockey Association for his club's misfortune this year—Baltimore has won the Western Division of the AHL the past two seasons but is deep in last place this season with a 5-19-7 record.

Two Stabbed In Incident At Soledad

SOLEDAD (AP) — Two Soledad Prison inmates have been stabbed to death and two others wounded in an incident a prison official says involved rival Mexican groups.

Guards found the bleeding bodies in two central facility housing units Monday, said George Baker, Soledad information officer.

"This appeared to be a continuation of a struggle between two rival Mexican factions, the New Familia and the Mexican Mafia." Baker said in a statement. "It appears to be that members of both factions were hurt in the incident."

He said tension between the two Mexican-American prisoner groups had been building in recent months, Baker said the nature of the incident was not known, but several crudely made blade-type weapons have been found. The Monterey County district attorney's office is investigating.

Baker identified the dead men as Frank Villalobos, 24, of San Joaquin County, who had been at Soledad since May, 1972, serving a term for attempted escape from a state prison; and Pablo Najera, 28, also at San Joaquin County, at Soledad since May, 1971, on a first-degree robbery conviction.

The wounded prisoners, Joe Garcia, 30, and Arthur Chavez, 33, were in satisfactory condition at the prison hospital, Baker said.

He said another incident involving the rival prison-based gangs occurred last week at the state prison in Chino.

Robbers Take Cash At Church

FRESNO, Calif. (UPI) — Armed bandits invaded a church during Christmas Eve services and robbed six members of the congregation of a total of $80.

Police said that despite the intrusion of three bandits, one of them armed with a shiny revolver, the services continued at the Church of God in West Fresno.

No report was made, police added, until an hour after the holdup. Purses and wallets of worshipers were taken.

The Children Play Cupid In Marriage

BENTON HARBOR, Mich. (UPI) —In a Christmas season surprise from their nine children, Royce R. Champion and his second wife were married for a second time while Champion was lying in a hospital bed.

Champion and his ex-wife, Leona, both 46, of Benton Harbor had been planning to remarry for some time, but an extended illness and money troubles prevented that.

So his five children from a previous marriage and her four played Cupid, surprising them three days before Christmas with ceremony plans — complete with flowers, cake and guest list of Berrien General Hospital employes.

"It was supposed to be a Christmas Day surprise," Mrs. Champion said Monday. "But they had to let us know ahead of time so we could get a marriage license."

Mrs. Champion wore a knee-length red dress for the ceremony. A shirt, tie and sport coat was placed over Champion's hospital gown.

The Champions were divorced in 1969 following an eight-year marriage because of "the usual troubles," Mrs. Champion said.

"But we knew almost from the start it was a mistake. Neither of us found anyone else we liked. I guess we were always in love with each other," said Mrs. Champion.

It was Mrs. Champion's eldest daughter, Sandra, 22, who instigated the plot, collecting money from her natural siblings and step brothers and sisters, ranging in age from 25 to 15.

"She knows just how to make her mother happy," Mrs. Champion said.

Champion, widowed in his first marriage, has been in and out of the hospital since last spring, suffering a back injury in a fall on a carpentry job and four heart attacks. He has been out of work since the fall.

His latest hospital stay has been four weeks long, and doctors say it will be at least a couple of more weeks before he's able to go home.

"I really don't feel like a new bride," Mrs. Champion said. "I guess that'll have to wait until I can bring him home. Until then, I'll just take care of him, like I always wanted to."

Boy's Dream Comes True

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Danny Roberts' dream of becoming a San Francisco fireman came true—11 years earlier than he expected.

The 9-year-old youngster is Engine Company 41's biggest fan, friend and volunteer worker.

Sunday, Fire Chief Keith Calden made Danny "an honorary member of Engine Company 41, by the order of the officers and men of the company."

A red wagon, officer's belt, citation, a fireman's card and a box of candy went along with the Christmas presentation by Calden, with Engine 41 friends looking on outside Danny's house.

Park To Begin Six-Year Term

SEOUL (UPI) — South Korean President Park Chung-hee will take up his new six-year presidential term Wednesday, returning his nation to full constitutional rule based on a new political order.

Park, elected Saturday to the new term by the National Conference for Unification, will take the oath of office in an inaugural ceremony to be held at Changchung Municipal Gymnasium. Shortly before his inauguration, the government will officially endorse a new constitutional law adopted through a national referendum Nov. 21.

With the new basic law going into force and Park inaugurated, full constitutional government will be restored and political activities that were banned over the past two and a half months will be allowed to resume.

Brother Dead From Quarrel

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A Christmas night quarrel between two brothers has resulted in one of them being killed and the other being charged with murder.

Police said the victim, David B. Schouten, 34, and his brother, Ralph Schouten, 37, had been quarreling over something David had said in a Christmas telephone call to their grandmother.

Police said Ralph was shot in the chest.

Officers were summoned by the younger brother.

Thieves Take The Turkey, Too

GREENWICH, N.Y. (UPI) — Walter Fish, his wife and their four children came home just before midnight Christmas Eve to find their front door had been forced open.

All the presents had been stolen from under the Christmas tree. When they looked in the refrigerator, they saw that even the famiily turkey had been taken.

Speedy Drive To Freedom

HOF, Germany (AP) — An East German electrician caught Communist border guards napping early today and rammed his speeding auto through three border barriers on the Berlin-Hof autobahn to escape into West Germany. Bavarian police reported.

Not realizing he had already crossed the border, the refugee kept his foot on the gas and shattered another autobahn crossing gate manned by Bavarian border police. The police gave chase to the battered car.

When they caught up with the electrician, his first question was' "Am I in West Germany?" Assured that he was, the refugee gave a sigh of relief.

Sailor Lass Not Happy With Navy

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — Life aboard ship with nearly 500 men isn't all it's cracked up to be, according to at least one Navy lass.

Rebecca Johnson, 18, is one of 40 women aboard the USS Sanctuary, the only co-ed ship in the Navy.

"Things may change, but at this time I don't feel I'd be suited for Navy life," Miss Johnson said while visiting her home during Christmas. She said she doesn't care much for the strict regulations.

"They made restrictions (in boot camp) that if a guy talked to one of us he could be put in the brig for a month," Miss Johnson said. "But sometimes when no one was looking, they would walk by and try to act funny."

There were a few secret boot camp romances but "about the only time a couple could see each other was in church or something like that."

At the end of boot camp, Miss Johnson volunteered to serve on the hospital ship Sanctuary and was sent to Norfolk, Va., for training as a ship's clerk. Two weeks ago she was permanently assigned to the Sanctuary, which is undergoing remodeling at San Francisco.

Miss Johnson said she and the other women have been well received by the rest of the crew.

"The guys try to help us when we're carrying boxes and things like that," she said. "Being on board is interesting. I've never been on a ship that big."

She said the ship is totally integrated except for the women's quarters, which are off limits to men.

But she said that as interesting as the Sanctuary might be, it doesn't really make up for having to do everything the Navy way. She said she doubted that when her hitch is up in 2 1-2 years she would sign up again.

Protest Handed To Nixon Leader

MOUNTAIN LAKES, N.J. (UPI) —Harry L. Sears, chairman of President Nixon's New Jersey re-election campaign, promised to pass along to the President a message from some 100 local citizens who protested renewed bombing in North Vietnam in front of Sears' home Christmas Day.

"I was surprised and disappointed at the renewal of bombing," Sears told newsmen. However, he said, "There's nobody in my opinion who wants more desperately to end the war than he (Nixon) does. I'm not at this point prepared to abandon him."

Leaders of the demonstrators handed Sears a page-long statement calling on those "who were responsible for the reelection of the President to disavow their role."

Gorillas Get Visit From Santa

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — Santa Claus didn't forget four young gorillas at Woodland Park.

They had a special party yesterday at which they were given wrapped packages containing their favorite foods.

The packages were attached to a fur tree in the zoo's great ape house.

FISH AND GAME

Memorable Trip To Marysville

By AL GIDDINGS

Sidelights of a duck hunt. A couple of days ago, Kurt Kalemba, my neighbor here in Woodacre, invited me up to his duck club near Marysville.

We planned to go the evening before, to sleep at the clubhouse, and to beat driving up in that dangerous morning fog. Enroute that evening, we talked about duck hunting.

Kurt said he has been missing shots a lot; he asked for my suggestion. I told him to increase his lead, and to be sure that he was swinging his gun with the bird's flight. Kurt also mentioned he had difficulty retrieving a duck shot in the pond because of the soft and uneven mud bottom. To this, I answered that we had my dog Bruno along who would retrieve every bird for us, so that we wouldn't have to leave the blind. When Kurt started driving fast, I asked him why he was rushing. He replied "I have the dinner for the gang, so they will be waiting".

WHEN WE ARRIVED at the clubhouse, a car was pulling out. In the car were three of the best looking girls of Marysville and three of the club duck hunters. We checked that car out, and were immediately invited to a birthday dinner party at the Lotus, a famous Marysville Chinese restaurant. We forgot about Kurt's dinner plans and, so we went to town. In town, we encountered half the town of Marysville; they were there to celebrate a gal's birthday! One of the girls, during the introductions, said I had checked her hunting at Pt. Reyes two weeks ago. It's a small world!

AT THE RESTAURANT, which also had a bar, the seating arrangements called for each gal sitting with some man other than her husband. These gals were all young, good looking, and dressed to kill. At one period of the evening, all the Marysville husbands were out at the bar, leaving us poor duck hunters to entertain the ladies. (Isn't this a likely story?) Can you imagine our wives walking in just about then?

The point of this yarn is to tell you wives that if you ever find your husband, who has left home in his duck clothes and with a day's beard stubble, in a Chinese restaurant with a good looking gal, just don't say a word.

I don't know what Kurt's wife will say when he brings home that meat loaf dinner she prepared for the hunt! About midnight, when the revelry was at a high pitch, I heard a horn blowing on the main street. Kurt mentioned that it sounded like his car's horn. I figured that someone had just been married. The blasting of the horn continued. Finally, we looked out the window; a huge crowd was all around Kurt's car. We rushed out to see what was happening. There was Bruno the dog sitting on the horn; the crowd was roaring with laughter. I guess Bruno figured it was time to go home. We let him out, and everyone petted the pooch. He had his party too! With that, Kurt and I headed for the clubhouse.

After breakfast, we went out to the duck ponds. The shooting was slow, as the birds stayed generally out of range, but Kurt, anxious to try bigger leads, nailed a mallard that sailed about 300 yards.

BRUNO DIDN'T see the bird so Kurt gave it a go; he returned empty handed. I took Bruno up there, and in two minutes he recovered the bird. About two hours later, Kurt sailed another. We both went up after this one, but finding it looked to be an impossibility to us. But Bruno retrieved the bird. It was a cock sprig. In Kurt's mind, Bruno was a hero. Kurt got two more birds — he must have been leading them 20 feet, because they were all 60 yards out. I didn't get a bird! Kurt's four birds, two mallards and two sprig, made him high man for the day at the club. I'm telling you that these duck hunts can sure be tough at times.

WHA ROUNDUP

Blazers, Raiders Behind Eight-Ball

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The Philadelphia Blazers and New York Raiders had one thing in common Monday afternoon. They were behind the eight-ball.

The New England Whalers scored three goals in a two and a half minute burst in the first period and went on to defeat the Raiders 8-2 and remain two points ahead of the Cleveland Crusaders in the World Hockey Association's Eastern Division race. The Crusaders got the benefit of goalie Gerry Cheevers' fourth shutout on home ice to top the Blazers 8-0.

In the other WHA game, Rosaire Paiement scored one goal and assisted on the other two to give the Chicago Cougars their third consecutive triumph, a 3-2 victory over the Alberta Oilers.

John French scored at 8:59, Terry Caffery tallied unassisted at 10:56 and Kevin Ahearn tipped in a long Ted Green shot at 11:30 to give New England a 3-1 first period lead, more than offsetting Bobby Sheehan's early New York goal.

Tom Webster scored twice for the Whalers in the second period, and Tim Sheehy, Brit Selby and John Danby beat Ian Wilkie, who substituted for Pete Donnelly at the start of the third period in the Raiders goal, for the Whalers' third period scores. Craig Reichmuth added New York's last tally with 1:36 to go in the game.

Cheevers, who lowered his goals-against average to 2.31 in the Crusaders' shutout, had to make only 22 saves and got great help from his defensemen, while Blazers' netminders Marcel Paille and Bernie Parent had to handle 50 Cleveland shots.

Seals Visit Canucks In Vancouver Battle

VANCOUVER, B.C. (UPI)—It's boxing day in Canada as the California Golden Seals call on the Vancouver Canucks for an afternoon game.

Boxing day is when tradesmen get gift boxes and the Seals would love a present on a victory from the Canucks, who have been in a slump of their own.

Seals captain Bert Marshall, whose absence from the backline has been a special disaster for the Seals, played briefly in Sunday night's loss to Los Angeles and might be ready for more action today. His team needs him.

The one bright spot in the Seals' abysmal showing of late has been the play of the line of Joey Johnston-Walt McKechnie-Craig Patrick, which has averaged better than two points a game and not given anything away on defense, either.

Patrick particularly has been a gem. His eight goals already match his total for all last season.

After today's tussle, the Seals return home to face Philadelphia Wednesday and fellow cellar dweller Long Island Friday night.

NHL Sabres' Goalie Crozier Hospitalized

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI)—The Buffalo Sabres of the National Hockey League announced Monday night that goalie Roger Crozier has been hospitalized for an indefinite period in Toronto General Hospital for an apparent flareup of pancreatitis.

To replace Crozier, the Sabres have called up Norman (Rocky) Farr from the Cincinnati Swords, their American Hockey League farm club.

Abdul-Jabbar Proves Point In NBA Play

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

"When you need a bucket, it's a lot easier to get it when you can go to a guy who throws it in from directly above the basket."

That's what Kansas City-Omaha Coach Bob Cousy said about the Milwaukee Bucks' 7-foot-2 center, Kareem Abdul Jabbar, Monday night after he scored 32 points, including 10 of the Bucks' last 17, in a 104-99 Milwaukee victory. The win, coupled with Chicago's 115-108 loss to Phoenix Christmas afternoon, gave Milwaukee a 4 1-2-game bulge over the Bulls in the National Basketball Association's Midwest Division.

OTHER GAMES

In other NBA action Monday night, New York edged Detroit 113-110 and Sidney Wicks' career-high 38 points led Portland to a 116-113 triumph over Seattle, the Sonics' 13th consecutive road loss.

The Kings moved from an 89-83 deficit to a tie at 95-all with 5:02 to go on a basket by Don Kojis, and had an opportunity to beat the Bucks, a feat they had not accomplished since Dec. 19, 1970—10 losses ago.

Abdul-Jabbar hit with 3:58 to play and came back with a three-point play 30 seconds later to lock up the victory.

Although the zone is illegal in the NBA, Cousy said that all teams go into a zone at the end of a game.

"But every team doesn't have Abdul-Jabbar in the middle of the zone," Cousy said.

Apparently not, for Nate Archibald, scoring 34 points a game before tonight, was held to only 20, his second lowest output of the season. However, Little Nate did get 18 assists, which equaled his best output for 1972.

SUNS BLAZE

At Phoenix, Chicago led after each of the first three quarters, largely on the strength of Bob Love's 29 points, once by as many as 11 points. But the shooting of Dick Van Arsdale and Charlie Scott, who had 32 and 26 points, respectively, coupled with Lamar Green's rebounding, helped the Suns to tie the score at 99-99 with 5:12 remaining.

The Suns went ahead to stay at 105-103 on two free throws by Van Arsdale with 2:45 remaining and won their fourth consecutive game while handing the Bulls their fifth loss in their last six games.

BRADLEY

Bill Bradley scored 29 points and Dave DeBusschere and Walt Frazier added 44 more between them to move New York to within 1 1-2 games of idle Boston in the Atlantic Division.

Wicks scored 23 of his points in the first half when Portland took a 57-54 lead and sparked the Trail Blazers to a 14-point fourth-quarter lead. It was cut to one with five seconds remaining, but Charlie Davis made two free throws to put the game out of reach.

WORLD CUP PLAY

Bleak Outlook For U.S. Squad

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — "If we give 110 per cent against the Russians, we'll still lose by 10 goals," Rob Palmer of the University of Denver mused as his United States team prepared for the opening match tonight in the second annual World Cup of Ice Hockey here.

Palmer is anxious to play, but he's also a realist. The task ahead of the American team, comprised on U.S. college hockey players who have never skated together as a team, is awesome.

First of all there are the defending champions, the Soviet Union. The Russians have all but two of the players from the contingent that surprised the National Hockey League's Team Canada last summer and also won the Olympic gold medal at Japan last February.

Then there's Czechoslovakia, which won the 1972 Group A World championship. The Czechs, with most of their world tournament players on this team, posted the only victory over Russia in last year's round-robin World Cup.

Rounding out the four-team tourney will be Canada, represented by the Medicine Hat, Alta., Junior A team, which also has added other standout players from the Western Canada Junior Hockey League.

The Americans open the tourney against the Czechs tonight, and U.S. Coach Bob Johnson, of the University of Wisconsin, feels his players will do themselves credit.

"We're not going to play scared," he says. "The players are all looking forward to playing the best in the world. It's a great challenge for them."

The Czechs play the Canadians Wednesday night and the Russians Friday night to complete the Colorado Springs portion of the tournament. Action then shifts to Bloomington, Minn., where the Russians play Canada Saturday night. The United States meets Canada Dec. 31 and closes the tournament Jan. 2 against the Russians.

COACH'S CONTRACT

Redskins' Boss Pays Price For His Wants

By MILTON RICHMAN

WASHINGTON (UPI) —You wouldn't want to meet a bigger sport than Edward Bennett Williams, one of the country's top trial lawyers and president of the Washington Redskins.

He's not the type to nickel and dime you.

If he likes something and wants it, he goes out and pays top dollar.

Now you take his football coach, George Allen, who has the Redskins only one jump away from the Super Bowl.

When Edward Bennett Williams told George Allen how much he wanted him to handle his team two years ago, he didn't merely tell him, he SHOWED him.

He gave Allen a seven-year contract as general manager and head coach at $125,000 per. He also threw in a fancy place for Allen and his family to stay in plus a car and a chauffeur. So he wouldn't feel neglected, Allen also got an option on the Redskins' stock.

In return for all this, Edward Bennett Williams occasionally is allowed to set foot in the Redskins' clubhouse —if he behaves himself. Or so the local joke goes.

"I'm a lawyer," says Edward Bennett Williams. "I have a 35-man law firm to run. I don't have time to run a football team, and I don't have the inclination to. George is the man I want to run it, and he does. I still make the major policy decisions. Presidents of other organizations want to run the day-to-day operation. I don't."

In the two years Allen has worked for him, Williams says they've never had so much as a single disagreement. What's more, Williams feels Allen is worth every nickel he's getting.

"If you want something good, you've got to pay for it," says Williams. "I never got anything for nothing. Certainly nothing worthwhile.I have no regrets about the deal I made for George. He's unquestionably one of the two or three best coaches in the world. I've never seen a harder or more dedicated worker. He works, works, works, and his job is always on his mind. He thinks of nothing else.

When the Redskins captured their first post-season game in 30 years Sunday by polishing off the Green Bay Packers, 163, one of the happiest persons among the record crowd of 53,140 at Robert F. Kennedy Memorial Stadium here was Henry Kissinger, President Nixon's advisor.

Kissinger applauded vigorously and was all smiles as the scoreboard clock ran out. He wasn't any happier though than Edward Bennett Williams, who could remember the kind of Christmas it was a year ago.

Now the Redskins go against the Dallas Cowboys next Sunday and if they get past them, they go to the Super Bowl, but a year ago there was only one place for the Redskins to go and that was home. Williams remembers the whole thing well, and also remembers Allen's reaction.

"You know George," says the Redskins' owner, "He's like a German general. He thinks he's supposed to commit suicide when he loses.

"Anyway, we lost to San Francisco in the playoff game a year ago. You may remember it was a bad snap that did it.The ball was poorly handled by our punter, and the Forty Niners fell on it in the end zone and got a touchdown.

"On the plane going back home, George was inconsolable. You'd think it was the end of the world. I told him to forget it, go home, get some sleep, take a rest awhile and then start thinking about next year.

" But I couldn't get through to him at all. 'No, no, no,' he kept saying. The following morning I was still in bed sleeping when I got a call. It was George. He said, 'Ed, you're right. I'm thinking about next year. We're gonna add three minutes to our practice sessions. Do you know what we're gonna practice in those three minutes?'

"I say, no what?

"'Bad snaps,' he says.

"You know something? He had the team do it, too."

Prep Cage Tournament Tomorrow

With a reshuffled lineup, the third annual Marin Catholic Freshman Invitational basketball tournament will get underway with a schedule of four games tomorrow.

Missing will be Riordan High School of San Francisco, which won the tournament last year, and Serra of San Mateo, which took the title two years ago. Sacred Heart of San Francisco and Cardinal Newman of Santa Rosa have been added.

Tomorrow's schedule calls for Bishop O'Dowd of Oakland to play Newman at 3 p.m.; San Rafael vs. Sacred Heart, 4:30; Moreau of Hayward vs. St. Patrick's of Vallejo, 6; and Marin Catholic vs. Terra Linda, 7:30.

The O'Dowd-Newman winner will face the San Rafael-Sacred Heart winner at 6 p.m. Thursday, while the Moreau-St. Pat's winner will play the Marin Catholic-Terra Linda winner at 7:30. Losers meet earlier. Finals will be played Friday at 7:30.

The host Wildcats, who finished third and fourth in the two previous tournaments, enter this one with a 5-2 record and "the biggest team we've ever had," Gonsalves said. The 'Cats lost to O'Dowd earlier this year, 51-40.

Inter-League Play In Limbo

Combined AP & UPI

SAN DIEGO — San Diego Padre general manager E. J. (Buzzie) Bavasi says there will not be any inter-league play next season between the American and National baseball leagues.

"No chance," said Bavasi. "It only takes one vote to stop it and I've got the vote."

The Padre official said the National League expansion teams paid $10 million for their franchise while the American League teams paid only about half that much.

"We paid a big price to play in the new ballparks. I'll think about playing in the old ones (the American League parks) if they want to pay us the difference — $5 million."

Officials of both leagues are to meet Jan. 11 at Chicago to discuss the topic and a proposed rule to adopt a designated pinch-hitter or pinch-runner for pitchers.

Football

LAKE TAHOE — The Washington Redskins and Miami Dolphins have been installed as favorites by Harrah's Tahoe Racebook for Sunday's National Football League conference championships.

The Redskins were listed Monday as 3½ point favorites to beat the Dallas Cowboys for the National Conference title.

The Dolphins are 2½ point picks over the Pittsburgh Steelers in the American Conference.

PASADENA — Anthony Davis, the University of Southern California's sensational sophomore running back, was named winner of the W. J. Voit Award today as the Pacific Coast's Player of the Year.

The 5-foot-9, 185-pound tailback led the Pacific-eight Conference in rushing with 1,034 yards and in scoring with 108 points.

Tennis

MELBOURNE, Australia — Karl Meiler of West Germany, a virtual unknown, upset top-seeded Ken Rosewall 6-2, 6-3, 6-2 in the second round Monday of the $53,500 Australian Open men's tennis championships.

In another surprise, Bob Giltman of Australia ousted countryman Mal Anderson, the No. 3 seed, 6-7, 6-2, 6-2, 7-6.

Historic Structures Disappearing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — James Biddle doesn't like to see America's history paved over.

Biddle is president of the National Trust for Historic Preservation, a group devoted to working for the preservation of historic structures which are in danger of being swept away by progress.

Writing in Travel Leisure magazine, Biddle said that of 1,500 buildings listed by the federal government in 1933 as having historical significance, nearly half have been torn down.

"We Americans must decide if we want to preserve what we have or if we just want to pave it over, high-rise it and factory it," he said. "We've got to decide at what point your land ceases to be your land, at what point you must yield to overall planning."

Among the architectural endangered species about which Biddle's group is concerned are the following:

—The U.S. Capitol, endangered by a proposal to extend the west front, the only remaining portion of the original exterior.

—Grand Central Station in New York, endangered by talk of a high-rise office building over the present station, which the group says would destroy its character.

—Potomac Park in Washington, site of the Lincoln and Jefferson memorials endangered by the proposed route of Interstate 695.

—The old Washington Post Office, a Romanesque Revival building built in 1897, threatened with demolition.

—Drayton Hall in Charleston, S.C., considered the finest example of a South Carolina plantation house, but which has been put up for sale.

—The Delta Queen, Mississippi River paddlewheel steamboat, threatened because it cannot meet fire provisions of 1966 Safety at Sea Law.

—The Mission Inn in Riverside, Calif., 19th century hotel, in jeopardy although there is a proposal to save it by converting it into a cultural community with apartments, shops, theaters and galleries.

—The Reliance Building in Chicago, one of the few surviving examples of the Chicago school of architecture, threatened because it fails to produce the revenues possible from its location.

—Hotel Del Coronado, a Victorian-style seaside resort outside San Diego, Calif., located on land so valuable tax pressure threatens it.

—Union Station, New London, Conn., one of the remaining grand old-style rail terminals, threatened by the continued consolidation of railroads.

"In this country," said Biddle, "we've got to re-think the whole business of land use, re-examine the principle that the best use is the most profitable use."

Famed Violin Given To Israel

JERUSALEM (UPI) -- Mexican violinist Henry Szeryng gave Jerusalem a 1743 Stradivarious violin Sunday during a concert of the Israel philharmonic orchestra. The Polish-born musician named it the Kinor David Stradivarious in honor of what Jews call the city of King David.

Szeryng said the violin was intended for the use of outstanding Israeli violinists.

Yule Blazes Leave 46 Dead In U.S.

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

At least 46 persons were killed during the Christmas weekend in fires, some believed to have been caused by Christmas decorations.

In one of the blazes, a family of four died when fire swept their home in Avalon Hills, a suburb of Indianapolis, Ind. Firemen speculated the fire started when Christmas tree lights were left burning all night.

In Woodbridge, N.J., Christmas decorations were believed to be the cause of a fire that killed a 6-year-old girl and severely burned her father Monday. The girl, Pamela Claesson, and her father, Carl, were sleeping when the fire broke out.

Five persons were killed Monday when fire destroyed a two story home in Schodack Landing, N.Y. Three of the dead were children. Three others suffered injuries in the blaze. The fire was believed to have started in the kitchen near a wood-burning stove used for heating.

A 4-year-old girl died in a blaze that damaged five frame homes in the Borough of Queens, New York City, where nine families, 50 persons in all, were made homeless.

An overloaded circuit was blamed for a fire in Susquehanna, Pa., that killed two children.

A dozen homes were gutted by fire near the UCLA campus in Los Angeles Monday when 45-mile-an-hour winds spread the blaze from one house. There were no injuries.

Sihanouk Pledges Total Resistance

HONG KONG (UPI) —Prince Norodom Sinahouk, head of the exile government of Cambodia, told the North Vietnamese people in a message from Peking that "No escalation of the armed aggression of the U.S.A. can bend our knees," the New China News Agency reported today.

The official Chinese agency quoted Sihanouk as saying:

"Our choice is made, no escalation of the armed aggression of U.S.A. can bend our knees. The U.S. Air Force, the strongest and the most murderous of the world and of all times, has already sustained the most disastrous and the most ignominious defeat in its history, which is inflictead on it by the supremely heroic and talented defenders of the soil and air of the DRVN (North Vietnam).

200 Hurt When Bullring Tumbles

BOGOTA (UPI) —The grandstand of a village bullring about 25 miles from Bogota collapsed Monday while about 2,000 spectators were cheering a trio of local matadors.

Officials said about 200 persons were injured, about 30 of them seriously. They said they did not know what caused the wooden grandstand to fall.

WALL STREET SCENE

Securities Industry Is Noticing Earnings Squeeze

By S. M. MARSHALL
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

NEW YORK — Wall Street is gripped in an earnings squeeze once again, hardly two years after it emerged from one of the most crisis-filled periods in its history.

Profits are disappearing at brokerage houses because of sharply rising costs, the advent of negotiated sales charges on large transactions, and generally slow trading volume in the stock market.

The situation is especially disturbing to leaders of the securities industry because the factors causing the falling profits are largely beyond the industry's control. No paperwork jam-up in the Street's own back offices is to blame this time.

Because of the same inflation, prevalent elsewhere in American industry, the costs of skilled labor, of communications lines, of processing equipment, and even the rent have moved up sharply.

At the same time, the industry's revenue base has been shrinking. The unfixing of commission charges on the portion of transactions above $300,000 in value has resulted in sharply lower commission income on those trades.

Volume throughout the securities markets has simultaneously shrunk. As a consequence, Wall Street on the one hand is taking in a smaller percentage of each trade in the form of commissions while the number of trades on the other hand had declined.

William C. Freund, vice-president and chief economist for the New York Stock Exchange, disclosed at an allied members' meeting that a sampling of member firms that account for two-thirds of the industry's revenues showed that they incurred an average monthly loss of $2.5 million on their commission business in July and August.

He disclosed also that the group's average monthly profits for the first eight months of 1972 had fallen to $43.7 million from $53.1 million in the comparable 1971 period. Moreover, these figures include revenues from all sources, which means the losses on commission income are factored in.

Dr. Freund said the advent of negotiated commission charges in 1971 had cut total commission revenues by $70 million that year and would subtract another $10 million this year, since the break point for negotiation has been dropped from $500,000 to $300,000.

Pressures exist in Congress and at the Securities and Exchange Commission for a further reduction to the $100,000 level. But James J. Needham, chairman of the Big Board, has called for a delay in any such move until the industry's profits rebound.

That they are in a sharp decline has been clearly evident in the financial reports for the September quarter publicly revealed by some of Wall Street's largest and traditionally most profitable houses.

Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, for example, said its thrid-quarter net income before an extraordinary charge had fallen 13.3 per cent, even though gross revenues had risen 4.7 per cent.

Similar results were reported by Reynolds Securities and Paine, Webber, Jackson & Curtis, which always are among the most profitable firms in the Street. Hayden Stone, another big house, reported a 97 per cent profit decline for the quarter.

Walston & Co., still another major concern, reported a loss of more than $588,000 for the fiscal quarter ended Aug. 31. A number of other firms that do not report their results publicly also are understood to have operated with deficits recently.

Some houses managed to report gains — for example, Dean Witter & Co., E. F. Hutton & Co. and Donaldson, Lufkin & Jenrette. But Hutton and DLJ both had slimmer profit margins in the third quarter, which means their increased earnings came entirely from increased revenues.

Even Salomon Brothers, tops in the institutional block trading business and a virtual money mint for its partners in recent years, suffered a 33 per cent profits decline in the fiscal year ended Sept. 30.

Perhaps the only encouraging aspect of all the bad news is that it is not likely to threaten the average investor, as it did in the crisis of 1969-70. There still are no indications this time of any difficulties in processing paperwork.

Capital regulations have been strengthened and the ability to monitor brokerage-house finances has been improved. Still, a number of mergers are expected to occur as firms give up trying to cope with the profit squeeze by themselves.

Marlennan Corp. Stock Is Expected To Increase

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I hold a very large block of Marlennan Corp. (NYSE) which has depreciated considerably. What would your advice be?—D.T. Q. Marlennan, of which I hold 300-shares, has dropped 20 points since I bought. Should I hold or sell? — D.C.

A. Unusual expenses and lower-than-anticipated revenue growth has exerted pressure on this insurance broker's profit margins. Nevertheless earnings should reach $1.95 a share for 1972 (a 5 percent year-to-year gain). The additional expenses were related to a major relocation involving some 40 per cent of corporate personnel. The company's accounting method delays the accrual of commissions by approximately a year. For this reason the full impact of the economic recovery has not yet been reflected in earnings.

A gradual return to the company's strong growth rate of 15 per cent annually set in the 1966-71 period may be achieved by late 1973. This could be generated by increasing emphasis being placed on corporate service on a national basis. To that end internal restructuring has been effected and two mergers are in process. With patience this issue should work out for you.

Q. I am a widow in my early sixties. All my money is in the savings bank getting 5½ per cent interest. To keep my taxes from getting any higher, would it be better if I bought U.S. Savings bonds series E. — E.S.

A. The postponement of income tax liability on savings bond interest until redemption would be advantageous in reducing your tax burden. Thus if you do not need the savings interest for income, I would favor purchasing E bonds. With the added one-half per cent bonus on bonds held to maturity, you will not suffer any loss in the rate of interest you will receive.

E bond sales continue to set records, and have exceeded redemptions for the last 26 months. As of Nov. 30, 1972, some $57.8 billion in Series E, H and Freedom Shares were outstanding. This all-time high level is more than $3 billion above the year-earlier figure.

Prices Move Higher On Stock Mart

NEW YORK (UPI) — For the second consecutive session, the market moved higher on the New York Stock Exchange today as investors got over their initial disappointment with the breakdown of the Paris peace talks and resumption of U. S. bombing over North Vietnamese cities. Trading was moderate.

The exchange observed two minutes of silence in respect for former President Harry S Truman who died today.

The market was bothered some by the boost in the prime interest rate to 6 per cent by many banks, brokers said, but investors still remained confident in the economy.

Gulf Oil was the most active issue, up ¼ to 27 on 82,600 shares.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange declined in moderate trading. Bro-Dart Industries was the most active Amex issue, off ¼ to 3 on 87,700 shares including a block trade of 83,200 shares at 2 ¾.

On the Big Board, Mountain Fuel Supply jumped 4 points. The company said today a well in southwestern Wyoming produced a significant flow of natural gas.

Horizon Corp., the land developer, was active and off 1. The company reported a sharply lower second quarter net.

National Airlines gained 1 ½. The firm said it expects its upward earnings trend to continue into next year.

Computer and electronics issues were mostly higher. IBM jumped 4 ¾, Texas Instruments 2 ⅞.

Glamor issues also moved higher. Walt Disney added 1 ½ and Wrigley and Polaroid 1 each.

Eastman Kodak tacked on 1 in the mixed chemical group. Rails, steels, airlines and aircrafts were mixed in fractions. Motors were gainers with Ford ahead ⅞.

Quik Stop Markets Planning New Branch In Santa Venetia

Quik Stop Markets Inc., with headquarters in Fremont, hopes to open a new branch store at 750 Adrian Way in Santa Venetia sometime next year.

The site is at the corner of La Pasada and Adrian Way, where Leswing Communications Inc., a publishing firm, is located. The new market will be built next to Leswing.

Vince Depolo, buyer for Quik Stop Markets, said the Santa Venetia store is only in the planning stages, and it would be at least five or six months before the new store is built. He said Quik Stop has existing stores in San Anselmo, Petaluma and two in Santa Rosa.

The company is applying for an offsale beer and wine license for the Santa Venetia outlet.

KENNETH M. DANIELS of Mill Valley and DONALD L. FENN of Larkspur have been named assistant vice presidents of systems and planning in Crocker Bank's data processing center, San Francisco.

Daniels joined Crocker Bank in 1969. Before the promotion, he was a systems officer in the data processing center. He attended Kansas City University.

Fenn

Daniels

Fenn joined Crocker Bank in 1970 and was also a systems officer. He attended Yale University and is a graduate of Earlham College in Indiana.

THE MEAT and delicatessen department of Home Market at 407 San Anselmo Avenue in San Anselmo will be sold to new owners next month.

George R. Bianchini of San Anselmo, who bought the market from William Franchini last March, will retain the grocery and produce portion but will sell the meat and delicatessen department to Melvin C. Cervelli of San Anselmo.

Cervelli is no newcomer to the store. He owned the grocery department of Home Market until about eight years ago when he sold it to Franchini and went to work for Embee Market in Tiburon.

Cervelli is scheduled to take over the meat and delicatessen department on or after Jan. 2, 1973.

RICHARD E. OSBORN of Novato has taken over the former Bill's Texaco Service at 915 Diablo Avenue, Novato, and has expanded customer service.

Rich Osborn's Texaco specializes in auto waxing and steam cleaning, front end overhaul and alignment, electronic engine tuneup and brake service. It also provides U-Haul trailers.

Osborn bought the station on Dec. 14 from Bill E. Naughton, also of Novato. Osborn also operates the Union Oil Station at Highway 101 and Olive Avenue and has 20 years of experience in the service station business.

EVE E. AULERICH of Fairfax, office supervisor at the Greenbrae office of California State Automobile Association, has completed 40 years of service with CSAA. She received a commendation for "long and devoted service" from Neal Garrison, executive vice president of CSAA in San Francisco.

Mrs. Aulerich first joined CSAA in San Rafael 44 years ago (in 1928), but because of broken service, she did not complete her 40 years until Oct. 25 this year.

"Mrs. Aulerich is a jack of all trades," said John A. Govi, district manager in the Greenbrae office. "She supervises the entire office; there isn't a job here that she can't do."

REALTORS BREAKFAST — Just a reminder that the Marin County Board of Realtors is dispensing with its weekly breakfast this week and next. The next breakfast meeting is set for 8 a.m. Jan. 9 at the Corte Madera Lions Club.

CARL ENDEMANN of Larkspur, a distributor of Nutrilite food supplements and natural skin care products for more than 20 years, is back from a three-day seminar in Ada, Mich., where key distributors were introduced to Amway products. In January, the sales forces of the two corporations will merge, and Nutrilite key distributors will become Amway direct distributors.

Endemann will continue operating from 24 Frances Avenue, Larkspur. He started as Nutrilite distributor in Sausalito in 1950 and moved to Larkspur in 1955.

A Visit To The Sad 49er Dressing Room

Trying to forget what happened last weekend to both Bay Area pro football teams, but still remembering, fans can be forgiven for not getting overly excited about the upcoming NFL conference championship games Sunday.

Dallas will be playing against Washington for the National Football Conference title. Great. Pittsburgh will go against Miami for the American Conference title. Great.

But the way Dallas and Pittsburgh got there left 49er and Raider fans in a state of shock that still lasts today. What happened last Saturday had to be the most shocking day in Bay Area pro sports. A loss is a loss, most of them the kind that can be forgotten quickly, with maybe a day or two of thought. But the kind of losses San Francisco and Oakland suffered? Those players will be remembering the circumstances through the entire summer.

The Raiders' loss was on a fluke play when Steeler Franco Harris caught a batted down pass and ran 60 yards for a touchdown with five seconds left in the game. Result: Raiders lose, 13-7. Some watched in horror on television. I was depending on the radio, listening to Bill King describe it all while I sat in my car in the parking lot at Candlestick Park before the start of the 49er game with Dallas. I thought that would be the only stunning shocker of the day. How wrong I was.

THE 49ERS were beaten in a game they "couldn't" lose. They were in front of the Cowboys, 28-16, with only one minute and 53 seconds left. Seven plays and one on-sides kick later the 49ers were beaten, 30-28.

By then many fans were already in their cars, having left the stadium early thinking of certain victory for the 49ers. The fans who remained sat there stunned by the quick turnaround.

The 49er dressing room was like a mortuary. A feeling of shock and disappointment hung heavily in the air as reporters searched their minds to find questions for players who didn't feel much like answering.

LONG AFTER the first questions were being asked, veteran tackle Charlie Krueger sat there on a chair in front of his cubicle, still wearing his football pants. There was still some tape to pull off his massive hands.

"This is a good team. It's a hell of a good team," he said looking around at the slowly emptying room. "We went through tough spots all year. Maybe this loss helped us become a better team. We'll be a really good team next year."

Will Charlie, a 35-year-old 14-year veteran be part of that 1973 team?

"If I am at the weight limit coach (Dick) Nolan sets for me I will be at training camp next year," said Krueger. "If I'm not at that weight he wouldn't let me through the training camp gate. Dick Nolan is a fine, fair coach. He has to be to have an old guy like me around."

THEN KRUEGER looked over at offensive guard Woody Peoples who was quietly dressing four feet away. "You guys should go over and congratulate Woody for making all-pro. I would really hate to play against that guy all day . . . he holds on every play."

That crack made Peoples smile faintly. Charlie has a way of picking up a fellow player's spirit when he needs it most.

Preston Riley will be reliving that on-sides kick which he bobbled for a long time. Dallas kicker Toni Fritsch sent a spinning, twisting kick toward Riley and it bounced off his fingers, Mel Renfro recovering on the 50. Three plays later came the winning touchdown from Roger Staubach to Ron Sellers.

When asked about the muff, Riley said, "I just missed it." Then he looked down, slowly shaking his head.

Some might have thought back to 1957 when the 49ers, in a playoff for the Western Division title, held a 7-7 lead in the third quarter against the Detroit Lions, and then stole defeat from the jaws of victory, losing, 31-27.

That was a slow, agonizing thing, the 49ers gasping and finally bleeding to death. Last Saturday death came surprisingly quickly, a bullet in the heart.

OVER WASHINGTON

49ers' Coach Nolan Picks Cowboys' Win

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—San Francisco 49er Coach Dick Nolan thinks Dallas can beat Washington in Sunday's National Football Conference playoff.

"I think Dallas can win it all," he said in the wake of his team's unbelievable 30-28 loss to the Cowboys. "Sure, Washington looked good beating Green Bay, but Dallas is a better club."

The Cowboys' win helped the Redskins, who would have had to play the 49ers at San Francisco but now can play host to the Cowboys.

Nolan praised Washington Coach George Allen for going with a five-man line Sunday against the tough Green Bay running attack and so-so Packer air game.

"He gambled and won that he could put five men in front to stop John Brockington and MacArthur Lane and still contain the pass."

With his playoff hopes shattered, Nolan is turning his attention to the forthcoming draft.

"We're looking for another linebacker," he says. "We carried five instead of the usual six and it carried some problems."

Turning to last Saturday's game, Nolan says "it's hard not to look back and wonder what would have happened if we beat the Cowboys last Saturday. But we lost, even if it was in the final minute and a half. The thing to do now is to look ahead towards next year and what we can do to improve ourselves."

Raiders' Coach Madden Seething

OAKLAND (UPI)—John Madden, still seething two days after his Oakland Raiders were knocked out of the National Football League playoffs by the most controversial play in years, said Monday he was positive his team "was had."

After spending part of Christmas Eve viewing films of the final seconds of the Oakland-Pittsburgh game during which time Franco Harris of the Steelers scooped up a deflected pass and scored the game-winning touchdown, the Raider coach said he was positive defensive back Jack Tatum did not touch the ball.

If Tatum had not touched the ball, the pass should have been ruled incomplete with the Raiders holding a 7-6 edge with just five seconds left on the clock.

Instead, referee Fred Swearingen, after consultation with NFL officials in the pressbox, ruled Tatum had indeed deflected the ball into the hands of Harris and that the touchdown stood for the Steelers' 13-7 victory Saturday.

"What Jack did was give him (Frenchy Fuqua, the intended receiver) a good shot from behind as the ball hit him on the shoulder pad," Madden explained. "And then, after the ball went to Harris, they clipped Phil Villapiano (Raider linebacker).

"But there was no way they were going to call it the other way with all those people out on the field. They couldn't have any other decision with all those wild people on the field. Something would have happened. Those people might have killed them (the officials)."

Madden also insisted that NFL officials in the pressbox established precedent by making the touchdown decision from the television instant replay.

"The officials told me they didn't know what happened," Madden said. "And they were going to check upstairs to see what it was. The referee went in to use the dugout telephone and when he came out, he called it a touchdown."

Oakland writers said Steeler Public Relations Director Joe Gordon told reporters in the pressbox that the NFL officials had made the decision from the replay. However, NFL officials denied it.

"The decision was made on the field," said Val Pinchback of the NFL. "The referee was just phoning us to inform us of his decision."

"If that was the case, why didn't the referee just signal a touchdown before going into the dugout for his conversation?" Madden asked.

"It's just so disappointing," Madden added. "It doesn't make any sense to come down through a whole season and have it end like that. It's unfair.

"If they would admit they set that precedent then maybe we could get a recall on this game and look at those films again. But it'll never happen."

BASKETBALL

Prep Teams Schedule Is Tough

The high schools in Marin and southern Sonoma are supposed to be on vacation this week, but the schedule-makers have made sure that few of the basketball players will be able to relax. Some tough opponents have been lined up for this week.

San Marin High School, for example, must journey to Oakland for an 8 o'clock game tonight against fearsome St. Elizabeth, which is averaging almost 100 points a game and has been called by some the best team in the East Bay. Today's other game was to pit Terra Linda against the College of Marin freshmen in Kentfield at 4 p.m.

Tomorrow at 8:30 p.m., Marin Catholic will play Bishop O'Dowd in O'Dowd's tournament in Oakland. The Dragons may have graduated everybody from last year's 30-1 team, but they're still tough as their own bandbox gym, said Marin Catholic coach Dave Gonsalves.

The tournament continues through Saturday, with the Wildcats playing again Friday against the winner or loser of the Oakland Tech-San Leandro game. Also in the tourney are such luminaries as Hayward, which won the Rose City tournament, and Moreau, which beat Hayward by 30.

Other games tomorrow find Lincoln of San Francisco at Drake, 11 a.m.; Washington of San Francisco at San Rafael, 1 p.m.; and Redwood vs. Mills of

Grid Game Laden With Turnovers

MIAMI (UPI)—The players appeared to be trying too hard to land a professional football contract in the Orange Bowl Christmas night and turned the annual Shrine North-South college all-star football show into a game of turnovers.

The North team collected four second-half South bobbles for a come-from-behind 17-10 victory with two fourth-quarter touchdowns. There were a total of nine turnovers in the game.

"I don't think we found any No. 1 draft choices tonight," said San Francisco 49ers' Clarence Parker, one of the more than 75 pro scouts watching the game.

They may have found a high pick in Purdue linebacker Gary Bingham, however.

His theft of Arkansas Joe Ferguson's pass and 37-yard runback in the opening minutes of the game set up the North's first score, a 21-yard field goal by Marvin Roberts of Michigan State.

And Bingham saved the victory for the North with only 58 seconds remaaining in the game by pouncing on a fumble by Miami's Chuck Foreman.

The South had driven 80 yards to the North one-yard line and seemed to have victory in its grasp. Californian Bill Armstrong's interception of a South pass thrown by John Madeya of Louisville and 27-yard runback put the Northerners in position at the South 10 to score the tying touchdown.

Wisconsin's Rufus "Roadrunner" Ferguson crunched over from the two with 13:50 remaining in his fourth straight crack at the South line. Moments later, Foreman committed his first bobble and Kevin Riley of Villanova recovered for the North at midfield.

The winning North drive was aided by an offside penalty against the South on an attempted field goal which gave the North a first down on the South 11. Two plays later, Bob McCall of Arizona ran 14 yards untouched around left end for the winning score.

The South's Ferguson engineered a 59-yard drivein the second quarter, throwing 18 yards to David Knight of William and Mary for the touchdown 6:10 before the half.

The other Rebel score came on a 23-yard field goal by Alfred Reese of Tennessee State with 4:57 left in the third period.

Rufus Ferguson won the North's most valuable player award and Foreman, the game's leading ground gainer despite his costly fumbles, was chosen MVP for the South.

The North victory evened the series at 12-12-1, but was played on a chilly night before a sparse crowd of less than 10,000. the Shrine, however, collected $120,000 for its charities from ABC television and from ticket sales which topped 18,000.

ROSE BOWL

Ohio State Scout Sizes Up Squads

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Three teams pop into Esco Sarkkinen's mind when the Ohio State scout of nearly three decades thinks of the greatest college football squads he's seen.

Sarkkinen, completing his 27th season with the Buckeyes, prefers to think of eras rather than teams when he talks about the great ones.

"I would say the 1947-48 Michigan team, Michigan State of the mid-60s and the three Ohio State teams of Rex Kern and company," Sarkkinen said.

He refuses to put top-ranked Southern California which plays Ohio State in the Rose Bowl New Year's day, in the same class for one reason.

"This has to rank with John McKay's finest, but it's only for one season, not two or three years, like those others," he explained.

The Michigan team had trick-type plays," he said. "They could hit you with so many different offensive patterns."

Of the Michigan State squads, he said, "They had perhaps the finest defensive talent the Big 10 has ever seen. Players such as Bubba Smith and George Webster are once in a lifetime."

Kern led Ohio State to a 27-2 record in three years, including a victory over Southern Cal in the 1969 Rose Bowl.

Sarkkinen said. "It was the best for total commitment by one class.

"They had more offensive and defensive blue-chippers in balanced positions than any team I ever saw," he said of the 1968-70 Buckeye powerhouses.

However, Sarkkinen isn't underselling the top-ranked Trojans who ripped through 11 straight opponents during the season.

"All their best players are in the key positions," he said.

IN OAKLAND

Warriors Host Sonics Tonight

OAKLAND (UPI)—The Golden State Warriors seem to be jelling into a formidable unit while the Seattle SuperSonics can't seem to.

"We've had a few basic personnel problems," says Sonics coach Tom Nissalke, "but I feel we're going to get on the right track pretty soon."

The Sonics call on the Warriors in National Basketball Association action tonight and coach Al Attles of Golden State says of the Sonics "they've got a lot of talent and one night they'll suddenly find themselves. I'm hoping it won't be against us."

Golden State is 21-11 and still stands midway between Los Angeles and Phoenix in the Western Division. The trail the former by 5 1-2 games and lead the latter by the same number of contests. Seattle is at 10-28.

Seattle's potential is shown by its win and overtime loss to Milwaukee, a team the Warriors have so far been unable to handle.

But Golden State has dumped powerhouses Boston and Chicago in its last two outings and won five of the last six. In those last two wins, Golden State moved the ball well and thus got numerous easy shots and balanced scoring.

"That's what we're looking for," said Attles.

Landry Is Left With A Decision

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Don Shula has made his choice. Now Tom Landry is left with a decision.

Shula said Monday that Earl Morrall, the 38-year-old veteran, will be the starting quarterback for the unbeaten Mimai Dolphins in Sunday's American Conference title game against the Steelers in Pittsburgh.

There had been talk that perhaps Bob Griese, last year''s AFC passing leader who was out almost all season with a broken ankle, would be reinstated at quarterback. Morrall had problems moving Miami through most of the Dolphins' 20-14 victory over Cleveland Sunday.

But Shula put down that talk Christmas Day when he announced that Morrall, who took over for Griese early in the season and has helped lead the Dolphins to an unprecedented 15-0 record, will be his starter against the Steelers.

"Earl will start in Pittsburgh," Shula said. The Dolphins' coach did admit that he was thinking of inserting Griese when Morrall had a horrible first half against the Browns but decided to stick with the veteran quarterback.

UNDECIDED

Landry, who'll send his Dallas Cowboys against the Redskins in Washington for the National Football Conference title, still hasn't decided between Craig Morton, his season-long starter, or Roger Staubach, last year's hero, for the starting quarterback role.

Morton was unable to move the club against San Francisco in Saturday's semifinal playoff and Staubach, who missed virtually all of the season with an injured shoulder, came on to throw two touchdown passes, one in the last minute, to lift the Cowboys to a 30-28 triumph.

The winners of Sunday's games will meet in the Super Bowl in Los Angeles on Jan. 14.

The four playoff finalists spent a leisurely Christmas Monday before getting down to the task of preparing for Sunday's showdowns.

Pittsburgh Coach Chuck Noll, still pretty much in a state of shock after his club's storybook victory over Oakland, said he, "got everything I wanted for Christmas on Saturday."

A GIFT

The Christmas gift came in the form of a weird deflected pass caught by rookie Franco Harris and carried into the end zone for the winning touchdown with only five seconds left. The score came 1:08 after Oakland apparently had clinched the game 7-6 on Kenny Stabler's 30-yard touchdown run and gave Pittsburgh a 13-7 triumph.

The play touched off a storm of controversy concerning its legality and bedlam erupted when the touchdown was ruled valid.

"I saw it on the replay and it looked perfectly legal to me," Noll siad. "and the fans were not unruly, just happy."

In Washington, Larry Brown, the Redskins' one-man rushing gang, said he was at only 90 per cent efficiency against Green Bay Sunday as the Redskins won 16-3.

APPRECIATE

"It wasn't until about 7 p.m. Sunday night that I could really sit back and appreciate what we had accomplished," Brown said. "Until then, I was just recuperating and catching my breath. I''m probably about only 90 per cent but I'll be ready for the Cowboy game. You've got to play in the playoffs."

The Miami-Pittsburgh game will begin at noon EDT and will be telecast nationally by NBC, Channel 4. The Dallas-Washington game will begin at 3 p.m. EST and will be carried by CBS, Channel 5. There will be a blackout within the 75-mile radius.

Sharon Wins 2 Tennis Crowns

Sharon Walsh is spending the holidays 10,248 miles from home, but shed no tears for her. She got what she wanted for Christmas.

The tennis player from San Rafael Saturday won the women's singles championship in a Sugar Circuit tournament in Capetown, South Africa, adding that title to the mixed doubles crown she won Friday. Only a defeat in the finals of the women's doubles dampened her holiday cheer.

The singles victory came in a slam-bang, 6-0, 5-7, 6-4 match with South Africa's No. 1 woman player, Pat Pretorius. "Sharon called us and said it was a terrific match," said her father, Les, a San Rafael photographer. "She said the people down there gave both players a standing ovation after it was over."

Miss Pretorius got even in the women's doubles, when she and South Africa's top-ranked junior player, Ilana Kloss, beat Miss Walsh and Daniele Bouteleux of France, 6-2, 6-4.

Miss Walsh and Jergen Fassbender of West Germany Friday defeated Miss Pretorius and Pat Cramer of South Africa, 6-2, 6-4, for the mixed doubles title.

Miss Walsh will continue to compete on the Sugar Circuit until late January, and will play this week at Port Elizabeth, her father said.

Hockey Team Aide Dismisses Himself

BALTIMORE (UPI)—General Manager Terry Reardon fired himself as head coach of the American Hockey League Baltimore Clippers Monday and named veteran defenseman Jim Morrison as his replacement. Morrison will become a player-coach while Reardon will concentrate on his front-office duties.

Reardon blamed recent hockey expansion and the creation of the World Hockey Association for his club's misfortune this year—Baltimore has won the Western Division of the AHL the past two seasons but is deep in last place this season with a 5-19-7 record.

Another Look At Nixon's Victory Drive

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon's coattail may have been longer than it seemed to be if "Foley's law" is applied to the results of 1972 elections of Republicans to the House.

Disappointed Democrats can suggest that it was a "McGovern drag" rather than a presidential coattail that gave the GOP its increase of 13 House seats to a total of 192, still 26 short of a majority.

"Foley's law" was conceived by Duncan Foley, economist at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and described by him in the April, 1970, issue of Forum, the magazine of the Republican Ripon Society.

Acknowledging that issues and other factors cause deviations, it sought to show a relationship between the October unemployment rate in election years and Republican victories in congressional districts.

With the unemployment rate at 5.5 per cent in October, 1972, Foley's chart and graph indicated that the GOP would have won less than 170 House seats if its congressional candidates had not extra help like the Nixon landslide over Democrat George S. McGovern.

When the October unemployment rate was 5.5 per cent in the 1958 election year, with no presidential vote, Republicans won only 154 House seats. In the three-way presidential contest of 1968, they won 192 seats, the same as this year, with an unemployment rate of 3.6 per cent.

The Foley yardstick presumes a shortage of confidence in a Republican Congress to deal with economic issues and indicates that the GOP needs an unemployment rate of about two per cent to win a majority of the House. The rate was at that figure when the party last won control of the House in 1952 with Dwight D. Eisenhower at the top of the ticket.

It is too early for a calculation by Republican statisticians of the party's percentage of the vote for House candidates compared to Nixon's figure of close to 61 per cent of the presidential vote.

With rare exceptions in this century, Republican presidential nominees have polled a higher percentage of the national popular vote than their candidates for the House. One reason was that until recent elections, the GOP let most of the Southern congressional districts go to the Democrats by default. Even this year, 33 Democrats in 108 districts in the 11 Southern states had no Republican opponents.

In their net pickup of 13 seats, however, the GOP gained seven Southern seats to add to the 27 they had won in 1970. Nixon was the first Republican candidate to carry all 11 Southern states. He helped Republicans win the governorship and a U.S. Senate seat in North Carolina.

If his margin helped some House candidates to victory, the net result was negative in senatorial and gubernatorial contests.

The Democrats posted a net gain of one governor and two Senate seats. Prominent Republican losers were such senior incumbents as Sens. Margaret Chase Smith of Maine, Gordon Allott of Colorado and Jack Miller of Iowa.

Nixon Victory Short Of Mark

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon's landslide reelection victory—now officially tabulated—falls short of the most one-sided presidential election in U.S. history.

Official vote canvasses from the 50 states and the District of Columbia showed Monday that Nixon did not quite break former President Lyndon B. Johnson's 1964 record of 61.6 per cent of the total popular vote. Nixon's percentage was 60.9, just .1 higher than Franklin D. Roosevelt's landslide in 1936.

In numbers of votes, however, the tally showed that Nixon won the 1972 election with a record-breaking 47,186,390 votes, nearly 4 million more than Johnson's 43,129,484 in 1964, the previous popular vote record.

Sen. George S. McGovern got 29,169,585 votes, 18,016,805 less than Nixon. His percentage of the total popular vote was 37.7.

Rep. John Schmitz, the American party candidate, ran third with 912,022 votes, 1.1 per cent of the total. Seven other candidates, led by Dr. Benjamin Spock of the Peoples' party, got a total of 216,532 votes, or .3 per cent of the total.

The total turnout was 54.8 per cent of the Census Bureau's estimated 139,563,000 voting age population. That was the lowest turnout since 1948, when 51.3 per cent of the voting age population went to the polls.

In carrying 49 states with 521 electoral votes on election day, Nixon also came in second to a Democrat. Franklin Roosevelt got 523 electoral votes in 1936, carrying 46 states. Nixon's recorded electoral vote will be 520 because one of Virginia's electors last week cast his ballot for John Hospers of the Libertarian party, who got 1,537 popular votes.

McGovern got 17 electoral votes, 14 from Massachusetts and three from the District of Columbia.

The popular vote totals of the other six candidates:

Spock—70,972 in eight states.

Linda Jenness, Socialist Workers—60,795 in 13 states.

Louis Fisher, Socialist Labor—44,385 in nine states.

Gus Hall, Communist—23,209 in 11 states.

E. Harold Munn, Prohibitionist—8,789 in 2 states.

Evelyn Reed, Socialist Workers—6,392 in three states.

All of the presidential figures are based on official vote canvasses, the last of which were not completed until West Virginia certified its results on Friday afternoon, Dec. 22.

New Vehicle Is Stolen

A brand new $3,600 car was stolen from the garage of a Corte Madera home some time Christmas Eve or early yesterday morning, town police reported today.

Noreen Suen said she parked her 1973 Plymouth Valiant in the garage at 22 Prince Royal Passage at 7:30 p.m. Christmas Eve and locked it.

Her father found the garage door open at 9 a.m. yesterday, and the car gone. Its license number is 493 GFP and its color green over white.

Till Tapped At Store In Center

An impudent thief rang up a cash register at Montgomery Wards store in the Corte Madera Center on Saturday evening, helped himself to $40 and escaped before security staff could summon help.

Corte Madera police said the man, and his woman companion, were pursued southwards on Highway 101 by two witnesses, but escaped.

Two Are Dead From Argument

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A 30-year-old woman shot her estranged husband to death and then killed herself during a Christmas party for their two young daughters, sheriff's deputies said Monday.

Deputies said the husband, Nayan Scarborough, 32, came visiting at his wife's small apartment Sunday night while a party for the girls was in progress.

The couple began arguing, went into the bathroom and locked themselves in, and one shot was fired, deputies said.

Mary Ann Scarborough then came back to the living room and told the girls, aged 10 and 15, to leave the apartment. Outside, they heard another shot.

An off-duty sheriff's deputy was passing by and also heard the shots. He broke down the door of the apartment and found the bodies.

FISH AND GAME

Memorable Trip To Marysville

By AL GIDDINGS

Sidelights of a duck hunt. A couple of days ago, Kurt Kalemba, my neighbor here in Woodacre, invited me up to his duck club near Marysville.

We planned to go the evening before, to sleep at the clubhouse, and to beat driving up in that dangerous morning fog. Enroute that evening, we talked about duck hunting.

Kurt said he has been missing shots a lot; he asked for my suggestion. I told him to increase his lead, and to be sure that he was swinging his gun with the bird's flight. Kurt also mentioned he had difficulty retrieving a duck shot in the pond because of the soft and uneven mud bottom. To this, I answered that we had my dog Bruno along who would retrieve every bird for us, so that we wouldn't have to leave the blind. When Kurt started driving fast, I asked him why he was rushing. He replied "I have the dinner for the gang, so they will be waiting".

WHEN WE ARRIVED at the clubhouse, a car was pulling out. In the car were three of the best looking girls of Marysville and three of the club duck hunters. We checked that car out, and were immediately invited to a birthday dinner party at the Lotus, a famous Marysville Chinese restaurant. We forgot about Kurt's dinner plans and, so we went to town. In town, we encountered half the town of Marysville; they were there to celebrate a gal's birthday! One of the girls, during the introductions, said I had checked her hunting at Pt. Reyes two weeks ago. It's a small world!

AT THE RESTAURANT, which also had a bar, the seating arrangements called for each gal sitting with some man other than her husband. These gals were all young, good looking, and dressed to kill. At one period of the evening, all the Marysville husbands were out at the bar, leaving us poor duck hunters to entertain the ladies. (Isn't this a likely story?) Can you imagine our wives walking in just about then?

The point of this yarn is to tell you wives that if you ever find your husband, who has left home in his duck clothes and with a day's beard stubble, in a Chinese restaurant with a good looking gal, just don't say a word.

I don't know what Kurt's wife will say when he brings home that meat loaf dinner she prepared for the hunt! About midnight, when the revelry was at a high pitch, I heard a horn blowing on the main street. Kurt mentioned that it sounded like his car's horn. I figured that someone had just been married. The blasting of the horn continued. Finally, we looked out the window; a huge crowd was all around Kurt's car. We rushed out to see what was happening. There was Bruno the dog sitting on the horn; the crowd was roaring with laughter. I guess Bruno figured it was time to go home. We let him out, and everyone petted the pooch. He had his party too! With that, Kurt and I headed for the clubhouse.

After breakfast, we went out to the duck ponds. The shooting was slow, as the birds stayed generally out of range, but Kurt, anxious to try bigger leads, nailed a mallard that sailed about 300 yards.

BRUNO DIDN'T see the bird so Kurt gave it a go; he returned empty handed. I took Bruno up there, and in two minutes he recovered the bird. About two hours later, Kurt sailed another. We both went up after this one, but finding it looked to be an impossibility to us. But Bruno retrieved the bird. It was a cock sprig. In Kurt's mind, Bruno was a hero. Kurt got two more birds — he must have been leading them 20 feet, because they were all 60 yards out. I didn't get a bird! Kurt's four birds, two mallards and two sprig, made him high man for the day at the club. I'm telling you that these duck hunts can sure be tough at times.

WHA ROUNDUP

Blazers, Raiders Behind Eight-Ball

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The Philadelphia Blazers and New York Raiders had one thing in common Monday afternoon. They were behind the eight-ball.

The New England Whalers scored three goals in a two and a half minute burst in the first period and went on to defeat the Raiders 8-2 and remain two points ahead of the Cleveland Crusaders in the World Hockey Association's Eastern Division race. The Crusaders got the benefit of goalie Gerry Cheevers' fourth shutout on home ice to top the Blazers 8-0.

In the other WHA game, Rosaire Paiement scored one goal and assisted on the other two to give the Chicago Cougars their third consecutive triumph, a 3-2 victory over the Alberta Oilers.

John French scored at 8:59, Terry Caffery tallied unassisted at 10:56 and Kevin Ahearn tipped in a long Ted Green shot at 11:30 to give New England a 3-1 first period lead, more than offsetting Bobby Sheehan's early New York goal.

Tom Webster scored twice for the Whalers in the second period, and Tim Sheehy, Brit Selby and John Danby beat Ian Wilkie, who substituted for Pete Donnelly at the start of the third period in the Raiders goal, for the Whalers' third period scores. Craig Reichmuth added New York's last tally with 1:36 to go in the game.

Cheevers, who lowered his goals-against average to 2.31 in the Crusaders' shutout, had to make only 22 saves and got great help from his defensemen, while Blazers' netminders Marcel Paille and Bernie Parent had to handle 50 Cleveland shots.

Seals Visit Canucks In Vancouver Battle

VANCOUVER, B.C. (UPI)—It's boxing day in Canada as the California Golden Seals call on the Vancouver Canucks for an afternoon game.

Boxing day is when tradesmen get gift boxes and the Seals would love a present on a victory from the Canucks, who have been in a slump of their own.

Seals captain Bert Marshall, whose absence from the backline has been a special disaster for the Seals, played briefly in Sunday night's loss to Los Angeles and might be ready for more action today. His team needs him.

The one bright spot in the Seals' abysmal showing of late has been the play of the line of Joey Johnston-Walt McKechnie-Craig Patrick, which has averaged better than two points a game and not given anything away on defense, either.

Patrick particularly has been a gem. His eight goals already match his total for all last season.

After today's tussle, the Seals return home to face Philadelphia Wednesday and fellow cellar dweller Long Island Friday night.

NHL Sabres' Goalie Crozier Hospitalized

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI)—The Buffalo Sabres of the National Hockey League announced Monday night that goalie Roger Crozier has been hospitalized for an indefinite period in Toronto General Hospital for an apparent flareup of pancreatitis.

To replace Crozier, the Sabres have called up Norman (Rocky) Farr from the Cincinnati Swords, their American Hockey League farm club.

Abdul-Jabbar Proves Point In NBA Play

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

"When you need a bucket, it's a lot easier to get it when you can go to a guy who throws it in from directly above the basket."

That's what Kansas City-Omaha Coach Bob Cousy said about the Milwaukee Bucks' 7-foot-2 center, Kareem Abdul Jabbar, Monday night after he scored 32 points, including 10 of the Bucks' last 17, in a 104-99 Milwaukee victory. The win, coupled with Chicago's 115-108 loss to Phoenix Christmas afternoon, gave Milwaukee a 4 1-2-game bulge over the Bulls in the National Basketball Association's Midwest Division.

OTHER GAMES

In other NBA action Monday night, New York edged Detroit 113-110 and Sidney Wicks' career-high 38 points led Portland to a 116-113 triumph over Seattle, the Sonics' 13th consecutive road loss.

The Kings moved from an 89-83 deficit to a tie at 95-all with 5:02 to go on a basket by Don Kojis, and had an opportunity to beat the Bucks, a feat they had not accomplished since Dec. 19, 1970—10 losses ago.

Abdul-Jabbar hit with 3:58 to play and came back with a three-point play 30 seconds later to lock up the victory.

Although the zone is illegal in the NBA, Cousy said that all teams go into a zone at the end of a game.

"But every team doesn't have Abdul-Jabbar in the middle of the zone," Cousy said.

Apparently not, for Nate Archibald, scoring 34 points a game before tonight, was held to only 20, his second lowest output of the season. However, Little Nate did get 18 assists, which equaled his best output for 1972.

SUNS BLAZE

At Phoenix, Chicago led after each of the first three quarters, largely on the strength of Bob Love's 29 points, once by as many as 11 points. But the shooting of Dick Van Arsdale and Charlie Scott, who had 32 and 26 points, respectively, coupled with Lamar Green's rebounding, helped the Suns to tie the score at 99-99 with 5:12 remaining.

The Suns went ahead to stay at 105-103 on two free throws by Van Arsdale with 2:45 remaining and won their fourth consecutive game while handing the Bulls their fifth loss in their last six games.

BRADLEY

Bill Bradley scored 29 points and Dave DeBusschere and Walt Frazier added 44 more between them to move New York to within 1 1-2 games of idle Boston in the Atlantic Division.

Wicks scored 23 of his points in the first half when Portland took a 57-54 lead and sparked the Trail Blazers to a 14-point fourth-quarter lead. It was cut to one with five seconds remaining, but Charlie Davis made two free throws to put the game out of reach.

WORLD CUP PLAY

Bleak Outlook For U.S. Squad

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — "If we give 110 per cent against the Russians, we'll still lose by 10 goals," Rob Palmer of the University of Denver mused as his United States team prepared for the opening match tonight in the second annual World Cup of Ice Hockey here.

Palmer is anxious to play, but he's also a realist. The task ahead of the American team, comprised on U.S. college hockey players who have never skated together as a team, is awesome.

First of all there are the defending champions, the Soviet Union. The Russians have all but two of the players from the contingent that surprised the National Hockey League's Team Canada last summer and also won the Olympic gold medal at Japan last February.

Then there's Czechoslovakia, which won the 1972 Group A World championship. The Czechs, with most of their world tournament players on this team, posted the only victory over Russia in last year's round-robin World Cup.

Rounding out the four-team tourney will be Canada, represented by the Medicine Hat, Alta., Junior A team, which also has added other standout players from the Western Canada Junior Hockey League.

The Americans open the tourney against the Czechs tonight, and U.S. Coach Bob Johnson, of the University of Wisconsin, feels his players will do themselves credit.

"We're not going to play scared," he says. "The players are all looking forward to playing the best in the world. It's a great challenge for them."

The Czechs play the Canadians Wednesday night and the Russians Friday night to complete the Colorado Springs portion of the tournament. Action then shifts to Bloomington, Minn., where the Russians play Canada Saturday night. The United States meets Canada Dec. 31 and closes the tournament Jan. 2 against the Russians.

COACH'S CONTRACT

Redskins' Boss Pays Price For His Wants

By MILTON RICHMAN

WASHINGTON (UPI) —You wouldn't want to meet a bigger sport than Edward Bennett Williams, one of the country's top trial lawyers and president of the Washington Redskins.

He's not the type to nickel and dime you.

If he likes something and wants it, he goes out and pays top dollar.

Now you take his football coach, George Allen, who has the Redskins only one jump away from the Super Bowl.

When Edward Bennett Williams told George Allen how much he wanted him to handle his team two years ago, he didn't merely tell him, he SHOWED him.

He gave Allen a seven-year contract as general manager and head coach at $125,000 per. He also threw in a fancy place for Allen and his family to stay in plus a car and a chauffeur. So he wouldn't feel neglected, Allen also got an option on the Redskins' stock.

In return for all this, Edward Bennett Williams occasionally is allowed to set foot in the Redskins' clubhouse —if he behaves himself. Or so the local joke goes.

"I'm a lawyer," says Edward Bennett Williams. "I have a 35-man law firm to run. I don't have time to run a football team, and I don't have the inclination to. George is the man I want to run it, and he does. I still make the major policy decisions. Presidents of other organizations want to run the day-to-day operation. I don't."

In the two years Allen has worked for him, Williams says they've never had so much as a single disagreement. What's more, Williams feels Allen is worth every nickel he's getting.

"If you want something good, you've got to pay for it," says Williams. "I never got anything for nothing. Certainly nothing worthwhile. I have no regrets about the deal I made for George. He's unquestionably one of the two or three best coaches in the world. I've never seen a harder or more dedicated worker. He works, works, works, and his job is always on his mind. He thinks of nothing else.

When the Redskins captured their first post-season game in 30 years Sunday by polishing off the Green Bay Packers, 163, one of the happiest persons among the record crowd of 53,140 at Robert F. Kennedy Memorial Stadium here was Henry Kissinger, President Nixon's advisor.

Kissinger applauded vigorously and was all smiles as the scoreboard clock ran out. He wasn't any happier though than Edward Bennett Williams, who could remember the kind of Christmas it was a year ago.

Now the Redskins go against the Dallas Cowboys next Sunday and if they get past them, they go to the Super Bowl, but a year ago there was only one place for the Redskins to go and that was home. Williams remembers the whole thing well, and also remembers Allen's reaction.

"You know George," says the Redskins' owner, "He's like a German general. He thinks he's supposed to commit suicide when he loses.

"Anyway, we lost to San Francisco in the playoff game a year ago. You may remember it was a bad snap that did it. The ball was poorly handled by our punter, and the Forty Niners fell on it in the end zone and got a touchdown.

"On the plane going back home, George was inconsolable. You'd think it was the end of the world. I told him to forget it, go home, get some sleep, take a rest awhile and then start thinking about next year.

" But I couldn't get through to him at all. 'No, no, no,' he kept saying. The following morning I was still in bed sleeping when I got a call. It was George. He said, 'Ed, you're right. I'm thinking about next year. We're gonna add three minutes to our practice sessions. Do you know what we're gonna practice in those three minutes?'

"I say, no what?

"'Bad snaps,' he says.

"You know something? He had the team do it, too."

Prep Cage Tournament Tomorrow

With a reshuffled lineup, the third annual Marin Catholic Freshman Invitational basketball tournament will get underway with a schedule of four games tomorrow.

Missing will be Riordan High School of San Francisco, which won the tournament last year, and Serra of San Mateo, which took the title two years ago. Sacred Heart of San Francisco and Cardinal Newman of Santa Rosa have been added.

Tomorrow's schedule calls for Bishop O'Dowd of Oakland to play Newman at 3 p.m.; San Rafael vs. Sacred Heart, 4:30; Moreau of Hayward vs. St. Patrick's of Vallejo, 6; and Marin Catholic vs. Terra Linda, 7:30.

The O'Dowd-Newman winner will face the San Rafael-Sacred Heart winner at 6 p.m. Thursday, while the Moreau-St. Pat's winner will play the Marin Catholic-Terra Linda winner at 7:30. Losers meet earlier. Finals will be played Friday at 7:30.

The host Wildcats, who finished third and fourth in the two previous tournaments, enter this one with a 5-2 record and "the biggest team we've ever had," Gonsalves said. The 'Cats lost to O'Dowd earlier this year, 51-40.

Inter-League Play In Limbo

Combined AP & UPI

SAN DIEGO — San Diego Padre general manager E. J. (Buzzie) Bavasi says there will not be any inter-league play next season between the American and National baseball leagues.

"No chance," said Bavasi. "It only takes one vote to stop it and I've got the vote."

The Padre official said the National League expansion teams paid $10 million for their franchise while the American League teams paid only about half that much.

"We paid a big price to play in the new ballparks. I'll think about playing in the old ones (the American League parks) if they want to pay us the difference — $5 million."

Officials of both leagues are to meet Jan. 11 at Chicago to discuss the topic and a proposed rule to adopt a designated pinch-hitter or pinch-runner for pitchers.

Football

LAKE TAHOE — The Washington Redskins and Miami Dolphins have been installed as favorites by Harrah's Tahoe Racebook for Sunday's National Football League conference championships.

The Redskins were listed Monday as 3½ point favorites to beat the Dallas Cowboys for the National Conference title.

The Dolphins are 2½ point picks over the Pittsburgh Steelers in the American Conference.

PASADENA — Anthony Davis, the University of Southern California's sensational sophomore running back, was named winner of the W. J. Voit Award today as the Pacific Coast's Player of the Year.

The 5-foot-9, 185-pound tailback led the Pacific-eight Condference in rushing with 1,034 yards and in scoring with 108 points.

Tennis

MELBOURNE, Australia — Karl Meiler of West Germany, a virtual unknown, upset top-seeded Ken Rosewall 6-2, 6-3, 6-2 in the second round Monday of the $53,500 Australian Open men's tennis championships.

In another surprise, Bob Giltman of Australia ousted countryman Mal Anderson, the No. 3 seed, 6-7, 6-2, 6-2, 7-6.

Securities Industry Is Noticing Earnings Squeeze

By S. M. MARSHALL
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

NEW YORK — Wall Street is gripped in an earnings squeeze once again, hardly two years after it emerged from one of the most crisis-filled periods in its history.

Profits are disappearing at brokerage houses because of sharply rising costs, the advent of negotiated sales charges on large transactions, and generally slow trading volume in the stock market.

The situation is especially disturbing to leaders of the securities industry because the factors causing the falling profits are largely beyond the industry's control. No paperwork jam-up in the Street's own back offices is to blame this time.

Because of the same inflation, prevalent elsewhere in American industry, the costs of skilled labor, of communications lines, of processing equipment, and even the rent have moved up sharply.

At the same time, the industry's revenue base has been shrinking. The unfixing of commission charges on the portion of transactions above $300,000 in value has resulted in sharply lower commission income on those trades.

Volume throughout the securities markets has simultaneously shrunk. As a consequence, Wall Street on the one hand is taking in a smaller percentage of each trade in the form of commissions while the number of trades on the other hand had declined.

William C. Freund, vice-president and chief economist for the New York Stock Exchange, disclosed at an allied members' meeting that a sampling of member firms that account for two-thirds of the industry's revenues showed that they incurred an average monthly loss of $2.5 million on their commission business in July and August.

He disclosed also that the group's average monthly profits for the first eight months of 1972 had fallen to $43.7 million from $53.1 million in the comparable 1971 period. Moreover, these figures include revenues from all sources, which means the losses on commission income are factored in.

Dr. Freund said the advent of negotiated commission charges in 1971 had cut total commission revenues by $70 million that year and would subtract another $10 million this year, since the break point for negotiation has been dropped from $500,000 to $300,000.

Pressures exist in Congress and at the Securities and Exchange Commission for a further reduction to the $100,000 level. But James J. Needham, chairman of the Big Board, has called for a delay in any such move until the industry's profits rebound.

That they are in a sharp decline has been clearly evident in the financial reports for the September quarter publicly revealed by some of Wall Street's largest and traditionally most profitable houses.

Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, for example, said its thrid-quarter net income before an extraordinary charge had fallen 13.3 per cent, even though gross revenues had risen 4.7 per cent.

Similar results were reported by Reynolds Securities and Paine, Webber, Jackson & Curtis, which always are among the most profitable firms in the Street. Hayden Stone, another big house, reported a 97 per cent profit decline for the quarter.

Walston & Co., still another major concern, reported a loss of more than $588,000 for the fiscal quarter ended Aug. 31. A number of other firms that do not report their results publicly also are understood to have operated with deficits recently.

Some houses managed to report gains — for example, Dean Witter & Co., E. F. Hutton & Co. and Donaldson, Lufkin & Jenrette. But Hutton and DLJ both had slimmer profit margins in the third quarter, which means their increased earnings came entirely from increased revenues.

Even Salomon Brothers, tops in the institutional block trading business and a virtual money mint for its partners in recent years, suffered a 33 per cent profits decline in the fiscal year ended Sept. 30.

Perhaps the only encouraging aspect of all the bad news is that it is not likely to threaten the average investor, as it did in the crisis of 1969-70. There still are no indications this time of any difficulties in processing paperwork.

Capital regulations have been strengthened and the ability to monitor brokerage-house finances has been improved. Still, a number of mergers are expected to occur as firms give up trying to cope with the profit squeeze by themselves.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Marlennan Corp. Stock Is Expected To Increase

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I hold a very large block of Marlennan Corp. (NYSE) which has depreciated considerably. What would your advice be?—D.T. Q. Marlennan, of which I hold 300-shares, has dropped 20 points since I bought. Should I hold or sell? — D.C.

A. Unusual expenses and lower-than-anticipated revenue growth has exerted pressure on this insurance broker's profit margins. Nevertheless earnings should reach $1.95 a share for 1972 (a 5 percent year-to-year gain). The additional expenses were related to a major relocation involving some 40 per cent of corporate personnel. The company's accounting method delays the accrual of commissions by approximately a year. For this reason the full impact of the economic recovery has not yet been reflected in earnings.

A gradual return to the company's strong growth rate of 15 per cent annually set in the 1966-71 period may be achieved by late 1973. This could be generated by increasing emphasis being placed on corporate service on a national basis. To that end internal restructuring has been effected and two mergers are in process. With patience this issue should work out for you.

Q. I am a widow in my early sixties. All my money is in the savings bank getting 5½ per cent interest. To keep my taxes from getting any higher, would it be better if I bought U.S. Savings bonds series E. — E.S.

A. The postponement of income tax liability on savings bond interest until redemption would be advantageous in reducing your tax burden. Thus if you do not need the savings interest for income, I would favor purchasing E bonds. With the added one-half per cent bonus on bonds held to maturity, you will not suffer any loss in the rate of interest you will receive.

E bond sales continue to set records, and have exceeded redemptions for the last 26 months. As of Nov. 30, 1972, some $57.8 billion in Series E, H and Freedom Shares were outstanding. This all-time high level is more than $3 billion above the year-earlier figure.

Prices Move Higher On Stock Mart

NEW YORK (UPI) — For the second consecutive session, the market moved higher on the New York Stock Exchange today as investors got over their initial disappointment with the breakdown of the Paris peace talks and resumption of U. S. bombing over North Vietnamese cities. Trading was moderate.

The exchange observed two minutes of silence in respect for former President Harry S Truman who died today.

The market was bothered some by the boost in the prime interest rate to 6 per cent by many banks, brokers said, but investors still remained confident in the economy.

Gulf Oil was the most active issue, up ¼ to 27 on 82,600 shares.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange declined in moderate trading. Bro-Dart Industries was the most active Amex issue, off ¼ to 3 on 87,700 shares including a block trade of 83,200 shares at 2 ¾.

On the Big Board, Mountain Fuel Supply jumped 4 points. The company said today a well in southwestern Wyoming produced a significant flow of natural gas.

Horizon Corp., the land developer, was active and off 1. The company reported a sharply lower second quarter net.

National Airlines gained 1 ½. The firm said it expects its upward earnings trend to continue into next year.

Computer and electronics issues were mostly higher. IBM jumped 4 ¾, Texas Instruments 2 ⅞.

Glamor issues also moved higher. Walt Disney added 1 ½ and Wrigley and Polaroid 1 each.

Eastman Kodak tacked on 1 in the mixed chemical group. Rails, steels, airlines and aircrafts were mixed in fractions. Motors were gainers with Ford ahead ⅞.

Quik Stop Markets Planning New Branch In Santa Venetia

Quik Stop Markets Inc., with headquarters in Fremont, hopes to open a new branch store at 750 Adrian Way in Santa Venetia sometime next year.

The site is at the corner of La Pasada and Adrian Way, where Leswing Communications Inc., a publishing firm, is located. The new market will be built next to Leswing.

Vince Depolo, buyer for Quik Stop Markets, said the Santa Venetia store is only in the planning stages, and it would be at least five or six months before the new store is built. He said Quik Stop has existing stores in San Anselmo, Petaluma and two in Santa Rosa.

The company is applying for an offsale beer and wine license for the Santa Venetia outlet.

KENNETH M. DANIELS of Mill Valley and DONALD L. FENN of Larkspur have been named assistant vice presidents of systems and planning in Crocker Bank's data processing center, San Francisco.

Daniels joined Crocker Bank in 1969. Before the promotion, he was a systems officer in the data processing center. He attended Kansas City University.

Fenn

Fenn joined Crocker Bank in 1970 and was also a systems officer. He attended Yale University and is a graduate of Earlham College in Indiana.

THE MEAT and delicatessen department of Home Market at 407 San Anselmo Avenue in San Anselmo will be sold to new owners next month.

George R. Bianchini of San Anselmo, who bought the market from William Franchini last March, will retain the grocery and produce portion but will sell the meat and delicatessen department to Melvin C. Cervelli of San Anselmo.

Cervelli is no newcomer to the store. He owned the grocery department of Home Market until about eight years ago when he sold it to Franchini and went to work for Embee Market in Tiburon.

Cervelli is scheduled to take over the meat and delicatessen department on or after Jan. 2, 1973.

RICHARD E. OSBORN of Novato has taken over the former Bill's Texaco Service at 915 Diablo Avenue, Novato, and has expanded customer service.

Rich Osborn's Texaco specializes in auto waxing and steam cleaning, front end overhaul and alignment, electronic engine tuneup and brake service. It also provides U-Haul trailers.

Osborn bought the station on Dec. 14 from Bill E. Naughton, also of Novato. Osborn also operates the Union Oil Station at Highway 101 and Olive Avenue and has 20 years of experience in the service station business.

EVE E. AULERICH of Fairfax, office supervisor at the Greenbrae office of California State Automobile Association, has completed 40 years of service with CSAA. She received a commendation for "long and devoted service" from Neal Garrison, executive vice president of CSAA in San Francisco.

Mrs. Aulerich first joined CSAA in San Rafael 44 years ago (in 1928), but because of broken service, she did not complete her 40 years until Oct. 25 this year.

"Mrs. Aulerich is a jack of all trades," said John A. Govi, district manager in the Greenbrae office. "She supervises the entire office; there isn't a job here that she can't do."

REALTORS BREAKFAST — Just a reminder that the Marin County Board of Realtors is dispensing with its weekly breakfast this week and next. The next breakfast meeting is set for 8 a.m. Jan. 9 at the Corte Madera Lions Club.

In January, the sales forces of the two corporations will merge, and Nutrilite key distributors will become Amway direct distributors.

Endemann will continue operating from 24 Frances Avenue, Larkspur. He started as Nutrilite distributor in Sausalito in 1950 and moved to Larkspur in 1955.

Construction Activity For This Year

Another Look At Nixon's Victory Drive

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon's coattail may have been longer than it seemed to be if "Foley's law" is applied to the results of 1972 elections of Republicans to the House.

Disappointed Democrats can suggest that it was a "McGovern drag" rather than a presidential coattail that gave the GOP its increase of 13 House seats to a total of 192, still 26 short of a majority.

"Foley's law" was conceived by Duncan Foley, economist at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and described by him in the April, 1970, issue of Forum, the magazine of the Republican Ripon Society.

Acknowledging that issues and other factors cause deviations, it sought to show a relationship between the October unemployment rate in election years and Republican victories in congressional districts.

With the unemployment rate at 5.5 per cent in October, 1972, Foley's chart and graph indicated that the GOP would have won less than 170 House seats if its congressional candidates had not extra help like the Nixon landslide over Democrat George S. McGovern.

When the October unemployment rate was 5.5 per cent in the 1958 election year, with no presidential vote, Republicans won only 154 House seats. In the three-way presidential contest of 1968, they won 192 seats, the same as this year, with an unemployment rate of 3.6 per cent.

The Foley yardstick presumes a shortage of confidence in a Republican Congress to deal with economic issues and indicates that the GOP needs an unemployment rate of about two per cent to win a majority of the House. The rate was at that figure when the party last won control of the House in 1952 with Dwight D. Eisenhower at the top of the ticket.

It is too early for a calculation by Republican statisticians of the party's percentage of the vote for House candidates compared to Nixon's figure of close to 61 per cent of the presidential vote.

With rare exceptions in this century, Republican presidential nominees have polled a higher percentage of the national popular vote than their candidates for the House. One reason was that until recent elections, the GOP let most of the Southern congressional districts go to the Democrats by default. Even this year, 33 Democrats in 108 districts in the 11 Southern states had no Republican opponents.

In their net pickup of 13 seats, however, the GOP gained seven Southern seats to add to the 27 they had won in 1970. Nixon was the first Republican candidate to carry all 11 Southern states. He helped Republicans win the governorship and a U.S. Senate seat in North Carolina.

If his margin helped some House candidates to victory, the net result was negative in senatorial and gubernatorial contests.

The Democrats posted a net gain of one governor and two Senate seats. Prominent Republican losers were such senior incumbents as Sens. Margaret Chase Smith of Maine, Gordon Allott of Colorado and Jack Miller of Iowa.

Nixon Victory Short Of Mark

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon's landslide reelection victory—now officially tabulated—falls short of the most one-sided presidential election in U.S. history.

Official vote canvasses from the 50 states and the District of Columbia showed Monday that Nixon did not quite break former President Lyndon B. Johnson's 1964 record of 61.6 per cent of the total popular vote. Nixon's percentage was 60.9, just .1 higher than Franklin D. Roosevelt's landslide in 1936.

In numbers of votes, however, the tally showed that Nixon won the 1972 election with a record-breaking 47,186,390 votes, nearly 4 million more than Johnson's 43,129,484 in 1964, the previous popular vote record.

Sen. George S. McGovern got 29,169,585 votes, 18,016,805 less than Nixon. His percentage of the total popular vote was 37.7.

Rep. John Schmitz, the American party candidate, ran third with 912,022 votes, 1.1 per cent of the total. Seven other candidates, led by Dr. Benjamin Spock of the Peoples' party, got a total of 216,532 votes, or .3 per cent of the total.

The total turnout was 54.8 per cent of the Census Bureau's estimated 139,563,000 voting age population. That was the lowest turnout since 1948, when 51.3 per cent of the voting age population went to the polls.

In carrying 49 states with 521 electoral votes on election day, Nixon also came in second to a Democrat. Franklin Roosevelt got 523 electoral votes in 1936, carrying 46 states. Nixon's recorded electoral vote will be 520 because one of Virginia's electors last week cast his ballot for John Hospers of the Libertarian party, who got 1,537 popular votes.

McGovern got 17 electoral votes, 14 from Massachusetts and three from the District of Columbia.

The popular vote totals of the other six candidates:

Spock—70,972 in eight states.

Linda Jenness, Socialist Workers—60,795 in 13 states.

Louis Fisher, Socialist Labor—44,385 in nine states.

Gus Hall, Communist—23,209 in 11 states.

E. Harold Munn, Prohibitionist—8,789 in 2 states.

Evelyn Reed, Socialist Workers—6,392 in three states.

All of the presidential figures are based on official vote canvasses, the last of which were not completed until West Virginia certified its results on Friday afternoon, Dec. 22.

New Vehicle Is Stolen

A brand new $3,600 car was stolen from the garage of a Corte Madera home some time Christmas Eve or early yesterday morning, town police reported today.

Noreen Suen said she parked her 1973 Plymouth Valiant in the garage at 22 Prince Royal Passage at 7:30 p.m. Christmas Eve and locked it.

Her father found the garage door open at 9 a.m. yesterday, and the car gone. Its license number is 493 GFP and its color green over white.

Till Tapped At Store In Center

An impudent thief rang up a cash register at Montgomery Wards store in the Corte Madera Center on Saturday evening, helped himself to $40 and escaped before security staff could summon help.

Corte Madera police said the man, and his woman companion, were pursued southwards on Highway 101 by two witnesses, but escaped.

Two Are Dead From Argument

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A 30-year-old woman shot her estranged husband to death and then killed herself during a Christmas party for their two young daughters, sheriff's deputies said Monday.

Deputies said the husband, Nayan Scarborough, 32, came visiting at his wife's small apartment Sunday night while a party for the girls was in progress.

The couple began arguing, went into the bathroom and locked themselves in, and one shot was fired, deputies said.

Mary Ann Scarborough then came back to the living room and told the girls, aged 10 and 15, to leave the apartment. Outside, they heard another shot.

An off-duty sheriff's deputy was passing by and also heard the shots. He broke down the door of the apartment and found the bodies.

CAREER EDUCATION

Students Are Guided Toward Earning Years

By PAT PERRY
(First of two articles)

The in-thing in education nowadays is Career Education. Like many educational phrases, it lacks bite. A better description comes from Robert H. Prather, career guidance director of Redwood High School:

"The basic concept is, what do you want to do with your life?"

And all over Marin County, children are being guided in reaching that decision in a positive fusillade of advice and instruction through their schools.

For while work experience programs and job counseling in the higher school have been around for years, the emphasis now is on preparing children to face the realities of life from the time they enter kindergarten.

The realities of life, for most people mean earning a living by working.

Consider these facts furnished by the Marin County Schools Office:

Eighty per cent of any high school's curriculum is aimed at four-year college entry requirements.

Eighty-eight per cent of available jobs today in the United States do not require a college degree.

By 1990 the 80 per cent of jobs that don't require a degree will require some kind of technical training.

During the next decade the job market will provide 5,000 new skills that don't even exist today.

Nearly 2.5 million students in the United States leave formal education each year without adequate career preparation.

In a determined assault on these inconsistencies, education authorities all over the country are working on a battle plan called Career Education.

In Marin County it takes many forms, from the revitalized Marin County Industry-Education Council which has adopted the subject as its main thrust, to teachers who are being taught through in-service training to make kindergarteners aware of their parents' jobs.

High schools and the College of Marin and the county schools office's regional occupation program offer a wide range of vocational skills, from auto shop to boat building, from cosmetology to dental assisting. And, increasingly, residents of the community with special knowledge or experience or skills, are called upon to contribute those assets.

The county schools office employs two career counselors, Marcia Greil and Carolyn Horan. In line with the new thinking, Mrs. Greil isn't an educator, but a former employment counselor. Mrs. Horan worked in personnel for an electronics firm.

They're very enthusiastic about all that's going on in the county, from the successful careers conferences sponsored by the Industry-Education Council, to the way employers and unions are helping in the venture.

"Hopefully, we'll get to the point some day where all the schools' curricula will tie into: What does this mean to you,"

Truman Mourned, Praised By Political Friends, Foes

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Political friend and foe alike mourned the death of Harry S Truman today and praised the former President for the courageous leadership he provided the American people.

President Nixon said from Key Biscayne, Fla., that Truman will "be remembered as one of the most courageous Presidents' in our history, who led the nation and the world through a critical period with exceptional vision and determination."

Lyndon B. Johnson, now the country's only living ex-President, said of his fellow Democrat: "A 20th century giant is gone."

"Few men of any times ever shaped the world as did the man from Independence," Johnson commented. "President Truman presided over the destiny of this century during one of its most turbulent eras, never flinching in the face of crucial national choices ...

"He had his critics and detractors, but history is just and Harry Truman will live on in the memory of free people as one of the greatest men to lead freedom's cause."

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew said of the man who served as vice president in the final days of the Roosevelt era: "President Truman made great and difficult decisions affecting the course of human events and he made them always in the larger interest of the nation and its place in the world community... His place in history is secure; he stands tall among world leaders."

Speaker Carl Albert said Truman "was a people's President, a man who always was himself and a man with whom every citizen could identify. Harry Truman was President when I came to Congress and I will be eternally grateful for his thoughtfulness and wise counsel. He was one of the finest men I have ever known."

Secretary of State William P. Rogers paid tribute to Truman for his international leadership in World War II and Cold War era.

"The monuments to his wisdom and humanity survive in the restored vitality of nations demolished by war, in a great peacetime alliance of wartime allies, and in the hearts of once threatened but still free peoples," Rogers said.

Members of the Senate, no matter what their political persuasian, similarly eulogized the dead Missourian.

Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott said: "We have lost a great statesman and a fine man. He brought to the presidency zeal, dedication and a love of country which uplifted the mood of the nation."

House GOP leader Gerald R. Ford commented: "Harry Truman was subjected to much criticism while he occupied the White House but historians will surely view him as one of the most courageous men ever to lead the American people."

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., who served in Congress with Truman, noted the former President had the responsibilities of the White House "thrust on him overnight" by the death of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Ex-President Truman Loses Battle For Life

Period Of National Mourning Declared

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Harry S Truman, the fiery man from Missouri and America's 33rd President, died today of a failing heart at the end of a 22-day fight against age and disease. The world mourned the passing of the 88-year-old "Man of Independence." (See picture page 26, other Truman stories, page 19.)

"Our hopes today for a generation of peace rest in large measure on the firm foundation that he laid," said President Nixon. "He will be remembered as one of the most courageous presidents in our history."

Death came as Truman lay in a deep coma in a sixth-floor room at Research Hospital. He had fought with his usual courage since Dec. 5 against an ordeal in which, one by one, his vital life signs and body organs failed.

"The honorable Harry S Truman, 33rd President of the United States, died at 7:50 a.m. (CST)," the official medical statement said. "The cause of death was a complexity of organic failure causing a collapse of the cardiovascular system."

Bess Truman, 87, the former chief executive's childhood sweetheart whom he married more than half a century ago, was at their stately white mansion at nearby Independence when her husband died. She had been at his bedside almost 12 hours Christmas Day.

Nixon ordered a period of national mourning for the man who made some of this nation's toughest and most important decisions during this century — the atomic bombing of Japan, the Berlin Airlift, the dispatch of U.S. troops to Korea and many more.

"Recognizing the new threat to peace that had emerged from the ashes of war, he stood boldly against it with his extension of aid to Greece and Turkey in 1947 — and the 'Truman Doctrine' thus established was crucial to the defense of liberty to Europe and the world," Nixon said from the Florida White House at Key Biscayne.

"He was a fighter, who was at his best when the going was toughest," Nixon said. "But friends and opponents alike were unanimous in respecting him for his enormous courage, and for the spirit that saw him through, whatever the odds."

Truman's funeral was scheduled for Thursday. He will be buried in the ground he loved — "in the courtyard, near the rose garden" of the Truman Library at Independence, his hometown. The body will lie in state for public viewing for 24 hours beginning at 11 a.m. CST Wednesday.

"It is with affection and respect that a grateful nation now says farewell to the 'Man from Independence' —to its 33rd President, Harry S Truman," Nixon said in his eulogy.

Truman picked his own epitaph. He said his life could have no better meaning than summed up in the words he saw chiseled on a frontier grave:

"Here lies Jack Williams. He done his damndest."

And the man who rose from behind a counter of a Kansas City haberdashery to the White House said this is the way he wanted to be remembered: "I did what had to be done." Age simply caught up with Truman. He was hospitalized with what his wife thought was a head cold on Dec. 5. But infection was found in his lungs, and his health steadily deteriorated. He did rally enough to whisper to his wife and daughter, Mrs. Margaret Daniel, that "I'm all right."

But he slipped into a coma four days ago and never regained consciousness.

Lyndon B. Johnson, now the only living former U.S. President, praised Truman in a statement from his LBJ Ranch in Texas.

"A 20th Century giant is gone," said Johnson, 64. "Few men of any time ever shaped the world as did the Man from Independence. President Truman presided over the destiny of this century during one of its most turbulent eras, never flinching in the face of crucial national choices. His decisions changed the course of human events throughout the world.

"He had his critics and detractors, but history is just and Harry Truman will live on in the memory of free people as one of the greatest men to lead freedom's cause."

Truman outlived most of those with whom he shared a place in history — Stalin, Churchill, de Gaulle, MacArthur, Eisenhower and even Thomas E. Dewey, whom he defeated for the presidency in one of the most stunning upsets in American political history.

The only contemporary to live past Truman was Chinese leader Mao Tse-tung who became 79 on the day Truman died. Truman had waged a bitter war with Mao over Korea, but both men lived to see relations between their nations begin to thaw.

Truman said his toughest decision was sending American troops to Korea in a "police action" that kept Communist soldiers from advancing past the 38th Parallel. He said that decision overshadowed all the others —including the order to drop an atomic bomb on Japan. Truman said of the atomic bomb decision: "It was purely a military matter that saved thousands of American lives. No other course was conceivable." After that order, Winston Churchill, the late British prime minister, told Truman: "You, more than any other man, have saved Western civilization."

"The people of the United States, and especially the press of this country, have lost a great friend," said Randall Jessee, a family spokesman. "It is the wish of the family that in lieu of flowers, friends make memorial donations to the Harry S Truman Library Institute, Independence, Mo., or to the charities of their choice."

Nixon proclaimed that the flag of the United States be displayed at half staff at the White House and on all buildings, grounds and naval vessels of the United States for a period of 30 days.

Truman was 467 days short of reaching his dream of living to age 90.

Mrs. Truman, who met her husband when he was 6 and she was 5, was resigned to his death when she left his bedside Christmas night with their only daughter, Mrs. Margaret Daniel, wife of the New York Times executive. Mrs. Daniel flew to Kansas City during the night when Truman's health deteriorated to the point at which doctors said he could die "within hours."

Mrs. Truman, leaning heavily on a metal walking cane because of arthritis, was beside her ailing husband for all but one of the 22 days he was hospitalized. When asked if Mrs. Truman was taking her husband's illness with courage, Mike Westwood, Truman's longtime friend and bodyguard said: "You known darn well she is."

"She is one of the great ladies of the world," Jessee said.

The American flag was lowered immediately to half staff at the hospital and at the Truman home and library.

The world's leaders and its common people mourned Truman's passing.

One neighbor woman, out for a morning walk like Truman used to take when he was in the White House, shook her head and said tearfully, "He was a great man, and it is a very sad day."

Truman had fought a characteristically fierce battle against lung congestion, a failing heart, and finally, failing kidneys since he was rushed to Research Hospital last Dec. 5 with "pulmonary congestion" or fluid in the lungs. His condition was classified as serious the next day and on the night of Dec. 6 he was put on the critical list.

On Dec. 8, as his heart weakened, his condition was reported "extremely precarious. But on Dec. 9 he improved and the next day he was removed from the critical list and spoke a few words with his wife and daughter. On Dec. 11, with his heartbeat controlled by medication, Truman told his doctors "I feel all right."

On Dec. 12 his vital signs became unstable again and the decline of his health resumed.

The former president held his own for a few days in "very serious" condition. But by Dec. 14 he was semi-conscious and unable to respond to questions from doctors or family.

His kidneys failed steadily, and doctors could not use a kidney machine to help because of his hardened arteries.

FAMILY IS REUNITED

The Greatest Gift Of All

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

Nabi Karimzad received the greatest Christmas gift of his life last evening: his family.

"I have begun a second life," declared Karimzad today as he looked smilingly around his home at 187 Oak Springs Drive, San Anselmo, at his wife, Sultana; his zon, Ziad, 19; and his daughters, Homa, 22; Friaba, 16, and Trina, 11.

They arrived by air last night from Kabul, Afghanistan. It had required more than two years of often frustrating efforts to bring them to the United States.

Finally, within the two weeks before Christmas, all the efforts fell into place: passports were cleared. Mrs. Karimzad sold two houses the family owned in Kabul, and all five were admitted to the United States on immigrant visas.

They left Kabul early Sunday, flying by Ariana (the Afghanistan airline) to London, then by British Overseas Airways Corp. plane to New York and Trans World Airlines to San Francisco — a 21-hour trip by the clock, but actually 33 hours as they passed through 12 time zones.

The Karimzads are Mohammedans. But to Nabi, the arrival of the family was a true Christmas gift, for which he credits Christ.

"Three weeks ago," he related, "I sat here alone in this house, and I was very worried. There seemed to be difficulties with everything.

"I prayed to Jesus Christ to bring me my family. And after that, everything went right: the houses were sold, the visas were issued, everything fell into place.

"And on Christmas Day, they arrived. I feel that Jesus Christ helped me."

Karimzad came to the United States, and to California, three and one-half years ago.

He had served 24 years in the Afghanistan federal police (only traffic officers are under local control in Afghanistan), and held the rank of army major assigned to the police, an arm of the Ministry of Interior. He was in charge of radio operation and weapons procurement, and traveled to Europe and the United States to buy equipment.

What he saw on those travels convinced him that Afghanistan, a tightly ruled dictatorship under King Mohammed Zahir Shah, was not the place for his family's future.

In 1969, he received two months' vacation, and took visas to travel abroad. He came to California because two younger brothers, John and Nashin Karimzad, live in San Mateo. He decided to stay.

Although he was entitled to retirement from army and police, he ran into troubles getting it approved. That took nearly a year. And then came long difficulties getting permission from both United States and Afghanistan governments for his family to emigrate.

They were all solved in the final weeks before Christmas.

Meantime, Karimzad has em-

Big Banks Boost Prime Loan Rate

NEW YORK (AP) — A string of major commercial banks, including the country's third and fourth largest, followed the lead of two other big banks and boosted their prime lending rates today from 5¾ to 6 per cent.

Chase Manhattan Bank, No. 3; Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co., No. 4; and Chemical Bank and Marine Midland Bank increased the cost of borrowing for their most credit-worthy customers in the face of the Nixon administration's campaign to control inflation by keeping the lid on bank interest rates.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Pope's Message

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope Paul VI expressed concern for persons living amid war, hunger and oppression in his annual Christmas Day message to the world and brought loud applause when he read a Christmas wish in Vietnamese.

The 75-year-old leader of the world's Roman Catholics did not refer directly to the Vietnam war during a 10-minute speech from the balcony of St. Peter's Basilica. He referred to the war several times in earlier speeches.

Instead, he said, he wanted to devote a special thought to places where there is still war, hunger, suffering and distress, "wherever the coming of justce and peace is still awaited."

After his speech, his third of the day, the Pope gave his traditional "urbi et orbi" —to the city and the world — Christmas blessing and wished the world a Merry Christmas in 16 languages.

Singer In Hanoi

TOKYO (UPI) — Japan's Communist party newspaper said today folk singer and antiwar activist Joan Baez sang Christmas carols in the lobby of a Hanoi hotel while antiaircraft guns thundered at raiding U.S. warplanes on Christmas Eve.

"In the lobby of the Hoan Bin Hotel inside the city (Hanoi), Joan Baez and Prof. Michael Allen of the American antiwar movement gathered a small meeting to observe Christmas," the newspaper Akahata (Red Banner) said.

"While Miss Baez was playing her guitar and singing, the rumble of antiaircraft fire and bomb explosions rolled through the building. Her companions encouraged her with shouts of 'don't quit' and 'keep going.'"

"Miss Baez finished her songs in a blackout after the electric power was turned off."

Leader Dies

MADRAS, India (UPI) — Chakravarthi Rajagopalachari, the last governor-general of India and an influential leader in his country's struggle for independence from Britain, died Christmas Day. He was 94.

He was governor-general for two years until he resigned in 1950. He was the only Indian to hold the post.

The cause of death was not announced, but Rajagopalachari entered a hospital eight days ago for treatment of uremia.

The central government in New Delhi declared a one-week period of mourning and announced he would receive a state funeral today.

Prime Minister Indira Gandhi called Rjagopalachari's death a national loss.

Plane Missing

MANILA (UPI) — An armed forces spokesman said today an air force C47 and its crew of seven is missing in the southern Philippines and believed shot down by Moslem rebels.

The government described the situation in the area as "tense," the first time it has used that word in reporting what is happening in the area.

The armed forces spokesman said the C47 was reported missing during a mission Christmas eve while dropping flares to help a besieged eight-man government detachment on Tonquil island 630 miles south of Manila.

Indian Imports

WASHINGTON (UPI) —India's 1972 drought could force it to boost grain imports to as high as 185 million bushels or nearly five million tons for the 1972-73 marketing year, Agriculture Department officials reported today.

The import figure is far above the 74 million to 111 million bushels (2-3 million tons) which officials said most reports now indicate India plans to buy during the season ending next fall.

But an Indian official in Washington insisted his country is "not really in such bad straits" as pictured in some accounts, and might not import more than 1.5 or 2 million tons.

Survivors Sought

JUNEAU, Alaska (UPI) — Search vessels criss-crossed the stormy Gulf of Alaska today searching for survivors amidst the floating debris of a Liberian cargo ship that carried 33 Korean crewmen.

Navy C130 aircraft spotted an oil slick, some debris and all four capsized lifeboats of the bulk carrier Pacrover Monday in heavy seas 750 miles south of Kodiak Island.

One search plane remained at the scene during the night, along with two commercial vessels. Two Coast Guard cutters and the Canadian weather ship Quadra were en route.

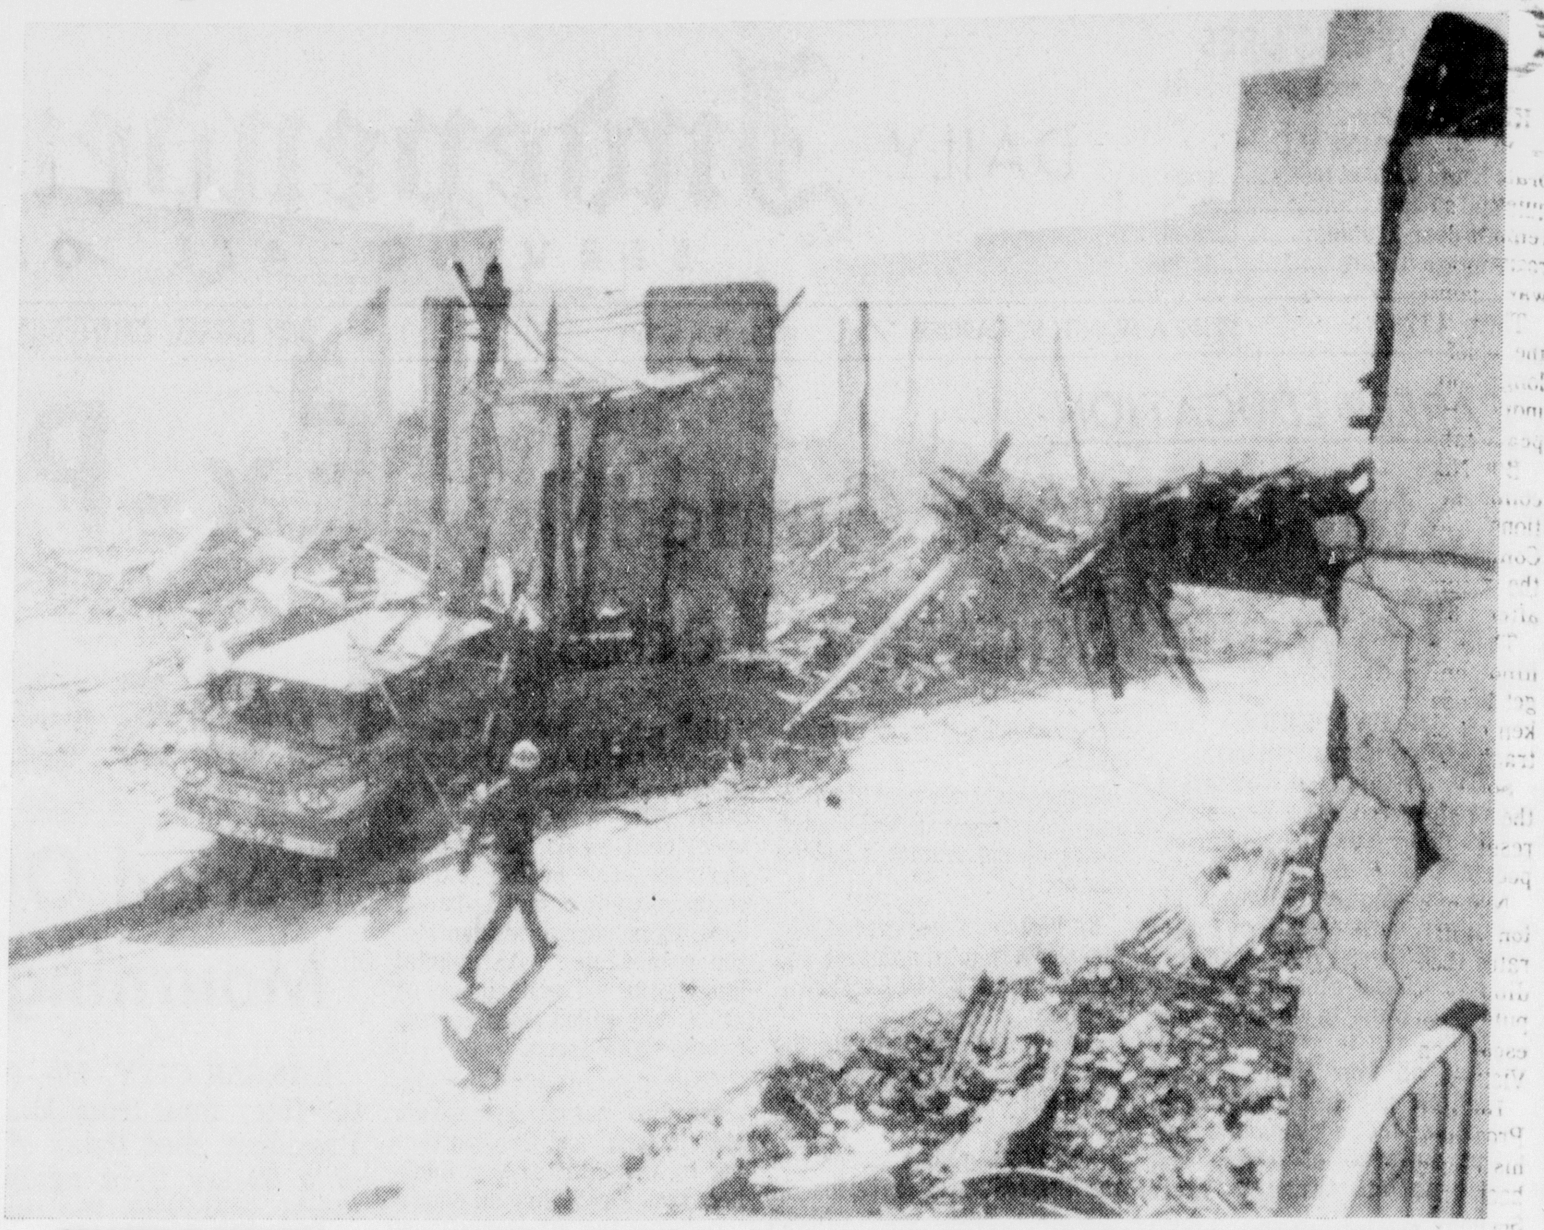
The Liberian registered 13,000-ton ship radioed it was sinking Sunday and crewmen who managed to get aboard a liferaft would have faced wind-whipped seas of up to 55 feet.

Two Sisters Die —Circuit Overloaded

SUSQUEHANNA, Pa. (UPI) — Fire apparently caused by an overloaded circuit claimed the lives of two young sisters Sunday.

Authorities said 10-month-old Tina Marie Seagrave and her 22-month-old sister, Tabatha Jean, apparently died of smoke inhalation. Their bodies were found in a bedroom at their home. A stepsister, Penna Annette, was hospitalized in fair condition. The children's mother, Donna Marie Seagrave, 19, escaped injury.

Force Is Eyed To Clear Managua



QUAKE DAMAGE— A lone soldier, guarding against looters, walks down a street in Managua, Nicaragua, which shows heavy damage from the earthquake which hit the city Saturday.

(UPI Telephoto)

MANAGUA (UPI) — The government agreed today to consider using force to drive reluctant survivors of the Managua earthquake from their ruined city.

A Latin American relief official suggested such action to remove survivors from areas in danger of epidemics and shortages of food and water.

An official source said a Venezuelan relief official suggested what he called "gunpoint evacuation" at a meeting Monday night at the residence of Gen. Anastasio Somoza, the commander of the national guard and military strongman of Nicaragua.

The suggestion came as authorities—and hundreds of foreign relief workers—grappled with increasing problems of health, housing and feeding of residents who survived the powerful earthquake which shattered Managua late Saturday.

Official sources said many inhabitants refused to leave their ruined homes, some of them because they did not want to leave the places where kinsmen died when the earthquake tore Managua apart.

This, they said, inspired the Venezuelan suggestion to drive survivors out of the city.

It remained impossible to determine how many persons died when the earthquake struck, but estimates ranged between 1,000 and 10,000.

U.S. Ambassador Turner B. Shelton said he "knew" at least 2,000 persons died.

The toll of injured ran into the thousands and many of the seriously hurt were flown to other Latin American countries for treatment. A huge international relief operation was launched, with funds and experts arriving from around the world. U.S. aircraft flew in tons of emergency supplies.

Army troops carried out mass burials, but many bodies remained buried under tons of debris, some of it piled 15 feet high in streets. The stench of death was so powerful it drove some rescuers back choking.

A man who piloted bombers in Europe during World War II said the devastation reminded him of war-destroyed cities. Gutted buildings jutted into the air and smouldering wreckage littered plazas and parks.

"Many of the people won't leave," said Dr. Camilio Vigil, a Managua physician and member of the U.N. World Health Organization (WHO). "It's because they do not feel the need to go and some do not have transportation."

To cope with transportation shortages, the government decided Monday night to commandeer all trucks in the country. Somoza earlier declared martial law in the capital to make rescue and relief operations easier.

Other suggestions presented Somoza at the Monday night meeting included the dynamiting of damaged buildings to prevent more injuries to rescuers, police, troops and firemen working around them and the dropping of chemicals to help fight disease.

Some looting was reported and troops were issued shoot-to-kill orders in such cases. But much of the city was empty and lifeless.

Officials said perhaps as many as 300,000 inhabitants already have fled, using everything from ox carts to bicycles to flee to makeshift tent towns or nearby villages.

UPI reporters touring the city said relief workers were not giving food to refugees in the heart of the city but were feeding them in first aid stations on the outskirts of the downtown area.

Authorities said it was impossible to assess the damage, but some officials estimated the loss at $2 billion. That would make it the most costly of three earthquakes since 1885 which have destroyed Managua.

"We are determined to rebuild our capital," said Somoza.

Rufus Becomes A Proud Papa

LAGUNA HILLS, Calif. (UPI)—Rufus, once tagged the reluctant lion, may never prompt the headlines of his famous predecessor Frazier, but his first feat couldn't have been better timed by a Hollywood talent agent.

Officials at Lion Country Safari announced that lioness Zona, one of five wives Rufus assumed after Frazier's death last July, gave birth to three healthy cubs Christmas Eve and Christmas morning.

President Silent On Raid Renewal

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (UPI) — President Nixon, who celebrated the Christmas holiday quietly at this Florida villa, remained silent today on the resumption of the massive air war against North Vietnam.

There were earlier signs that the chief executive might prolong a holiday bombing halt to induce Hanoi to return to the peace table.

But Nixon aides ceclined all comment on "milillary operations" today when the U.S. Command in Saigon announced the resumption of the bombing after a 36-hour let-up.

There were indications of behind-the-scenes diplomacy to get the secret negotiations, broken off on Dec. 13, back on the track.

Some officials were saying the stalled peace talks may resume "sooner than you expect."

Nixon, operating with a skeleton staff at his festively decorated bayfront villa, has studiously refrained from any public comment on the recent escalation of the air war over Vietnam.

Indications were that the President would soon wind up his Florida holiday stay. He has been in contact with National Security Affairs Adviser Henry A. Kissinger and has been receiving regular reports from the 24-hour "situation room" in the White House.

In Paris, the Hanoi peace delegation said U.S. war planes, including B52's, had stepped up the bombing of North Vietnam with a view of "razing to the ground" Hanoi, Haiphong and many other populous towns.

"Continuing to commit crimes against the Vietnamese people, the Nixon administration, in the night of Dec. 24 and as of Dec. 26, has multiplied raids by B52's and various other types of aircraft with a view of razing to the ground Hanoi, Haiphong and numerous other towns and populous areas of North Vietnam," the delegation said.

The delegation said in the first official North Vietnamese reaction to the resumed air war that the bombings must be halted if the United States wants to hold "serious" peace negotiations.

The statement said the first condition to be met for such talks was for the United States to return to the situation before Dec.18, the day on which the latest U.S. air offensive was launched.

"Defying vigorous condemnations of the Vietnamese people, of the world opinion and broad segments of American public opinion, the Nixon administration persists in reneging on its pledge to stop bombings of Hanoi, abstaining from bombing above the 20th Parallel and restricting bombings below the 20th Parallel to create a favorable climate for negotiations," the Hanoi delegation said.

It was the first time Hanoi publicly mentioned such an alleged understanding to limit the U.S. air war during the talks. The top-level secret negotiations between White House aide Henry A. Kissinger and Hanoi's Le Duc Tho ended in deadlock Dec. 13, five days before President Nixon ordered the resumption of the air strikes.

"The Vietnamese people as a whole wishes to vigorously denounce this warlike policy of the Nixon administration," the Hanoi delegation said. Its members already have delivered two protests over the bombings to the U.S. delegation at low-level "technical" mutings on a cease-fire agreement, walking out from each meeting immediately afterwards.

"If the Nixon administration truly wishes to settle the Vietnamese problem through serious negotiations, it must immediately stop all acts of war escalation against the Democratic Republic of Vietnam, give up its threats of ultimatums of using force and above all return to the situation which obtained before Dec. 18," the Hanoi statement said.

"If, on the contrary, it refuses to negotiate seriously and seeks to subjugate the Vietnamese people by the power of the bombs, then the Vietnamese people is determined to pursue its resistance and inflict a deserved punishment upon the aggressor," the Hanoi peace delegation said.

U.S. Resumes Bombing Strikes On Vietnam After Yule Break

SAIGON (UPI) — The U.S. Command announced today U.S. bombers had resumed their raids over North Vietnam after a 36-hour Christmas halt, and the North Vietnamese delegation in Paris said B52s were hitting Hanoi, Haiphong and other cities.

The Christmas halt in the bombings that the Communists said hit North Vietnam with 40,000 tons of bombs last week —double the explosive power of the atomic bomb that fell on Hiroshima — was believed ordered by President Nixon in hopes the Communists would return to the peace table.

Japanese Quake

TOKYO (UPI) —A mild earthquake jolted northern Japan today. The government's meteorological agency said the quake had an intensity of 2 on the Japanese scale of 7 in Tsukidate, Miyagi Prefecture, and of 1 in Sendai, Miyagi Prefecture, about 150 miles north of Tokyo.

Neither the U.S. Command in Saigon nor the Florida White House in Key Biscayne would comment on this report, and the U.S. Command would not say whether the bombing resumed today was aimed at the Hanoi-Haiphong area or was as intensive as last week's bombing — the most intensive of the war.

But in Paris the North Vietnamese issued a statement saying, "The Nixon administration, in the night of Dec. 24 and as of Dec. 26 has multiplied raids by B52s and various other types of aircraft with a view of razing to the ground Hanoi, Haiphong and numerous other towns and populous areas of North Vietnam."

And in Moscow, for the second time in four days, the Soviet Union urged an immediate end to U.S. bombing of North Vietnam and that a cease-fire agreement be signed.

The latest statement came Monday from Premier Alexei N. Kosygin at a Kremlin meeting with Hanoi's ambassador to Moscow, Vo Thuc Dong. The Tass news agency quoted Kosygin as saying:

"The United States bears grave responsibility for senseless brutalities with relation to the Vietnamese people who enjoy the sympathy and support of all peace-loving forces.

"The U.S.S.R. government expects that the armed actions against the Democratic Republic of (North) Vietnam will be immediately terminated and that the agreement to cease fire and to restore peace in Vietnam will be signed."

During last week's raids the U.S. Command gave few details of the bombing and the reports of vast destruction to Hanoi and Haiphong came only from Communist news agencies or from diplomats in Hanoi. Hanoi Radio reported hundreds of persons killed and thousands made homeless in the raids.

"U.S. air crews resumed operations over North Vietnam at 1300 hours (midnight EST Monday) today after a 36-hour holiday standdown," the command said.

"There are no new limitations on U.S. aircraft since the bombing resumed," a spokesman said, but declined to say whether this meant U.S. warplanes had resumed raids over Hanoi and Haiphong.

U.S. pilots halted their all-out bombing of the North Christmas day. The bomb halt followed seven days of the heaviest raids in the history of the Indochina war and included B52 missions over the Hanoi-Haiphong area for the first time.

The North Vietnamese said the big Stratoforts laid down carpets of bombs on civilian areas in the capital and in other cities and towns. Command spokesmen today said Nixon's order to resume the unrestricted raids over the North included all but civilian targets.

Two Released In Club Bombing

BERLIN (UPI) — Police said yesterday they released two American women questioned in connection with the Christmas eve explosion at a U.S. Army soldiers' club which caused considerable damage but no casualties.

The club opened for business again yesterday.

No one was in the club when the explosion went off because it was closed for Christmas eve. A witness told police an automobile bearing a Heidelberg license plate was in the area at the time.

A police spokesman said the automobile was traced and two American women in it were picked up, questioned and released.

Truman Is Mourned, Praised After Death

series of tough, unprecedented decisions with nothing less than the future security of the free world at stake," Jackson noted. "He never shrank from those decisions despite the hostile environment of those postwar years."

Senate Democratic whip Robert C. Byrd said Truman "was the personification of all that is great in the Democratic party and in the American way of life."

Other world figures from abroad echoed the eulogies of the dead American.

George Bidault, French foreign minister during the Truman years, commented: "He was a simple, frank and courageous man. Some people made fun of his simplicity but I always admired his integrity, his judgment and the foreign policy he inspired."

British historian Arnold Toynbee called Truman "a very honest man, a very brave man," and cited his firing of Gen. Douglas MacArthur and the winding up of the Korean war as examples.

The American Jewish Committee recalled that he extended recognition of the new state of Israel within minutes of its birth.

"Harry S Truman was both a typical and an extraordinary American," committee vice president Carl M. Freeman commented. "The country trusted him because it knew he had no other motive than the welfare of all its citizens."

Sen. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga., said Truman was "a man of courage and conviction who called the shots as he saw them and made momentous decisions without fear or favor in accordance with what he believed to be in the best interests of the United States."

Former Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., calling Truman "one of our country's great Presidents," said, "I knew him in a very personal way and feel a personal loss with his passing."

Other eulogies:

Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., who sat next to Truman when he first came to the Senate: "Throughout his public service, and more particularly as he became President, Mr. Truman exhibited a form and courage rarely seen in national life."

Sen. Stuart Symington, a fellow Missourian who served as Truman's secretary of the air force: "He was a great American and a true patriot. Those who worked with him knew that to be true. And the American people are becoming steadily more conscious of that greatness."

Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., also a fellow senator of Truman's: "Harry Truman was a man of the people and the people loved him. One of the reasons for that adoration was his ability to call 'em the way he saw 'em."

AFL-CIO President George Meany: "Harry Truman was a great liberal, a great progressive, a truly courageous man. History will undoubtedly record him as one of America's greatest Presidents."

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y.: "His decisions on Point Four, the Marshall Plan, the post World War II situations in Greece, Turkey and Germany are among the most historic and courageous of his presidency."

Sen. Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore.: "President Truman's politically forthright and refreshingly candid manner won him the respect and admiration of all Americans. He also recognized and utilized the many skills and abilities of another former President, Herbert Hoover."

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., a successor vice president to Truman: "He was a builder in a world ravished by war. He was a healer in a world beset by disease, pestilence and poverty. He was a giant of a man who lived in troubled times and had the courage to make difficult decisions."

Nixon's inaugural committee: "The inaugural committee shares the sadness that prevails throughout the nation over the death of this great president and we express our profound sympathy to the Truman family. A sense of respect for the passing of President Truman will influence inaugural activities and specific details of how they will be influenced will be determined later..."

West German Chancellor Willy Brandt: "We mourn a statesman who courageously committed himself to the defense of freedom ... The memory of American President Harry S Truman will always remain alive in Germany."

There was some minor dissent.

The Communist-controlled East German news agency accused Truman of setting the tone of "aggressive imperialistic expansion of the United States" in his post-war policies.

Dr. M. T. Mehdi, secretary-general of the Action Committee on American-Arab Relations, said Truman's recognition of Israel "planted the seeds of perpetual war in the Middle East. The people of Palestine will never forgive Mr. Truman for what he did to them."

Mrs. Douglas MacArthur said in New York City she would have no comment on Truman's death.

Youth Held For Having Stolen Gun

A 19-year-old youth was arrested last night on Highway 101 by the California Highway Patrol after officers allegedly found a stolen and loaded pistol in his pocket.

Tyrone Ruffin of 49 Drake Avenue, Marin City, was booked into Marin County Jail on suspicion of possessing a concealed firearm, possession of stolen goods and being drunk in and about a public place.

Officers stopped at Ruffin's stalled vehicle on Highway 101 in the northbound lanes above Greenbrae at 8:45 p.m., and determined that he had been drinking. The weapon, reported by the San Rafael police as stolen, was found in his pocket in a pat search, the Highway Patrol reported.

A spent cartridge was found under the hammer of the .22 caliber weapon, and three loaded cartridges in the next three chambers.

Ruffin was held at $1,000 bail, and was to appear today in Marin Municipal Court.

He was sentenced in Marin for drunken driving Feb. 18 on Highway 101, placed on probation for one year and fined $302.

Inmate Found Dead In Cell

A 46-year-old San Quentin convict was found dead in his cell late Saturday night, prison officials reported today.

Jackson Leroy Spilsbury, whose body was found by an officer, apparently died of natural causes, according to the coroner's office.

An autopsy was to be performed at Daphne Funerals, Corte Madera.

Spilsbury had been in and out of the state prison system since 1948, when he was convicted of first degree robbery in San Bernardino County. He escaped from a conservation camp in 1951 but was recaptured the same year.

He later was paroled three times but was returned to prison each time for parole violations.

His survivors include his mother, who lives in Courtland, San Bernardino County.

Cremation was to be at the prison.

Mrs. McLemore Asks Dissolution

Royce McLemore, 29-year-old Marin City housewife who was an unsuccessful candidate in 1970 for the Sausalito School District board, has filed a petition in Marin Superior Court asking her marriage to Emanuel McLemore be dissolved.

She also asked custody of the couple's six children, whose ages range from 14 years to 1 year old.

Mrs. McLemore's petition, accompanied by a declaration to the court that she is a pauper, was filed by the Marin County Legal Aid Society.

Mrs. McLemore has worked as a volunteer in the Sausalito schools.

Missing Felon Still At Large

A San Quentin inmate who walked away from a minimum security area at the prison Friday was still missing today, officials said.

The escapee is Jesus Silva, 26, who was sentenced for first degree robbery in Los Angeles County in 1970. He had been at San Quentin since 1971.

Officials said he was discovered missing from the prison ranch at 7:15 p.m.

Silva was described as being 5 feet 10 inches tall, weighing 195 pounds and having black hair, brown eyes and an olive complexion.

Fire Hits DMV Office In Capital

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Fire today destroyed the fifth floor and spread to the sixth floor of the $10 million state headquarters of the Department of Motor Vehicles.

The fire started shortly before midnight in offices housing the California National Guard. A spokesman for the state Fire Marshal reported an investigation was launched immediately and included arson as a possible cause.

Hours after firemen arrived at the four-alarm blaze, flames and smoke billowed from windows of the building. One fireman and two night workers in the six-story structure were reported hospitalized for smoke inhalation.

The fire started on the fifth floor which houses the offices of the state Military Department. Firemen reported extensive water damage on several other floors of the buildings.

A Military Department spokesman said records of California national guardsmen were lost in the blaze. However, he said each home guard unit has duplicate records.

In another part of the building, Department of Motor Vehicles personnel removed computer tapes containing registration data on California's 18 million vehicles. Computer equipment was covered to prevent water damage. Records of California's 12.5 million drivers are kept in another building.

Man Tied To Burglaries In Marin

A man arrested yesterday in Nevada has been linked to burglaries in San Rafael and San Anselmo, police in both cities said today.

San Rafael police discovered yesterday that a city school had been burglarized after police from Carlin, Nev., called to report they had arrested a man with a tape recorder belonging to Oakview School, 70 Skyview Terrace, San Rafael.

San Rafael police said the recorder, found in the possession of Michael D. Cronin of no known address, was inscribed with the name "Oakview School."

Police after receiving the report found that a window of the school had been smashed and the recorder taken over the weekend.

San Anselmo police, also aleted about the arrest, said today a $95 check and keys taken from a San Anselmo doctor's office on Dec. 18 were also found in Cronin's possession. San Anselmo police said license plates found on a red Volkswagen driven by Cronin were taken from a car stolen from a San Anselmo resident on Saturday.

Program For Deaf To Continue

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A unique experimental Marin program for children who are deaf or severely hard of hearing will resume in February under a bill signed into law by the governor.

The measure, AB 210 by Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, continues the program through July, 1975, at an annual state cost of $17,260.

The program, the only one in California, was funded for several years by the federal government, but federal money ran out in August — forcing a cutback in the program. Children between 18 and 36 months of age were picked up by a state program, but those between six and 18 months were left with only minimal service because of the lapse of the federal program. They have been receiving donated time from the special teachers in the program.

Bagley originally hoped to win passage of his bill before the federal money ran out, but the bill was bottled up for seven months because of a logjam in the Senate Finance Committee.

The county schools office will resume the full program in the new semester beginning in February, according to Acting Asst. Supt. Edward Brennan.

Man Held In Probe Of Burglary

Prompt action by San Rafael police yesterday resulted in the arrest of a Novato man on suspicion of burglary and possession of burglar's tools.

Freddy Morris Sullins, 32, of 1490 South Novato Boulevard, was booked into Marin County Jail and held in lieu of $5,000 bail to appear today in Marin Municipal Court.

Police said they arrived at the Sub Hut, 4380 Redwood Highway, at 2 a.m. yesterday moments after a burglar alarm sounded at the establishment and discovered a coin box had been taken from a cigarette machine. Officers stopped a car driven by Sullins on a nearby road and arrested him after finding several coins, a pair of gloves and a screwdriver under the front seat, according to police.

Officers said they found glass particles on boots found in the car, and linked the particles to a window smashed in the Sub Hut burglary.

Transit Bus Driver Resigns

A Golden Gate Transit driver yesterday took his bus passengers on an erratic ride from Sonoma to Marin, losing his job in the process.

The bus was stopped by Novato police after passengers, who fled the bus in Cotati a little after 1 p.m., telephoned the California Highway Patrol. He was not booked.

Transit officials said that "in lieu of taking a sobriety test, the driver turned in a formal letter of resignation." The letter was "suggested" to the defendant, they reported.

DENTAL FIELD — Redwood High School senior Marilou Bird observes Dr. James Garrett working on the teeth of Roger Massihi from Iran. Miss Bird says she's always wanted to be a dental assistant, but since she began visiting Garrett's Corte Madera office in the Tamalpais High School District's exploratory work experience program "now I can see you have to be fast, and you have to know everything. . . but I know it's what I want, working in an office like this with just a few people."

JOB INTERVIEW — Diane Kay, a sixth grader at Santa Venetia School, tells Kathleen de Martini, a job counselor with Hansell Associates, details of her imaginary previous employment in a classroom session designed to acquaint students with interviewing techniques. By sixth grade, say educators, children should be able to relate career selection to their individual strengths and weaknesses.

Career Education—A New Approach To Old Subject

said Mrs. Greil. "And this has to happen because the kids are saying: Show us some relevance."

The philosophy behind career education isn't limited to having a student possess a marketable job skill by the time he graduates (although that's one of its aims). The idea is to move the concept of career preparation down through the grades.

Thus, a first grader would learn about the money exchange system as opposed to a barter system; a second grader would learn of the community's dependence on people performing jobs, and a fourth grader would study his home and what was needed to keep it going — and which things are luxuries.

This isn't as dreadful as it sounds at first, because that current bit of educational jargon, "decision making," would be translated into action.

Sue Weinheimer is working for the San Rafael Board of Education giving training to teachers and counselors on how to use the career education approach in schools. She cited a program at Davidson Junior High School where students are studying transportation jobs.

"They got hold of all the materials used by different committees for the Marin County Balanced Transportation Study," explained Mrs. Weinheimer, "Resources speakers are coming in and explaining their jobs, and the kids are going right into how you set up a transportation business."

The students will spend a typical commute day, she added, traveling to and from San Francisco on the Golden Gate commute buses, on a one-to-one basis with adults.

Carolyn Horan described another fourth grade: "The kids wanted to learn about careers with pets. The teacher went in the immediate radius of the school and found businesses relating to pets — a pet store, a veterinary clinic, a stable, a kennels, and a dog grooming parlor."

The children visited the businesses, she said, and quizzed employes and owners on their work, and their earnings. Then they did "pet math" (using what they'd learned from cash registers and professional billing) and "pet" writing.

Potential careers are organized in "clusters". . .according to the U.S. Office of Education the entire world of work is included in these fifteen clusters: business and office, marketing and distribution, communications and media, construction, manufacturing, transportation, agri-business and natural resources, marine science, environmental control, public services, health, hospitality and recreation, personal services, fine arts and humanities, consumer and homemaking-related.

A 14-year-old, ideally, would be heading to one specific cluster, if not one particular job.

"We want to train not for specifics, but for transferable skills," explained Mrs. Horan. She cited the current glut of space technology engineers and teachers as an example of too-specific training.

Nevertheless, under the career education model for kindergarten through 12th grade and junior college prepared by the Marin County Industry Education Council, a high school senior should possess "mastery of skills basic to chosen career cluster, or develop skills related to a specific job."

And by the end of the second year at college, the student should have mastered proficiency of the chosen career" as established by certification, licensed and/or required standards."

Reagan Held Facing Election Pressure

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Gov. Ronald Reagan faces growing pressure to consider running for a third term, one of his closest political associates says.

Gordon C. Luce, who takes over as state Republican chairman soon, says he thinks it would take an overwhelming mandate from both Repulicans and Democrats for Reagan to yeild.

No such mandate has surfaced at this time, Luce added, and he doubts it will. But, he added, "It could develop."

Reagan has said many times that he intends to serve only two terms. His second term expires in 1974 and a scramble is under way to succeed him.

The plans of other potential GOP candidates hinge largely on what Reagan decides to do in 1974.

Luce said he was convinced Reagan intended to keep his two-term vow.

Reagan has said he might run for the U.S. Senate in 1974 when Democrat Alan Cranston is up for re-election.

Luce, a San Diego savings and loan company executive, acknowledged during an interview that some prominent Reagan supporters would like him to run for a third term, but he would not identify them.

Some would like Reagan, who is 61, to remain in public office but "are not too encouraging toward" Reagan running for the Senate where he would be the junior senator from California, Luce said.

Luce would not comment, but these are believed to be some of the same Reagan backers who consider him a possible presidential candidate in 1976.

At his most recent news conference, the Republican governor was asked whether he was backing off from his pledge not to seek a third four-year term.

"Is it still your intention definitely not to seek a third term?" Reagan was asked.

"That's right," he replied.

"I've made that very plain."

Reagan has acknowledged that he must decide soon whether to run for the Seante or leave office.

At least four potential GOP candidates are exploring their chances to succeed Reagan: Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke, a declared candidate; Robert H. Finch, former lieutenant governor and secretary of Health, Education and Welfare; State Controller Houston I. Flournoy and Atty. Gen. Evelle J. Younger.

Luce, now the party vice chairman, and other Republicans are concerned that a bitter primary fight for governor or senator could divide the party, hurting its chances of holding the governorship and picking up Cranston's Senate seat.

He discounted speculation about a possible GOP "summit conference" at which party leaders would try to handpick the candidates for 1974, but Luce said some influential Republicans were working as "self-appointed coordinators" in an effort to narrow the senatorial and gubernatorial fields to the strongest potential candidates before the GOP becomes embroiled in divisive primary battles.

Tanaka Says Yen To Firm

TOKYO (UPI) — Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka said yesterday he will not revalue the yen but will try to ease pressure for increasing its value by limiting exports.

Tanaka made the statement at a Christmas Day news conference, the first since he formed a new cabinet following his reelection earlier in the month.

Catholics Asked To End Bloodshed

WARSAW (UPI) —Cardinal Stefan Wyszynski, Roman Catholic primate of Poland, asked American Catholics on Christmas Day to stop "the bloodshed of the innocent children and brothers in Vietnam."

"I express my hope that the American episcopate, realizing the appeal of the pope, will do its best so that the blood of the innocent children and brothers in Vietnam will not be shed," Wyszynski told a congregation of 2,000 at Warsaw's St. Johns Cathedral.

Is spiritual schizophrenia a business disease?

You see it often enough: one code for the conduct of personal affairs, a quite different one applied in business and governmental matters. The belief seems to prevail that we are less responsible as individuals when we make "business" decisions, that business has a different code. Not so. Neither the business nor the cause changes the priority of values. We are born to the community of man first; the others are secondary allegiances. Make your individual morality work where you work.

Same Faces Expected To Lead Halls Of Congress

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Some attribute it to weariness after a long political year. Whatever the reason, no one seems to be putting up much of a fight for leadership posts in Congress this year.

Except for some vacancies stemming from death and defeat, the 93d Congress appears likely to open with about the same leaders as last year.

In the House, the only announced challenger for the job of Speaker Carl Albert of Oklahoma is Rep. John Conyers Jr. of Michigan, a liberal black.

Though there has been some grumbling about Albert's leadership, Conyers' challenge is regarded as more symbolic than real. There has been talk that Rep. Morris K. Udall of Arizona might seek the speaker's job. But the feeling is that once Rep. Wilbur D. Mills made it clear he was not interested in that post, Albert became a sure thing.

The death of House Democratic Leader Hale Boggs in an Alaska plane crash launched a race between Thomas P. (Tip) O'Neill Jr. of Massachusetts and Florida's Sam M. Gibbons. O'Neill is favored to win.

On the Republican side of the House, Michigan's Gerald R. Ford is not likely to be challenged as Republican leader.

In the Senate, Democrats seemed certain to re-elect Montana's Mike Mansfield as majority leader. He has held the post 12 years, longer than any man. By tradition, Mansfield also has remained chairman of the Democratic Policy Committee, Steering Committee and Party Caucus.

Sen. Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia seemed certain to be re-elected as Mansfield's assistant.

Senate GOP Leader Hugh Scott, who twice has fended off challenges from Tennessee's Howard H. Baker Jr., may now be unopposed. This time Baker gives no indication of running. Republican Whip Robert P. Griffin of Michigan seems equally entrenched.

So far, Sen. John G. Tower of Texas and Sen. Robert Taft Jr., of Ohio have announced as candidates for chairman of the GOP Policy Committee. The job becomes vacant by the election defeat of Colorado's Gordon Allott. Both Tower and Taft are conservatives. It is possible that a liberal (perhaps Edward W. Brooks of Massachusetts) might step into that race.

There is also a geriatric contest between Wallace F. Bennett (74) of Utah and Norris Cotton (72) of New Hampshire for chairman of the Republican Conference, which became vacant by the election defeat of Sen. Margaret Chase Smith (75) of Maine.

Three Lines Given The Boot

JAKARTA (UPI) — Pan American Airways, Qantas and Thai International Airlines will not get renewed permission to fly to the resort island of Bali next year, a government spokesman said today.

A communications department spokesman said the three countries involved—the United States, Australia and Thailand —will not be allowed to resume their service to Bali "as a matter of government policy."

All three airlines are currently renegotiating their contracts for the Bali service, but it was believed the Indonesia government is taking the move to protect domestic airlines, which claim the foreign lines are taking too big a share of the Bali traffic.

TELECARE

Caring For Others Through Daily Calls

By MARY LEYDECKER

At one end of the telephone line is a patient in a Santa Venetia rest home — at the other is someone who lives alone and who is old or ill or both.

The call is a daily affair, whether it happens to be a weekday, Sunday, Christmas or whatever. The reassuring little ritual is called Telecare and there's a benefit for the people at either end of the line.

For Fred Zimbeck, who started the service from his wheelchair at the Rafael Convalescent Hospital, it's "feeling needed — feeling like you're doing something for someone."

For those at the other end of the line, the call may be simply a daily reassurance that someone cares about his welfare or it may, in some cases, mean the difference between life and death.

It all started about a year ago when two social workers, Lou Norton and Elizabeth Moody, who had learned about such a program at an East Bay hospital, persuaded Zimbeck to start Telecare in Marin.

"I was snookered into it," Zimbeck said with a smile.

Zimbeck, a healthy, active printer until he was injured in a fall some years ago, soon had the service underway with some assistance from the county Department of Public Social Services, who provide cards and forms, and the convalescent home, which provides a phone and advertising.

Telecare is a very simple operation but a very personal one as run by Zimbeck and his chief assistant, a bright-eyed cheerful woman named Gladys Burke.

Each morning at specified times, the pair calls everyone who is currently on the Telecare list, except those who have phoned earlier to say they won't be home.

Once a man, convalescing at home from double pneumonia, apparently got to feeling better and took off for Reno without notifying Telecare. "By the time he got back, everybody and his brother was looking for him," Zimbeck said. The man now phones days ahead when he plans to be out at calling time.)

The call consists of a brief chat, inquiries about health and some general conversation, a phone visit between two friends, which is what the people at both ends of the phone soon become.

"You can tell from their voices if they're trying to be evasive," Zimbeck said.

Mrs. Burke added, "One man didn't sound right so I went over everybody's head and phoned his neice in Hayward. The man had had a stroke, and was taken to the hospital."

Another time Zimbeck kept a woman who was threatening to commit suicide talking on the phone for half an hour until help he had summoned could arrive at her house.

Zimbeck, too, has called doctors of cardiac patients when he was worried about them and twice the patients have been rushed to the hospital.

Among the "clients" of Telecare, Mrs. Burke said, is a former nurse at the rest home who lives alone and is ill now.

Mrs. Burke, who lived at the rest home for several years. until a few months ago, is now a resident of a nearby boarding home. She was moved when Medical officials decided she didn't need the "level of care" available at the rest home, but she is driven to and from the rest home each day so she can continue with Telecare.

"We're going to train this one here, too," Zimbeck said, gesturing to another patient, Genevieve Murphy, a registered nurse now confined to a wheelchair.

Mrs. Murphy started in by calling her own mother, who recently came to Marin to live alone in an apartment. Soon Zimbeck hopes Mrs. Murphy will be a regular addition to the Telecare staff.

If the Telecare callers get no answer on a call, ("I always let it ring a long time," Mrs. Burke added), they immediately call one of two persons named by the client, either neighbors, friends or relatives, who can go check.

With their service now running smoothly and giving "more individualized attention" that a larger operation, Zimbeck is ready for more clients.

Those who live alone and who would like to be called or know someone who would, may contact the volunteer office at the Department of Public Social Services at the Marin Civic Center, who will pass the names along to Telecare.

Auto Union Eyes Boredom Battle

DETROIT (UPI) —A United Auto Workers vice president has a plan for cutting down assembly line boredom which he says could become a big bargaining issue when contract talks open up with Ford Motor Co. in July.

Ken Bannon, director of the UAW's Ford department, says the plan will "take more time out of the work year without crimping production."

It would give each hourly employe more paid time off the job by banking credit hours on a percentage of hours he works in a year. A worker could take off a week when he has banked 40 hours.

In effect, the plan would cut the work week to 38 hours over a year's time. It is the first indication the UAW has dropped intentions to negotiate for a four-day work week during contract talks.

It would, Bannon concedes, cost the industry money.

But he said it might also, in the end, prove less costly to the auto industry by reducing absenteeism, and improving quality by cutting down tedium. It would also generate new jobs — possibly 100 new jobs in each assembly plant if negotiators agree on a maximum banking of 100 hours per year.

Bannon proposed in the plan the belief that product quality would improve with more frequent breaks, allowing employes to return to their jobs refreshed.

But the industry may shun the plan as a costly one, with no immediate proof it will reduce absenteeism and improve quality.

Sidney McKenna, Ford industrial relations staff director, sees little evidence that a cut in working time would increase worker satisfaction.

Richard C. Gerstenberg, General Motors Corp. board chairman, recently admonished any proposal to shorten the work week in any fashion. He said any such plan would involve extra cost which would inevitably be made up in higher automobile costs.

Berlin Wall Opened For Christmas Visits

BERLIN (UPI) — The old lady BERLIN (UPI) —The old lady traveled by subway to the Friedrich Strasse station, moved swiftly through Communist border controls and then walked out into East Berlin.

"Here we are," a young woman cried. "Here we are."

The old lady's eyes glistened with tears as she kissed a grandchild, cuddling her in one arm while holding a toy elephant in the other.

It was no isolated reunion.

It was a scene repeated in one way or another hundreds of thousands of times in East Berlin and other East German cities and towns as West Berliners spent their first Christmas since 1965 with relatives living in the East.

Parents embraced their children. Brothers greeted sisters.

Under the provisions of a Big Four agreement to ease tension between the East and West, visitors from West Berlin poured into the East by automobile, train, subway, even on foot.

The Christmas traffic started Saturday and continued today, another holiday for Germans.

West Berlin police kept no count, but they estimated that at least 500,000 persons would cross into the East by Jan. 2.

This would make it about two million West Berliners to cross since foreign ministers of the United States, Britain, the Soviet Union and France signed the Berlin agreement on June 3.

The Wall built by the East Germans in 1961 has been open to Western visitors since June. But for the last six Christmases, the East Germans refused to issue Wall passes to West Berliners.

In no other country is Christmas more of a family feast than in Germany and East and West Berliners rejoiced that they were together again over the holidays.

"This almost makes up for the years of separation," said Michael Ritter, who was visiting his daughter and her family in East Berlin. "The last Christmases were sad for me."

Ritter carried a wash-and-wear shirt as a present for his son-in-law and panty hose for his daughter. Both were welcome gifts in East Germany although it has the highest standard of living of any country in the Soviet bloc.

Chocolate, coffee, citrus fruits, canned fruit, raisins, fresh vegetables and some textiles also are expensive or scarce. But there was a plentiful supply of turkey, geese, fowl, milk, eggs, butter, bread and other staples.

Israeli Patrol Is Fired Upon

TEL AVIV (UPI) —An Israeli patrol on duty along the frontier with Syria came under fire today, a military spokesman said, but suffered no losses in the first incident reported in the region in 11 days.

An announcement said a number of "improvised shells" —remote controlled bazookas— were fired at the patrol at 7 a.m. near Nahal Golan, two miles from the frontier.

Military sources said the ambush apparently was set by Arab guerrillas who had infiltrated the Israeli-occupied Golan Heights from Syria.

Folsom Inmate Stabbing Victim

FOLSOM (UPI) — Three days after he was transferred to Folsom Prison, Ira LeRoy Stewart was found slain on the floor of a cellblock.

Officials said that Stewart, 28, transferred here on a jail escape conviction in Lassen County, was stabbed once in the back Saturday as inmates were being moved from the yard into the building.

Officials said they had recovered the weapon, but had no suspect in the slaying.

Russia To Cut Factory Taxes

MOSCOW (UPI) — The government announced a series of tax cuts for factory and office today and said they were intended to increase the wellbeing of all Russians.

The news agency Tass said the presidium of the Supreme Soviet issued a decree exempting office and factory earnings of up to $85 monthly from taxation and reducing by an average of about one-third earnings up o $109.80.

The report did not say how many persons were covered by the decree.

PRESCHOOL CHILDREN were taught about ecology, nature and the Earth in late June when they participated in "Created the Earth" with movement, sound and fantasy on the Ross School lawn. Balance of nature and preservation of the Earth were infused into small children's curriculum in many parts of conservation-minded Marin, and largely taught by women.

LT. BILLIE Martin was officer in charge of the motor fleet at Hamilton Air Force Base, an example of new duties for women in the Air Force.

A Year Women Became More Involved In All Walks Of Life

By BARBARA HOSMER

You might call it a higher profile, but women were more involved and more visible in 1972, perhaps than ever before.

Political campaigns, consumer advocacy, child care programs and charitable projects helped make 1972 a year of heavy activity for women.

It was the year that the hard work and activism of women's equality groups began to pay off — at least a little, as some women got better jobs, into law schools and a few elevated to corporate boards as various kinds of affirmative action began to take at least a token hold.

Women became more prominent in places where few had been before — at the politial caucuses and conventions, as candidates, on newscasts, on panels and at lower and middle management rank. One even was promoted to admiral, one to Cabinet rank, but no woman made it to the Supreme Court despite Administration boasts that President Nixon has appointed more women to prominent posts than any other president.

Federal affirmative action requirements did move an almost infinitesimal number of women up — in banking, industry and in professional schools as sex discrimination barriers grudgingly began to fade.

IT WAS a year of higher and higher food prices and great interest in "natural" foods and low cost recipes. Unit pricing and open dating in some supermarkets aided the careful shopper but did nothing to lower prices.

Consumer groups continued to bulldog federal agencies, manufacturers and retailers, while products such as hexachlorophine were branded bad-for-you. After much cloth-burning at public hearings, a flammability law for children's sleepwear became a reality. The President's specialist on consumerism, Virginia Knauer, came dressed in red, white and blue with a "pachyderm power" sticker on her purse to headline a Republican sponsored consumer forum at Marin Veterans Memorial Building which was sparsely attended and left some of the audience muttering "politics" and "nothing happened."

As the year ends, a consumer resource center is being set up by home economists at Tam High School to serve the Southern Marin area.

The China thing brought Pat Nixon's traveling pandas to America and a flurry of Oriental styles to the fore, but nothing to rival the '72 deja vu of Wedgies and the shirtdress for women. It was a year when fur coats and high heels were accepted by super fashion conscious men.

THE DIVORCED and single parent came in for much attention locally, with workshops and classes offered in unprecedented numbers, attracting mainly women. A dissolution office opened in San Rafael to lower fees for uncontested marriage dissolutions.

More women entered the workforce and, as usual, unemployment rates for women remained higher than for men, a continuing national trend.

It was a political year for many more women than usual, with women running for the board of supervisors, city council seats, and, in the case of Rep. Shirley Chisholm, for the Presidency.

Women made a net gain of two seats in Congress, but longtime Sen. Margaret Chase Smith of Maine went down to defeat leaving the Senate 100 per cent male.

California lost one of its three women in the Assembly when Yvonne Braithwaite Burke was elected to Congress and none of the women candidates won in November.

Women mayors presided over city councils in Sausalito, Mill Valley, Cotati and Petaluma. For the first time, women also serve as mayors of Paris, France, and Luxembourg, and Jeanne Martin Cisse of Guinea presides over the U.N. Security Council.

Marin women were active as delegates in greater numbers than ever before as Democratic party rules decreed that half the delegations be female and Republican guidelines urged tha women be represented in larger number than before.

NAMES WERE Marin news for '72: Princess Christina of Sweden paid a visit in October, Mrs. Clark Clifford was a guest of the Merritt Ruddocks in Belvedere; opera stars Beverly Sills and Mary Costa were visitors; Arlene Dahl arrived to help open the big Sears store in Northgate, and Mrs. Hap Arnold came from her Sonoma home to be guest of honor at the Hamilton luncheon marking the 25th anniversary of the Air Force.

Rita Abrams released a new record, "Miss Abrams and the Strawberry Point Children," with her hit "Mill Valley" on it.

Diarist Anais Nin talked to packed houses at the Redwood gym and the College of Marin, attracting an adoring younger generation.

High contrast marked some Marin weddings this year. Daria Halprin and Dennis Hopper were married at the Halprin home and danced the hora on the deck with a handful of other film luminaries such as Candace Bergen taking part. Nebraska Republican Sen. Carl T. Curtis wed Elizabeth Baker, who had assisted Dr. Shumway with early heart transplants, with Sen. Roman Hruska on hand for the nuptials at Christ Episcopal Church.

Many couples chose outdoor sites and hilltop settings to recite their marriage vows, and one couple chose horseback and another a helicopter over the bay.

Alana McFarlane climbed a San Rafael telephone pole next to the I-J to make a Ma Bell commercial with Carol Lawrence and for a national magazine ad. Alana was one of 16 women installer-repair persons for the phone company, the largest private employer of women.

1972 WAS also a year when the various segments of the Feminist cause in Marin met together — in March and again in December — to discuss needs and activities in Marin. Out of the spring meeting came the women's center committee, the monthly Marin Women's Newsletter, and a women's switchboard arrangement.

Redwood High's Women on the Move group forwarded its plans for a child care center to be located on the campus, and the YWCA moved to larger quarters to expand its program and focus directly on women's needs.

NOW's Marin Chapter marched and leafletted through Civic Center in its continuing push for equality in the County's employment practices and action on the affirmative action plan originated by its FEPC complaint. It also participated in formation of California NOW to coordinate statewide equality actions and successfully lobby ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment.

Women's studies courses, though few in number, were taught at the local colleges, and women's discussion groups continued popular.

WHILE MANY women teachers were out of work, schools used volunteers — largely women — in greater numbers. Other volunteers continued to raise money through a continual throng of money-making benefits, lunches, bazaars, fairs, style shows and thrift shops. The Marin Volunteer Bureau put on a summer day volunteer workshop while Marin NOW set up a task force to study the differences of women volunteering to maintain "women's place" from volunteering to change "women's place."

In the meantime the Volunteer Council of the Audubon Canyon Ranch separated from Junior League sponsorship, as league projects must after a few years, and the League funded the training of ecology volunteers in Marin.

In Petaluma a Creative Living Center opened at a church, similar to the Marin program.

In child care, the long-awaited College of Marin child care center opened — but at Greenbrae School until the old chem aud on the campus could be converted. The Pilgrim Park center will open the first of January, Redwood's center sought funding and there were hopes of the Fairfax-San Anselmo center becoming a reality next year. The county separated a County Child Care Planning and Advisory Committee from its Family and Children's Advisory Committee at federal request and it began to study child care needs in Marin.

A handful of women became FBI agents and Navy crew aboard a hospital ship, and a few Marin women were ordained ministers. The Rev. Jan Willette performed marriages at the First Presbyterian Church in San Anselmo, and Bettye Doty became a minister of the Unitarian Fellowship.

WOMEN PLAYED organizing roles in the mammoth Greek Festival at the Civic Center and the City of Belvedere's 75th anniversary, for which Mrs. Wallace Scott was the working chairman.

Ida Scott was also among charter members of the Northgate Group honored at the summer luncheon series at the Marin Art and Garden Center on its 25th anniversary. Among the founders who sat together to exchange stories about the old days when the women themselves cooked the lunches for the series were Mmes. Wallace Scott, Frank Baumgarten, William F. Booth, Clifford J. Flack, Arthur W. Feidler, Carlos Freitas, Harold N. Hansen, Fred Herrington, Matthew N. Hosmer, Carl Priest, Kent O. Seymour, Wallace Scott, Edward Shelton, Russell Smith and Miss Elsa Korbel.

Dr. Hulda Thelander was given national recognition by the Camp Fire Girls for her work with children. The Girl Scouts came several hundred strong to Marin Veterans Memorial Building to celebrate 60 years of Scouting and the first teenagers were elected to the Scout Bay Council board.

Junior Troop 2729 of Novato made a dollhouse and furnished it in Early American for permanent display at the Oakland Museum.

Senior Scout Troop 2130 of San Rafael made their own special camp for 125 Marin boys and girls bigger and better in the spring. The 15 scouts gathered donations of funds, food and materials for the use of the campers who could not otherwise have a camping experience. A whole bevy of activities were taught in the five day camp.

SOME 85 Rainbow Districts in California made a dream of Linda Elkin of Novato, grand worthy advisor, come true by raising $18,000 for Guide Dogs for the Blind. She had hoped her project would raise $6,000 and had a miniature dog house made to carry on her visits to Rainbow Girls assemblies throughout the state during the year. Through her inspiration, girls throughout the state washed cars, sold Halloween insurance and the like to raise three times the goal. Then 250 of the girls came to San Rafael to see Linda present the check to Guide Dogs.

Economics cancelled the Candlelight Ball of the Marin Social Service Auxiliary last year, but this year nostalgia brought it back. The 32-year-old May tradition saw the couples return for the candlelit dance at the Meadow Club.

Marinites go to Hawaii so often that it's hardly news, but the whole class of autistic children at Henry C. Hall School in Larkspur made an unprecedented trip this year after concerted fund-raising by the parents group.

OTHER CHILDREN had the novel experience of "sitting in" with the musicians of the Marin Youth Orchestra at the special children's concert sponsored by the Marin Symphony Association.

1972 also was the year that famed explorer and longtime Marinite Louise A. Boyd died; that the Class of '22 was honored at a golden anniversary at Dominican College; that the Marin Branch of the American Association of University Women and the Business and Professional Women's Club both marked their ruby years. Dominican College also inaugurated a popular paralegal course.

Advocates for Women was formed to assist and advance women's job and educational opportunities with Marinites Del Goetz and Rebecca Adams Mills and Susan Forney on the staff.

The Barry Mineahs took 21 youngsters camping through Russia. Many residents wrote books, but Diane Beeston's was an unusual view of Bay yachting with her photographs of familiar craft in various stages of troubles on bay waters.

Lynn Strong was the first women on horse patrol for the National Park Service at Point Reyes Seashore and one of the few in the nation. Of course she had to design her own uniform to be in keeping with the men's.

THE ROBERT Redford film "The Candidate" opened with memories for the many Marinites who appeared in it and the scenes of local places. For the film opening, Redford's mother, who lives in Marin, wanted no publicity, but its director, Michael Ritchie of Mill Valley, received a fair share.

Sally Stanford, who tried and tried again, was finally elected to the Sausalito City Council and in a speech to the Organization singles club here remarked, "If I ran my business

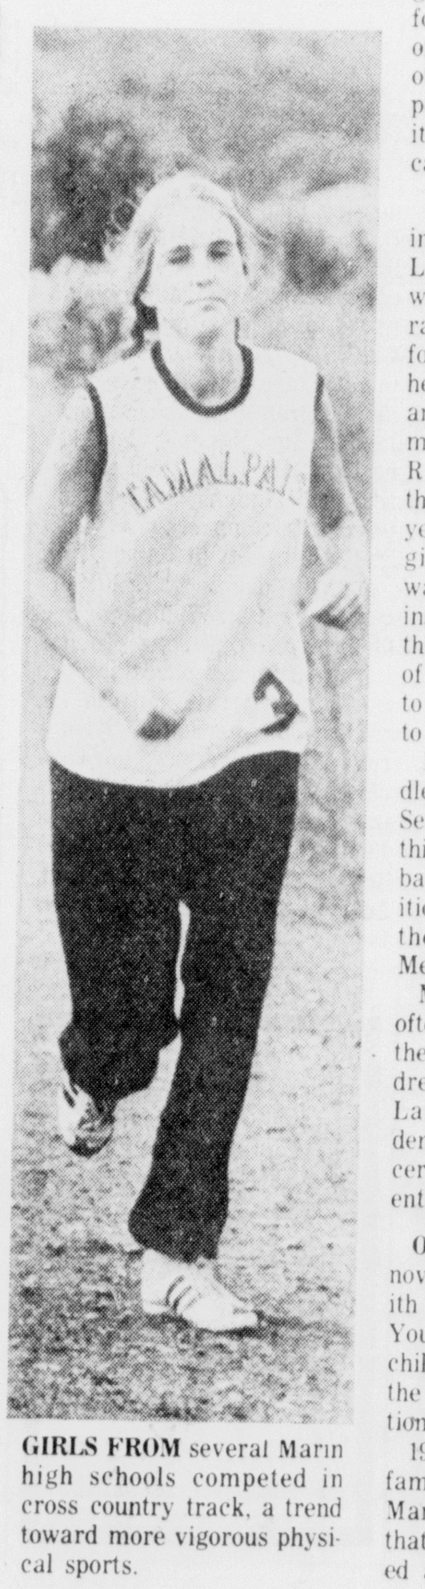
INSTALLER-REPAIR "man" Alana McFarlane of San Rafael starred in a national television commercial and magazine ad with actress Carol Lawrence to illustrate the slight breakthrough women made in here-to-fore men-only job categories. Pacific Telephone, the largest private employer of women, hired a total of 16 women for that job.



GIRLS FROM several Marin high schools competed in cross country track, a trend toward more vigorous physical sports.

SITTING IN at the children's sit-in concert was too much for one youngster as the Marin Youth Orchestra played and the Marin Symphony Association sponsored.

GENERATION RAP

by Helen and Sue Bottel

One Career Woman Believes Marriage Will Always Be 'In'

DEAR RAP:

I am 24, divorced, and not about to get trapped by marriage again! Like a growing number of other girls and young women, I'm solidly for single bliss. I like my career, my apartment, my freedom to move on whenever I please.

Falling in love? That's not out, but why limit myself to a lifetime (or a costly divorce) with a man I'll surely outgrow in a few years, if he doesn't outgrow me first?

Children aren't on my list of priorities, and children are the only real reason for marriage. They also snap the trap door tight shut, for they keep you in a union you'd rather break.

If anyone can tell me one good reason for getting married, I might listen. So far my married friends are unconvincing. The wives complain, the husbands try to date me on the side. If my current boyfriend and I hacked away at each other in public (probably in private too) as much as do these wedded couples, we'd be long parted.

Yet my boyfriend wants us to be "legal." He says I'm unnatural, not craving wifehood. I love him — for now — but I don't intend to spoil it by tying us both up in promises we'd regret.

At least four of my single women friends are also being pushed against their will by men who want to get married. Don't these fellows know when they're well off?

Do other career girls agree with me that marriage is going out of style? — NOT A CLOD

DEAR N.A.C.

This career women doesn't agree with you — and I say it happily after 30-odd years of marriage. In a world that becomes increasingly impersonal, impermanent —and lonely — I think we need marriage more than ever, but not the restrictive trap you picture.

However, others believe differently, and they're entitled. Wedded life is not everyone's dish of tea, as a growing number of "permanently single by choice" people will tell you.

And here's one of those modern switches: Where women once asked, "How can I get him to propose?" now they're writing, "I love him, but he wants marriage and I don't!"

I predict you'll get many comments on your letter, pro and con. — HELEN

DEAR NOT:

This career girl is pro-marriage too. I don't think it will ever go out of style, but it may change form a lot in the next few years. Here's my prediction: the divorce rate may drop, what with more people taking the "try before you buy" route and putting off the ceremony until they're sure of the whole package.

Anyway, isn't it great that people now have choices? Singles aren't considered misfits these days. Husband-hunting isn't a girl's biggest preoccupation (but it's still in the top three). And when is the last time you heard someone under 30 called an old maid? — SUE

(NOTE FROM HELEN: Make that "40" at least, or maybe 70, and then only if she acts the part. The term "old maid" is passe — except as used by lovelorn 17-year-olds. See below.)

RAP:

I think there's a gap in your "IGAP" ("I'm Guessing Again Perception") with respect to the "Doomed Old Maid" (the 17-year-old whose parents refused to let her run off and marry her boyfriend who then married another girl while DOM was out of town a few days). You rightly implied she was "'doomed' lucky," but the situation reeks of sub-plot. Was the guy after DOM to marry him because he had this second girl pregnant, and he preferred to inflict himself for life on DOM rather than the PG who was pressuring him? So maybe he got trapped with the proverbial shotgun.

Had she run off as she bitterly regretted not doing, she might have found herself with 1. a husband who was already an experienced philanderer, and 2. the possible joint responsibility for making child-support payments to another woman for the next 18 years. Whooopeee — that would be a hurt to live with! — N.M.

(Got a problem? Or a subject for discussion, two-generation style? Direct your questions to either Sue or Helen Bottel — or both, in care of the Independent-Journal, if you want a combination mother-daughter answer.)

Mrs. William Reiner of San Rafael was the first woman to be graduated from the U.C. Institute of Traffic and Transport.

Audrey and Alan Jarach hosted Ravi Shankar at their home at a party for the Ali Akbar College of Music.

People discussed the Burt Reynolds centerfold in Cosmo and the first all-male ude calendar tastefully constructed by two San Francisco women, and television's "Maude," who decided to opt for an abortion.

A SAUSALITO park was dedicated to the mmeory of the late Anita Koenig, Sausalito Woman's Club activist. San Rafael policewomen wore new pantsuit and blouse uniforms. Barbara J. Reed of Petaluma became the first female air reserve technician for Western Air Force Reserve at a Hamilton ceremony, and Frances K. Dias, former Palo Alto mayor, was the first woman appointed to direct any of the eight Civil Defense Regions. From her Santa Rosa office she has charge of six states, Guam and Samoa. S/Sgt. Carolyn Tonnemacher became the first woman protocol officer at Hamilton.

Mill Valley's beloved Mrs. T. made films of her famed nature excursions with children for TV films, with Audubon aid. Tiburon women formed FISH to give emergency aid and referral to the Tiburon area. Auxiliaries were formed for the Volunteer Bureau and the Pobble Shop, which marked its first anniversary as an outlet for crafts made by the handicapped.

Thrift shops for volunteer groups did a thriving business for local causes, with new ones opened by the Marin General Hospital Volunteers, Marin Child Development Center and the Katharine Branson School. Branson, too, played host to Barbara McClure White of Washington, D.C., only woman to career ministerial rank for the U.S. Information Agency.

AS THE old year concludes, one last salute to two enduring Marin women: Mrs. Pearl Ladd Arnold of Sausalito, who celebrated her 90th birthday by playing Beethoven at a piano recital for some 40 friends, and Mrs. Bertha L. Hatch of Mill Valley, who on her 100th birthday stood up at a reception and welcomed her 100 guests with a speech.

Male Nursing On Increase, Survey Says

I-J Special Report

NEW YORK — In the years ahead the term "man in white" may take on a new meaning because the number of men registering for nursing schools is increasing.

Opportunities for male nurses are exceptional, according to the National League for Nursing. Male nurses are in demand for emergency areas of hospitals, in psychiatric units helping emotionally ill patients and in the armed forces, where they usually serve as commissioned officers.

Male nurses are also needed in Veterans Administration hospitals because they can develop special rapport with patients. A nursing careers can lean to another positions within the nursing field as it has for John D. Thompson, professor of public health nursing and nurse educators at the Yale University School of Nursing; Gerald J. Griffin, director of the department of associate degree nursing programs for the National League for Nursing; and Ernest O. Denny, assistant professor and clinical specialist in psychiatric nursing at Ball State University in Muncie, Ind.

A man can prepare to become a registered nurse in one of three different types of nursing programs, a baccalaureate nursing program, which includes four years of study in a college or university; an associate degree program, requiring two years of study at a junior or community college; and through a diploma school, hospital centered training for two or three years.

No Short Cuts To Reducing

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — There are no short cut methods to getting thin, according to the California Medical Association. The only way to successful weight reduction is to learn new eating habits. If you eat fewer calories and burn more calories by exercise, you end up with less excess fat and more and better muscle tissue.

The association issues a warning against products and weight loss methods claiming to take off unwanted pounds of inches in a matter of days or sometimes even minutes.

Plastic or vinyl pants, sweatsuits and belts all have one thing in common, they cause sweating. The loss of water will decrease weight but as soon as the suit is removed and fluid intake resumed, the weight returns. Plastic, applied to the body as with a belt, causes perspiration and temporarily compresses the fatty tissue. The effect is not lasting.

THE WRAPPING method is currently in vogue for those who want to have unwanted inches decreased in a salon atmosphere. It consists of having the body tightly wrapped, mummy fashion, in strips of warm, damp cloth. The result is temporary, perhaps lasting 24 hours.

There are several popular diets built around the increased intake of water. In essence it is a trick to decrease the amount of food intake. The appetite decreases naturally from the full feeling from drinking water. The water-type diet regimen often includes eating only high protein food, avoiding all carbohydrates. Under these circumstances the body gets some of its caloric requirement from the protein in the diet but must get the rest of the calories it needs from its fat stores. Hence the body actually uses a high fat as ell as a high protein mixture. When prolonged, this can lead to acidosis, a harmful condition in which organic acids form within the body making the person feel light headed and not sharp mentally.

A drinking man's diet counts carbohydrates instead of calories. The great pitfall to allowing alcohol on a diet is that alcohol releases the inhibitions so that the will to diet is lost.

Most diet pills contain amphetamines which are central nervous system stimulators causing nervousness, irritability, clouded judgment, imparied mental and physical performance. They are only temporary measures since after a few weeks they no longer decrease the appetite. This type of medication is often habit forming causing severe depression after withdrawal.

Diuretics, which cause water loss from frequent urination, are not intended for successful weight reduction. Any weight loss due to gettingrid of excess fluid is regained when fluid is taken again. They deplete the body of sodium and potassium, both of which are vital for life support.

Doctors maintain that the only sure and safe method for losing weight is a change in eating habits and a reduction of food intake. A diet should be a normal mixture of food but reduced in quantity.

Double Your Pleasure With Rocking Chair Built For Two

By CAROLYN S. MURRAY
Distributed by General Features Corp.

Here's a fun idea! A Cape Cod rocking chair built for two. There's something especially appealing about the idea of rocking in unison — but I think the families with children will get the most mileage out of this movable pastime.

Rocking chairs are pretty much ignored by designers and manufacturers of contemporary furniture. Yet the principle behind the rocker is so basic it seems strange that more fresh solutions aren't resolved.

Many of us have had to turn to rocking chairs copied from the work of an Austrian family by the name of Thonet. In 1830 Michael Thonet invested a system for softening and shaping wood into curving lines. And it was in 1849 that the now famous Thonet bentwood chairs began to be manufactured on an inexpensive mass-produced basis.

Out of this family workshop came the classic rocking chairs by Thonet in 1860 and original versions of these rockers are now part of the permanent collection of the Museum of Modern Art in New York and in other decorative art collections throughout the world.

You've seen many reproductions. Some are examples of design piracy; others are being manufactured under the original family label, but for 20th Century consumers.

Genuine Thonet pieces usually have the name burned inside the rim of the chair seat or printed on a label, according to a reference book called "Decorating Defined" by Jose Wilson and Arthur Leaman, AID.

It's fun and educational to start a hunt through books of design information. Rocking chairs and the origin of the words got me started on a search for the original use of the word "rock" in connection with motion.

I didn't get very far, but decided on my own that rocking as a description of motion probably started with falling rocks or with the use of a rock, in a back and forth motion, to cut or sever something.

And the rocking horse or rocking chair probably started with a rock that was used as a seat — and it moved — consequently it rocked! Who knows?

I do know the Kroehler rocking love seat shown today is a far cry from the earliest crude rocking cradles and chairs of the home craftsman. It features a lot more comfort with its high, sleepy-hollow back, its button-tufted pillow cushions and gently curving arms. Just a gentle push of the foot and the team of rocking enthusiasts is off to pleasure land!

PEACE ON EARTH: SIGN THE VIETNAM TREATY NOW!!

A CHRISTMAS DAY PROTEST

With the National Christmas Tree for a background, some 200 anti-Vietnam protesters staged a march yesterday. It was billed as an interfaith service. A letter was impaled on an iron fence post at the White House, urging Nixon to honor his "pledge" to end the war.

Year Of Challenge Faces Market

BRUSSELS (UPI) —As British Prime Minister Edward Heath entered Brussels' Egmont Palace last January to sign Britain's entry into the European Common Market, a 31-year-old woman with a personal grudge against his government hit him with a bottle of ink.

In a sense, this note of tarnished triumph lasted throughout the year and appeared likely to extend well into 1973.

On Jan. 1, the treaty which Heath signed last January comes into effect and Britain—along with Denmark and Ireland—will join the Common Market, raising a six-nation community to a nine-nation power. Yet Norwegian voters took some shine off this event by voting, in a referendum, to reject Norway's treaty of entry.

In October, the leaders of the nine nations gathered at the summit in Paris, but agreed on little new except to form a "European Union" by 1980—a "union" that was left deliberately vague and possibly meaningless.

The expansion from six to nine nations made the Common Market, even more than before, the world's leading trading entity, with fully 40 per cent of world trade. But this show of muscle has brought the market increasingly into conflict with the United States—to the extent that transatlantic relations are expected to be Europe's top priority in 1973.

Just as serious, this power left most Europeans manifestly bored. Sicco L. Mansholt, the outspoken Dutchman who was Common Market president for the last eight months of 1972, accused the bloc of ignoring "real problems" and, by so doing, alienating the 253 million persons within its borders. Many critics focused on Europe's high rate of inflation and the market's failure to combat it.

The six original members of the Common Market are France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg. With the arrival of Britain, Denmark and Ireland, the market will embrace every major economy in Western Europe, will rank second only to America in gross national product and through its trade, will have perhaps an unmatched impact on the world.

This economic power is likely to increase. A key reason is that, in contrast to the still unformed dream of political union, the drive toward economic union is well advanced.

In March, 1972, the Common Market nations, for the second time, set off on the road toward "economic and monetary union" by 1981 by narrowing the bands within which the exchange rates of their currencies may fluctuate. What this means is that, day in and day out, the values of these currencies are more closely tied to each other than they used to be.

Eventually, the plan is to tie them so tightly that they cannot fluctuate at all. From that position of unity, it will be a small step to a single European currency.

Once before, in 1971, the Common Market took this decision. It came unstuck shortly after when West Germany broke bloc discipline by revaluing its mark. The second try, in March, tottered when Britain floated its pound and the U.S. dollar came under new pressures. But the market nations, in a dramatic meeting in Luxembourg, stood firm and the experiment survived.

Braced by this success, the market spread its wings—and collided with the Americans.

Last July 22, the Market signed free trade agreements with five members of the European Free Trade Association (EFTA), to protect these nations' trade when the market expanded. Finland is expected to sign a similar agreement soon and Norway, since its rejection of membership, also wants one.

This means that, by 1977, these seven nations and the nine market members will form a 16-nation free trade area. The goods of these 16 nations will circulate without tariffs within this area, but goods from the outside will face tariffs of varying heights.

The United States, smelling competition, made its displeasure known but took no action. But when the market tried to extend this free-trade concept to 10 nations around the Mediterranean Sea, Washington erupted.

In a series of verbal votes, Washington said that there is a big difference between EFTA nations like Sweden and Mediterranean nations like Syria, that the free trade area would undercut U.S. markets, and that Europe, in the guise of helping developing countries, was building an empire.

The market members retreated.

BEAUTIFUL BASE — When the announcement was made back in 1935 that Hamilton Field was ready to open, Marin County residents were determined to make the base as beautiful as their county. Civilians donated hundreds of trees and shrubs. The current security police barracks is pictured here with its freshly planted palms and oaks.

A VISION COMPLETE — Nearly 40 years later, the same building with its palm tree surpassing the tile roof. The oaks now hide the windows and shade the walkways. The biggest sign of 40 years of progress, however, naturally points in only one direction.

THE OLD LOOK — AND THE NEW — This front-line observation aircraft, an O-35 belonging to Hamilton's 88th Observation Squadron in 1935, is pictured flying over the North tower of the Golden Gate Bridge —then under construction. That tiny head with black goggles is Ronald (Snoopy) Green, who was taken out for a joy ride. Green will soon retire after serving 39 years at this Marin County base in both military and civilian roles with the Postal Service.

MOSTLY AT HAMILTON

38-Year Service To End Jan. 5

By FRANK FARRARA

AT THE BEGINNING — Flushed with esprit de corps and decked out in his boots and leathers, Private Ronald Green, United States Army Air Corps, begins the first of what proved to be 39 years at Hamilton Field-Hamilton Air Force Base.

Ronald J. Green, who is believed to have worked at Hamilton Air Force Base longer than anyone, will retire Jan. 5 from the U.S. Postal Service.

Green's federal service, both military and civilian covers a 38-year span, all at Hamilton except for four years in Santa Rosa.

The 55-year-old Green is the first and only assistant postmaster to serve at the base and will be the last since his job will be phased out after his retirement.

Green, a native of Sacramento, arrived at Hamilton Field in August, 1935, after graduation from Napa High School, a 19-year-old recruit entering the Army Air Corps.

"Yes, I can still remember quite clearly the first day I spent at Hamilton," Green said. "A Lt. Col. Tinker was commander then. They put me to work in the message center which was then in today's headquarters building. I used to take orders for stamps, PX articles and money orders, and then make a 45-minute drive from San Rafael to drop the mail and pick up their items."

"I worked there as a serviceman until 1940 — then I became a civilian sub-clerk for the postal service, working inthe same building at the same job for 42 cents an hour," Green said.

When World War II started, Green took military leave from the postal service and was assigned to run the Army mail service office in Santa Rosa.

He returned to Hamilton in 1946 and has served there since. "I've watched this base progress to several units, including headquarters commands, and then regress again," he said. "It has become almost a personal possession to me. You know, I couldn't count the number of wonderful people who have come and gone."

Green also commented that he believed the attitudes in the military have changed through the years.

"I can remember back in 1935 and even during the war, if you were told to do something and didn't do it, there'd be hell to pay. The young people are different now. They question things. Things are lax in comparison with the way things were when I came in. And you know, it's kind of funny. There was one time when I could say I knew everyone here. I can't do that anymore.

Green, a resident of Novato for 25 years, and his wife, Ann, live at 711 Lamont Avenue. They have two sons, Ronald Green Jr. of Auburn and Timothy Green of Honolulu.

TODAY — Ronald Green, assistant postmaster, as he looks today. Green is displaying the patch from leather jacket (above) worn nearly 40 years ago. His retirement plans call for nothing but relaxation with his wife, Ann, hunting and fishing and pleasant memories.

EXPERIMENTAL — Highly experimental for its day, a YB-15 rolls down the Hamilton Field taxi-way in 1937. The biggest airplane in the world at that time, the YB-15 proved to be much too heavy for the runways in existence, and was never mass-produced. However, its smaller cousin, the B-17, thanks to the experimental flights of this aircraft, had a glorious record in World War II.

Supervisor Unveils Plan To Save San Pedro Ridge

A Marin County supervisor has unveiled a proposal for acquisition of more than 400 acres of San Pedro Ridge between Santa Venetia and San Rafael for open space.

Supervisors Robert A. Roumiguiere told the Independent-Journal he will outline his idea tomorrow at 8 p.m. to the Santa Venetia Homeowners Association, meeting at Santa Venetia Middle School.

The area proposed for acquisition can be described generally as the undeveloped portion of the forested ridge overlooking Santa Venetia. It is a dominant feature of Marin's landscape for anyone driving south on Highway 101.

Roumiguiere, who said he has been working on the idea since he took office this fall, called the proposal "an alternative" to having the scenic slopes cut up and developed.

His rough draft calls for each Santa Venetia homeonwer to chip in between $1.75 and $2.75 per month depending on the value of his home, to pay off a 20-year bond issue at 5.5 per cent interest in much the same way Lucas Valley residents purchased the 285-acre Nunes Ranch earlier this year.

For the owner of a $40,000 home, he said, that would mean about $2.58 per month toward the estimated purchase price of about $450,000. There are 1,212 dwellings in the Santa Venetia area east of Highway 101.

"I'm hopeful the county (open space district) can help out, since the Civic Center is a part of the Santa Venetia neighborhood," Roumiguiere added.

The 407 acres being studied for acquisition are in six separate parcels with a market value of about $442,000, according to the county assessor's office.

One of the parcels, a 257-acre site behind Temple Rodef Sholom on North San Pedro Road, is proposed already for a 1,100-unit townhouse development by landowners Jack and Ron Fierman of Philadelphia.

Preliminary drawings for the project have been submitted to the county planning department by Sausalito architect Eugene Wedell and show five cluter villages nestled in the hillsides — most out of view of Santa Venetia.

The development proposal, which its backers refer to as "n environmental development," is bogged down awaiting an environmental impact study and straightening out of problems over its waste water recycling plan.

Roumiguiere said he had heard of the development proposal but quickly added his open space idea had not been prompted solely by that.

"I think we have to look at open space and recreational lands nearer existing communities," he said. "With the move to keep housing in the eastern urbanized corridor we need more local recreation.

"The countywide plan proposes this area be left in open space, I just want to see if Santa Venetia residents want to pursue the idea."

Robber Gets $200 From Gas Station

In what may, or may not, have been an armed hold-up, a Corte Madera service station was robbed of $200 cash on Friday evening, shortly before 11 o'clock.

John Thomas Dotson, 31, an attendant at Fitzgibbons Union at 700 Tamalpais Drive, told police he was standing at the cash register when he felt "a hard object" jabbing his back and a voice saying "don't move, don't turn around."

Dotson, a radar operator at Fort Barry, told police the robber told him to put money from the cash register in a paper bag. He said it felt like a gun in his back, but all he could see of the assailant was a brown corduroy jacket sleeve and a hand.

Warning Dotson not to turn around, the intruder fled, said police, and the attendant took several minutes to recover from shock before calling them.

Two police officers within 300 yards radius searched for the robber but found no trade, said police, and investigation is continuing.

Charges Filed In Fatal Crash

A Sebastopol man has been charged with manslaughter in connection with the Dec. 13 accident that claimed the life of a Sonoma State College student.

Allan M. Skarie, 56, has been charged with misdemeanor manslaughter and misdemeanor drunken driving. Skarie's car struck head-on a car driven by Debra Walcutt, 19, of 8025 Beverly Drive, Rohnert Park.

Skarie was reported in satisfactory condition at Hillcrest Hospital. Dist. Atty. John W. Hawkes said misdemeanor charged were filed because highway patrol officers found no evidence of gross negligence.

Window Smashed

Someone smashed a window at the Noramedic Building, 712 D Street, San Rafael, on Saturday or Sunday, but apparently took nothing, police reported today.

Store Owner Gives Chase

The owner of a men's clothing store in Bon Air Center chased a burglar who had lifted six suede coats worth $900 from her shop on Wednesday, reported Larkspur police today, and succeeded in retrieving four of them.

Margaret Jane Bennett, owner of the Magi B shop in the Greenbrae center, told police a young man with very long blonde hair entered the shop at lunchtime, then walked out with six $150 suede coats rolled up under his arm.

Mrs. Bennett said she chased the intruder through the center, and by the time she had picked up four dropped coats the robber escaped.

Prisons Closing As Crime Increases

"Susanville might be the only city in California that wants a prison in its backyard, but we know that we are not the only community that wonders about the system that permits criminals to roam the streets while its prisons stand empty."

That statement by Dick Myers, publisher of the Lassen Advocate at Susanville, resulted from the sudden announcement early this month that the minimum security state prison at Susanville will close by April 1.

Susanville residents are alarmed over the closing. The prison opened in 1963. In less than a decade, it has become an important economic factor for the little town (population 6,553), which was in the doldrums because of decline of the lumber business that provided its main support. The prison's $3.8 million annual payroll looms big in such a place.

THE CLOSING, however, involves more than the economy of Susanville, as publisher Myers' statement indicates.

It is part — along with the phasing out of San Quentin Prison here — of a state program of putting criminals on probation instead of behind bars.

There are now only about 1,300 prisoners in San Quentin, whereas a decade ago there were about 5,000. There are only 700 in Susanville, where there were 1,200 shortly after it opened in 1963.

In the meantime, California crime rates have skyrocketed.

Roscoe Antrim, president of the California Correctional Officers Association, puts it this way:

"What the public must be made aware of is that the declining prison population is not indicative of a corresponding decrease in crime, but instead it is a shift of responsibility from the state to local government."

IT WORKS very simply:

If a convicted felon is put on probation, the state underwrites the cost. In Marin County, this state probation subsidy is budgeted at $118,248 this year.

The state does this because it is cheaper to underwrite probation than to put a man in prison.

This program was started in 1965. Some counties — Marin among them — refused for several years to go along with it, but nearly all are now participating, lured by the chance to get state funds for their probation departments.

BUT WHAT IS the result in public protection?

It's not encouraging. Many felons free on probation commit additional crimes. As Clare Berryhill, newly elected state senator from the district that includes Susanville, put it: "We've got felons who've been arrested three and four times on probation subsidy. Obviously we're missing the boat somewhere."

Part of this program is closing prisons — including relatively new ones, built at high cost, like that in Susanville. Part of it is light sentences — county jail and probation — instead of prison terms for criminals.

And part of it is that we no longer can safely walk the streets.

Falling Leaves

Each vagrant breeze sends a few colored leaves fluttering to the ground. As it was in England, where the "fall" season was born, so it is to a lesser degree in Marin. It does not require an expert on word origins to figure out that the word for the season refers to leaf fall. The elms and oaks and other dieciduous broad-leaf trees, which made up most of Britain's forests, must have made the English countryside a brilliant sight this season.

SACRAMENTO SCENE

Opposition To Rebate Confirms Parkinson's Law

By EARL G. WATERS

The old battle of government spending versus surpluses is back again. The issue which always brings economists into conflict has been brought to the front by the unexpected increases in the state's revenues.

Changes in the economy unanticipated at the time taxes were increased last year account for part of this. The one-time windfall which resulted from the adoption of the withholding tax also contributed.

Governor Reagan has announced his intention to dispose of this spillover by giving rebates to the taxpayers. There is opposition to his plan on the part of some lawmakers.

THE OPPOSITION merely confirms a truism of government: Expenditures rise to meet public revenue.

And notwithstanding the wisdom of those who favor stockpiling revenues against the proverbial rainy day, nothing is more lastingly costly to the taxpayer than the accumulation of money in the treasury.

For every dollar left over in a government budget, there are a thousand ideas on how to spend it.

Unfortunately for the downtrodden taxpayer, it is usually spent in a manner which commits the state to new programs and thus becomes a continuing cost of government forever after.

It was this very issue which was responsible for the last legislative override of a governor's veto.

BACK IN 1945 the state had risen from the depths of poverty which had witnessed it issuing warrants instead of money to pay its bills. Huge surpluses had accumulated in the treasury.

The state had grown fat only because, with a world war utilizing all available manpower and materials, it had no opportunity to spend its revenues. The revenues had swelled from the influx of war workers and the war-expanded industries.

Earl Warren, then governor, sought to husband the money in anticipation of future needs.

But the late, wise old Sen. George J. Hatfield foresaw the trap. He may not have heard of Parkinson's Law, but he knew that excess funds in the state treasury inevitably lead to higher taxes.

Better, he said, to throw the money to the four winds than to permit it to be used to initiate new continuing programs.

SO HATFIELD devised what came to be known as the Christmas Tree bill. Under its terms the bulk of the surpluses were to be gathered up and distributed to local governments for public works programs.

It was a complete giveaway. It was a sailor on a spree.

The cities and counties loved it.

Warren hated it. He vetoed the bill.

Hatfield, cheered on by local government, promptly overrode the veto.

Governor Reagan may not be right in handing the money back to the taxpayers rather than using it for some one-time-only expenditure. But his determination to get rid of it before someone uses it to burden the taxpayers forever with some new program is consistent with his policy of holding government costs down.

County Plan Subject To Change, Says Planner

One of the main purposes of widely distributing the proposed Marin Countywide Plan as a users' guide through the newspapers in September was to solicit opinions from the public on how to make the plan better.

As the guide says on page 1 — "The plan isn't frozen — good criticisms have changed it and they can change it again — the planners want to know if they are on the right track." I did not expect the I-J editorial staff to embrace all the goals of the plan or proposals for carrying them out without thoughtful criticism, but I was disappointed in the vicious, unfounded knee-jerk reaction in the Dec. 18 editorial claiming "plotting", "scheming", "blackjack", "effrontery", "gall", "deceit", and "subterfuge" — all pretty loaded and serious charges. They are false. In my opinion, the I-J should retract these rash distortions.

The I-J editorial also says "we think the social environment deteriorates when deceit and subterfuge are used . . ." I agree fully. I also believe the social environment deteriorates when editorials use blood-curdling and emotional charges. . .

The proposed plan has three major goals — social, economic and environmental. The plan says they are not separate — they support each other — they are related — that is the essence of the plan. The parks and recreation commission has requested we change our proposal for tying open space priorities with housing . . . The county parks and recreation commission will present their recommendation for change to the City-County Planning Council. It is both fitting and appropriate that they do so.

Please put down the axe, you are not putting out a fire — isn't it about time for you to offer some constructive proposals for making improvements on the plan so that all juristictions in Marin can work together with a commonly agreed upon overall policy plan.

It is too bad that the bench and the press must progressively lose respect for each other. We, on the bench, think that before one can have any fair judgment of any matter worth speaking about, he must hear a little about both sides. You, in the press, seem to think that the first story you hear must be right. Why?

A case in point is the story about me at the Refectory in Greenbrae on Dec. 17. Your article of Dec. 20 was obviously libelous, but I do not propose to do anything about it. I merely ask why a reporter does not try to check out his facts before he prints a story like that?

The simple facts are these: Barbara and I went to the place Sunday evening after she had called and was told there was no waiting. This was at 7 p.m. We arrived about 7:15 and were given a short wait at the bar. We went to our table within five minutes and there met Jordan Martinelli Jr. We ordered dinner and sat there about 15 minutes. Someone then appeared . . . Barbara ordered rack of lamb, which I think is about $4, and I ordered steak terriaki, which is about $4.75. We had had two martinis. I suppose our total bill, if we had been served, would have been $11.50 or $12.00 if you include the martinis, which I think I paid for at the bar . . . After we had sat there for one full hour — or more — I got up and said that we were not about to wait any longer and did not want dinner. The assistant manager asked if we were going to pay for dinner, and I said that I would leave a security deposit of $20 and would sue for it back tomorrow. He said, "Do you mean you will pay for dinner?" I said, "No, I will leave $20 with you as security, but since I have not been served at all, I will not pay for dinner." He said, "That is defrauding an innkeeper, and I will call the police." I said to go ahead and he did. I sued the Refectory on the 18th for $20 plus $475 for defamation. Obviously, I could have sued your paper for a hundred times that. However, I am not angry at the I-J, but merely disgusted with reporters. Why in the Devil does not a reporter check his story? . . .

Countywide Plan Democratically Drawn

The Independent-Journal in its editorials about the countywide plan and planning issues has every right to input its own thinking, raise questions and express its bias. However, it seems to me that it does not have the right to:

1.) Continually mis-represent the circumstances surrounding the evolution of the countywide plan - which is, and has been, a completely democratic process.

2.) Wrongly and inaccurately attribute to individual members of the county planning staff both dishonest, Machiavellian motives and decision-making prowers which they do not have.

I would remind the "Independent-Journal" that:

a) Originally the cities and the county of Marin came together in a joint-powers agreement because it was believed that some of the physical and social problems of the county had to be viewed and treated from a countywide perspective.

b) The preparation of the countywide plan has occurred under the aegis of the City-County Planning Council, the intergovernmental entity created by that joint-powers agreement.

c) The plan has involved the input and participation of four hard-working citizens committees under CCPC.

d) The countywide plan - since it first appeared in preliminary form over two years ago - has undergone more than 75 public hearings - a continuing public forum in the best example of the democratic process.

Your Dec. 18 editorial entitled, "Social Environment and Open Space" . . . accused the county planning staff of "scheming, plotting, effrontery, gall, deceit, subterfuge" and questioned its "regard for fair play and integrity."

I would suggest (measured against my own experience) that these words and the attendant accusations are not based in fact, and in my opinion, do not have any place in responsible journalism. I was present at that particular park and recreation commission meeting. I believe that there was nothing in the manner of words of either Planning staff member which merited the description of your editorial

Snowmobilers Receive Assist In Enhancing Their 'Image'

WASHINGTON — "Out on the lawn there arose such a clatter that I sprang from my bed to see what was the matter . . ." No, it was not old St. Nick and his tiny reindeer. It was a fleet of snowmobiles destroying the silence of the night with their shrieking and whining.

That is happening in snow country all over America. Quiet and privacy are being shattered by sport snowmobilers who have little or no respect for property rights. In New England they bring in their vehicles from Boston and other cities and roar through the countryside.

With growing criticism of these easy riders that takes into account the dangers in hidden barriers, the snowmobilers have now found a champion. With a starting grant from Ford Motor Co. of $60,000, a public relations drive with the catchy title "The Outdoor Nation," is out to promote the use not only of snowmobiles but dune buggies, motorized trail bikes, and a new gadget called an "all-terrain vehicle." They are a branch of the motorization of all Americans with perhaps five million already equipped with powered vehicles capable of roaring through any wilderness.

A SENATE interior subcommittee, headed by Sen. Alan Bible, D-Nev., held hearings into off-the-road vehicles and what they meant for conservation. As Bible put it, once-remote scenic wonders are only as isolated as the capacity of the gas tank and man's desire to get there. A witness was Asst. Sec. of Interior Harrison Loesch, who described how the California desert and other lands under the care of Interior's Bureau of Land Management were being chewed up with an irreplaceable loss and the threat of erosion and drifting sands.

He testified that at that time, more than a year ago, on lands managed by the bureau there were one million motorcycles in use, 700,000 pickup trucks, more than 600,000 four-wheel drive vehicles, 80,000 snowmobiles, and about 50,000 dune buggies. The total impact of this motorized cavalcade on once-secluded places out of the American heritage stuns the imagination.

Last February, President Nixon called attention to the damage done to federal lands by off-the-road vehicles. He issued an executive order calling for a unified policy as to where such vehicles should be permitted.

THIS RAISES the question of the Nixon administration's attitude on conservation. In picking a young, inexperienced White House assistant to be director of the National Park Service, the President broke a long tradition of appointments from the career service. The new park service director, Ronald H. Walker, a former salesman in California, spent 10 months in Interior as an assistant to the then-secretary, Walter J. Hickel, who was subsequently fired by the President. Walker moved over to the White House to take charge of advance arrangements for presidential travel.

The Sierra Club found the appointment "profoundly disturbing." Thefear of Sierra and other conservationist organizations was that politics would intrude increasingly on a service that has had exceptionally high career standards.

The motorized invasion of the far corners of the land is part of the conservation picture. The conversationist groups have expressed the hope that the Outdoor Nation will serve a constructive purpose in setting rules and regulations for the use of vehicles that can go where hitherto only the hiker and the dedicated nature lover have been rewarded with a sense of solitude and lonely grandeur.

There is a place for the snowmobile. For those who live in remote areas, often snowbound, it is an escape hatch. There may even be a place for the dune buggy, but as one who has found pleasure and solace in tramping quiet beaches, I doubt it. That threatened beaches can be damaged is a fact of life on overcrowded shores. Noise, exhaust pollution, the breaking of the spell of the moon on the new fallen snow — all this is inherent in the drive to get in there fastest with the least effort.

Rural Waste Disposal Problem Might Solve Energy Crisis

Most of us probably think of solid waste disposal —getting rid of trash, garbage and other refuse of modern civilization — as an urban problem.

But it isn't. America's most acute waste disposal problem is rural and agricultural. It's how to get rid of animal wastes — or, to use the farmers' word for it, manure.

Agriculture Department scientists calculate American farms and feedlots produce more than one billion cubic yards of manure annually.

To give you some idea how large a quantity this is, Dr. Chester E. Evans of the Agricultural Research Office says that if all this were divided up equally, there would be enough for every family in America to fill an average-sized living room to a depth of five feet.

OBVIOUSLY, THAT'S no solution. But something has to be done, because the situation is growing more serious every year.

Years ago, when most livestock was raised on family farms, each farmer had a manageable amount of manure to cope with. He usually put it to good use as fertilizer for his crops.

Today, the raising of animals and the raising of crops tend to be separate enterprises. Farms that grow corn don't raise cattle — and vice versa. Cattle are raised in huge feedlots, each of which may generate more sewage per day than a medium-sized city. Chickens are grown in giant poultry barns, which have to dispose of tons of droppings daily.

And the farmers who raise crops aren't much interested in buying manure as fertilizer. They've learned they can use chemical fertilizers more easily — and at lower cost.

With no economic alternative available, many livestock and poultry growers are simply piling up ever-growing mountains of manure.

GARY SOUCIE, president of the Environmental Policy Center, says ammonia and other gases escaping from these piles of animal waste and chemical pollutants running off from them are causing widespread contamination of air and water.

Fortunately, there is an alternative if government and private industry will pursue it with sufficient energy. The Bureau of Mines has demonstrated in pilot operations that animal manure can be converted into high-energy fuels similar to oil and gas —fuels of a type desperately needed in America today.

Dr. Hinrich L. Bonn of the University of Arizona has calculated that manure from a single cattle feedlot could produce enough methane gas to supply a city of 30,000 people.

A nation which has a mounting surplus of manure and an acute shortage of energy may not need to deliberate long about the wisdom of converting the former into the latter.

REMEMBER WHEN?

10 YEARS AGO

Dec. 26, 1962

Most of the United States was gripped by a cold wave. Temperatures neared the zero mark in the Texas Panhandle.

Coffee at two pounds for 95 cents, large eggs at 43 cents a dozen, and pork roast at 39 cents a pound were among grocery bargains advertised in the Independent-Journal.

20 YEARS AGO

Dec. 26, 1952

British Prime Minister Winston Churchill announced he would visit the United States to confer with both President Harry Truman and President-elect Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Associated Press member editors voted Queen Elizabeth II of Great Britain "woman of the year" honors for 1952.

THE NEEDLE

By HAROLD COFFIN

In his second term President Nixon plans to concentrate on domestic problems such as crime in the streets — and at the Watergate building.

Dick's idea of facing up to domestic affairs is to take off for Camp David so he won't have to help Pat with the dishwashing.

As an ecologist Richard is worried about the environment — in particular, all those Democrats who surround him on Capitol Hill.

ART BUCHWALD

In Which Columnist Learns What Capitol Consultant Does

WASHINGTON — What does a man do when he leaves an administration after serving his President faithfully for four years? He becomes a Washington consultant.

But what does a Washington consultant do?

In order to find out, I went to the office of a former deputy undersecretary of Health, Commerce, Transportation and Meat Inspection. His name is Wendell Watercress and I found him seated in a large leather chair behind a splendid desk.

On the walls were autographed photographs of Watercress with Vice President Agnew, Atty. Gen. Richard Kleindienst, Sec. of Treasury Geroge Shultz, and the entire Joint Chiefs of Staff. And on his desk facing out was an 11 inch by 20 inch photograph of Watercress ,with President Richard Nixon. There was a Secret Service man standing between them, and the President and Watercress were looking in opposite directions.

MR. WATERCRESS, what do you do as a consultant?"

"Just a minute, please," Watercress said. He pressed a button on his desk. "Miss Cobey, if the White Huse calls, tell them I'm in conference."

Then he turned back to me. "What do I do as a consultant? That's an interesting question."

The phone on Watercress' desk rang and he picked it up. "Hello? Oh, hi there, Mr. Cromagnon . . . I was going to call you today. I checked into your complaint . . . Yes, apparently the brake fluid lining you manufacture is polluting the city's reservoir. The environmental people are pretty upset about it, so I thought we'd go around them and put the problem up to Commerce . . . Commerce is more interested in brake fluid than they are in clean water . . . It's a little more complicated than that, Mr. Cromagnon.

"We have to put pressure on the city to move their reservoir to another place. That requires dealing with Housing and Urban Development . . . I've got a call into them now . . . No, no, I think it looks good. The only hitch is that you people only gave $50,000 to the Committee for the Re-Election of the President . . . You'd be willing to double that? Good, that takes care of that problem . . . I'll call you back. Right."

Watercress asked. "Now where were we?"

THE PHONE RANG again. Watercress answered it. "Ah, general, thanks for returning my call. Say, I'm calling on a small matter . . . You know the Air Force contract with Overrun Aircraft Co. for the new Rattlesnake night fighter? . . . Well, it's turned out to be a fantastic plane. There is only one slight hitch at the moment . . . It won't fly at night . . . But this can be corrected for as little as $2 million per plane . . . Now, don't get angry. We're in this together . . . I can tell you something off the record, general. The President told me at church services last Sunday that he's counting on the Rattlesnake to be the bulwark of defense for the '70s. . . Good. . . Talk it over with your people at the Pentagon and let me know.

"Where were we?" Watercress asked.

"What do you do?" I asked.

The phone rang again. Watercress picked it up. "Le Blanc. . . What's that? The FTC has found your carpets are inflammable? We'll have to do something about that . . . I'll call someone at the White House who will give the FTC a piece of his mind . . . Don't worry, Le Blanc. We have a warm spot in our hearts for carpet people, and we're not going to let the FTC walk all over you . . . And a Happy New Year to you."

"Now," said Watercress. "You want me to tell you what I do."

"Never mind," I said getting up, "I think I know."

Truman's Comments On Various Subjects

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Harry S Truman was never a person to use two words when one would do. But he said many important things on a variety of topics. Here are some examples:

On himself: "Missouri has produced three notorious characters—Mark Twain, Jesse James and me. I'm a meat and potatoes man, not overly fond of pheasant under glass."

The presidency: "The honor isn't for the man. He is just a symbol of the office, the highest in the world. I did what had to be done. I don't care a hoot what history says about me. I know what I have done and that is enough."

On ordering the atom bomb dropped on Japan: "It was purely a military decision that saved thousands of American lives. No other course was conceiveable."

His toughest decision as President: "It was sending American troops to Korea. It could have started World War III."

On politicians and press coverage: "A politician is a public relations man who knows how to get along with people. If you can't stand the heat you should get out of the kitchem. The great statesmen were all politicians or they would never have been statesmen. They become statesmen after they're in their graves."

On the press: "Reporters are one thing, editors are another. I have always made a sharp distinction between the working reporter and the editor or publisher."

On presidential libraries: "Every president's papers ought to be organized so that students and historians can get at them in later years after his death. I expect to live until I'm 90. There's still a lot I want to do at the (Truman) Library. It will take about 10 years."

On his wife, Bess: "She's the boss. She's the baseball fan of the family. The boss is the fisherman of this house."

Woman, 22, Is Reported As Missing

Corte Madera police have issued a missing persons bulletin on a 22-year-old woman who hasn't been seen since she left a Corte Madera house in October.

Linda Carol Bowman, 22, was reported missing by her father in Los Gatos, said police.

He told them his daughter had been living at 122 Willow Avenue, and said she planned a trip to Mexico with a "Mr. Moon" in October, saying she would return Dec. 2.

Bowman, of 356 Los Gatos, Los Gatos, said his daughter never returned, "and he feels she is dead," reported police.

John Wiggington of 122 Willow Avenue said Miss Bowman did not get along with other residents of the house and left two months ago. No one knows where she went, he told police, and a "Mr. Moon" had never lived there.

Police said Miss Bowman is white, with brown hair and eyes. She has no distinguishing marks and no description of her clothing is available.

What do doctors recommend for patients in pain?

Doctors all over the country dispense over 50,000,000 of these tablets to their patients each year.

There are many medications a physician or dentist can prescribe for pain. Some are narcotic, many are available only on prescription. But there is one pain reliever, available without prescription, doctors dispense again and again . . . Anacin.

Each year, doctors give up to 50,000,000 Anacin tablets to their patients in pain. If doctors think enough about Anacin to dispense all these tablets, what better recommendation can you ask when you are in pain?

You see, Anacin contains more of the pain reliever doctors recommend most than any other leading tablet.

Headache and dental pain is relieved incredibly fast; minor pains of arthritis are dependably eased for hours; even the aches and pains of colds and flu respond to Anacin. So the tension and depression that can be caused by such pain will be relieved too. And millions take Anacin without stomach upset.

When you're in pain, why don't you follow the practice of so many doctors and take the tablet a doctor might give you in his own office. Take Anacin®

Popcorn!

Calorie-counting is a near impossibility during the holiday season. Yet, there is a low calorie snack which can be enjoyed by young and old. Popcorn! This ancient crop is unique to the Americas. The oldest grains found so far were located in Bat Cave in New Mexico. They are thought to date back to 2,500 B.C. The popping of corn seems to have been a common practice among the Indians of South and Central America long before the first European landed. Popcorn is not a good crop to grow in your garden. Its pollen will adversely affect the quality of the sweet corn grown in the same garden.

Pair Donates Land To Park

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — Two Marin County men have donated 160 acres of land to become part of Sonoma County's Hood Mountain Park.

The Sonoma County Board of Supervisors officially accepted the gift today from Benjamin P. Bonelli, an attorney, 56 Peninsula Road, Belvedere, and from Dr. Robert E. Oslar of Point Reyes Station.

The acreage, adjoining the park southeast of Santa Rosa, is valued at $120,000. Joseph P. Rodota, parks and recreation director, said the land will bring the park to 1,360 acres and make it one of the largest county parks in the state.

The Wedding Of Truman Is Recalled

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (UPI) —When former President Harry S Truman married his childhood sweetheart Bess Wallace, he helped gather the flowers used to decorate the little Episcopal church where the ceremony took place June 28, 1919.

Truman's sister Mary Jane Truman recalled, "Harry and I went out in a huge field of daisies and gathered armloads of the flowers and carried them to the church. Some of the girls got hollyhocks."

Truman's sister remembered her brother's wedding day was a difficult one for her and her mother, who used to boast that "Harry can plow the straightest farrow of corn in Missouri."

It was harvest time on the Truman family farm near Grandview, some 30 miles from Independence, and "Mother and I had to cook dinner for 12 farm hands, clean up the kitchen and get to the wedding way up in Independence by 4 o'clock."

To foil any tricks by Truman's friends, Miss Truman traded cars with her brother for the trip to the church, and "I was weeks getting the rice out of my car," she remembered.

Former President Felt Unworthy Of Top Medal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former President Harry S Truman, who said often while presenting the Congressional Medal of Honor that he would rather have it than be president, stopped an attempt by the House last year to give him the award.

Truman said the medal was for combat bravery and to change the requirements would detract from the medal's true significance.

His comments were in a letter to Rep. William J. Randall, D-Mo., who represents the district that includes Truman's home of Independence. Randall read the former president's letter to the House May 6, 1971, two days before Truman's 87th birthday.

"I do not consider that I have done anything which should be the reason of any award, congressional or otherwise," the letter said.

"This does not mean I do not appreciate what you and others have done, because I do appreciate the kind things that have been said and the proposal to have the award offered to me," Truman said. "Therefore, I close by saying, 'Thanks, but I will not accept a Congressional Medal of Honor.'"

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

A Reminder: Don't Force Enemy To Make Right Play

If you push your opponent into a corner he will take the only way out. And if you can foresee that the only way out will lead him to success, don't push your opponent into that particular corner. The point is illustrated in today's hand taken from the recent playoff held in Lancaster, Pa., to pick the North American team for the 1973 world championship.

Opening lead — ◇ 9

BOTH TABLES

The contract and the opening lead were the same at both tables of the match. Each declarer played low from the dummy, capturing East's jack of diamonds with the ace. Back came a diamond to the queen and king, and each East returned a trump.

Each declarer stepped up with the ace of spades and led the ten of diamonds. (It would be fatal to lead the seven of diamonds. West would get in with the king of spades and lead a club to the ace, and a diamond return would give West a ruff.)

RUFFS DIAMOND

At one table West ruffed the ten of diamonds with the king of spades and returned a spade to take the last trump out of dummy. This play pushed South into a corner, since he had a losing diamond in his hand. After drawing trumps, South led a heart and desperately took a finesse with dummy's queen. The finesse worked, and South had found his way out of the corner.

LOOKS AHEAD

At the other table West looked ahead and saw what was going to happen. He discarded the deuce of clubs on the ten of diamonds. South continued with the seven of diamonds, and West discarded the ten of clubs.

Declarer cashed the ace of hearts, ruffed a heart and craftily led the nine of spades. Young Michael Becker of New York was not to be lured into playing low. He stepped up with the king of spades and led his five of clubs. East took the ace of clubs and returned a club, giving Becker the setting trick in the shape of a ruff.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one spade, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ - K 7 3
♥ - K 10 8 5 3
♦ - 9 2
♣ - 10 5 2.
Whay do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two spades.

This weak response promises trump support and about six to 10 points, counting short suits as well as high cards.

BIRTHDAY QUIZ

By GORDON B. GREB

Today's listing of birthday celebrities goes from "A" to "Tse." Needless to say, there's a humorist mixed up with this group of heros.

1. STEVE ALLEN, New York-born TV funnyman, is 51 today. He quit college journalism studies in 1942 to take a job as a radio announcer and five years later was a CBS star in Hollywood. Besides having a quick wit, Steve is a talented composer, having written more than 2,000 songs, including "Picnic" and "This Could Be the Start of Something." Know whether he is married to Zsa Zsa Gabor or Jayne Meadows? Or neither?

2. RICHARD WIDMARK, 58 today, completed a bachelor's degree at Lake Forest College in Illinois and stayed for two years as a drama instructor. Then he went to New York to try radio acting, then the stage, and finally the movies. He was an immediate hit in his first 1947 film, "Kiss of Death," and his long list of credits now include "Judgment at Nuremberg" and "Bedford Incident." Has he ever won an Academy Award? Yes? No?

3. MAO TSE-TUNG, founder of Communist China, is 79 today. He joined the revolutionary army of Sun Yat Sen in 1911, became an army officer and helped start the Chinese Communist Party in the 1920s. Is he called today Chairman Mao or President Mao in Red China?

4. GEORGE DEWEY (1837-1917) was a United States naval officer who became famous in 1898 by sinking the Spanish fleet in Manila Bay. This victory earned for the American Navy superiority in the Pacific and Dewey was made an Admiral of the Navy, highest rank ever held by an American naval officer. Graduating from Annapolis in 1858, he soon found himself involved in the Civil War, serving the north or the south? Know which?

ANSWERS: 1 - Jayne Meadows; 2 - No; 3 - Chairman Mao; 4 - North.

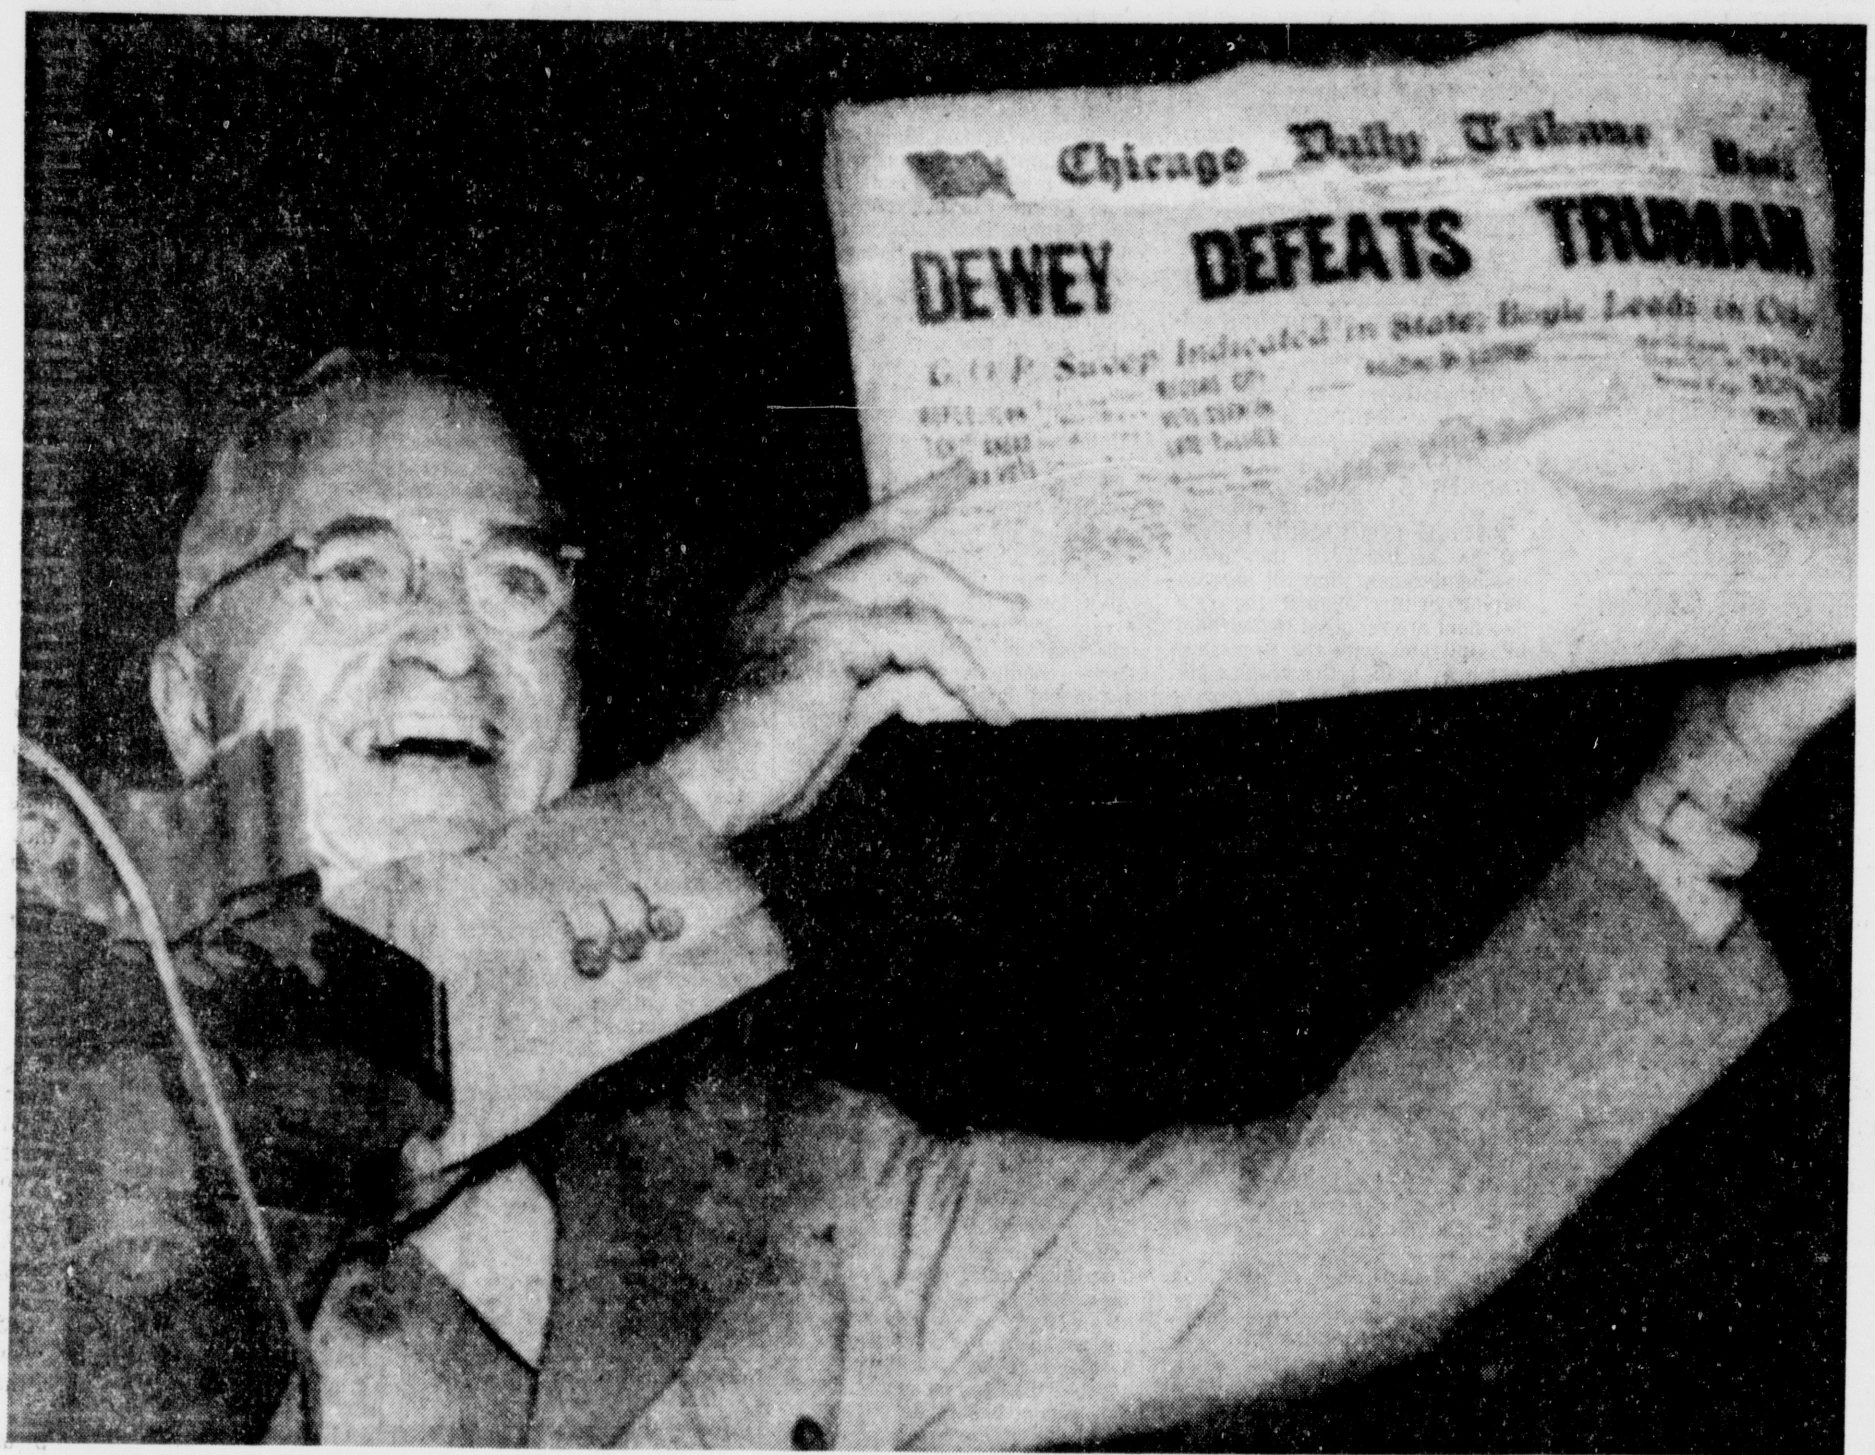
Harry S Truman— Man From Missouri



Chicago Daily Tribune
DEWEY DEFEATS TRUMAN
G.O.P. Sweep Indicated in State; Boyle Leads in City

A SMILING CAMPAIGNER — Harry S Truman gives a big smile as he displays his newspaper — Chicago Daily Tribune — announcing his defeat for the presidency in 1948. His victory over Thomas E. Dewey in that presidential election has been described as one of the most stunning upsets in U.S. political history.

(UPI Telephotos)

TWO LEADERS — Fate permitted former President Harry S Truman to outlive most of those with whom he shared a place in history. In this picture taken Oct. 15, 1950, he chats with Gen. Douglas MacArthur on Wake Island as they met for a conference on Far Eastern policy. He subsequently fired MacArthur during the Korean War.

Two Stabbed In Incident At Soledad

SOLEDAD (AP) — Two Soledad Prison inmates have been stabbed to death and two others wounded in an incident a prison official says involved rival Mexican groups.

Guards found the bleeding bodies in two central facility housing units Monday, said George Baker, Soledad information officer.

"This appeared to be a continuation of a struggle between two rival Mexican factions, the New Familia and the Mexican Mafia." Baker said in a statement. "It appears to be that members of both factions were hurt in the incident."

He said tension between the two Mexican-American prisoner groups had been building in recent months, Baker said the nature of the incident was not known, but several crudely made blade-type weapons have been found. The Monterey County district attorney's office is investigating.

Baker identified the dead men as Frank Villalobos, 24, of San Joaquin County, who had been at Soledad since May, 1972, serving a term for attempted escape from a state prison; and Pablo Najera, 28, also at San Joaquin County, at Soledad since May, 1971, on a first-degree robbery conviction.

The wounded prisoners, Joe Garcia, 30, and Arthur Chavez, 33, were in satisfactory condition at the prison hospital, Baker said.

He said another incident involving the rival prison-based gangs occurred last week at the state prison in Chino.

Robbers Take Cash At Church

FRESNO, Calif. (UPI) — Armed bandits invaded a church during Christmas Eve services and robbed six members of the congregation of a total of $80.

Police said that despite the intrusion of three bandits, one of them armed with a shiny revolver, the services continued at the Church of God in West Fresno.

No report was made, police added, until an hour after the holdup. Purses and wallets of worshipers were taken.

The Children Play Cupid In Marriage

BENTON HARBOR, Mich. (UPI) —In a Christmas season surprise from their nine children, Royce R. Champion and his second wife were married for a second time while Champion was lying in a hospital bed.

Champion and his ex-wife, Leona, both 46, of Benton Harbor had been planning to remarry for some time, but an extended illness and money troubles prevented that.

So his five children from a previous marriage and her four played Cupid, surprising them three days before Christmas with ceremony plans — complete with flowers, cake and guest list of Berrien General Hospital employes.

"It was supposed to be a Christmas Day surprise," Mrs. Champion said Monday. "But they had to let us know ahead of time so we could get a marriage license."

Mrs. Champion wore a knee-length red dress for the ceremony. A shirt, tie and sport coat was placed over Champion's hospital gown.

The Champions were divorced in 1969 following an eight-year marriage because of "the usual troubles," Mrs. Champion said.

"But we knew almost from the start it was a mistake. Neither of us found anyone else we liked. I guess we were always in love with each other," said Mrs. Champion.

It was Mrs. Champion's eldest daughter, Sandra, 22, who instigated the plot, collecting money from her natural siblings and step brothers and sisters, ranging in age from 25 to 15.

"She knows just how to make her mother happy," Mrs. Champion said.

Champion, widowed in his first marriage, has been in and out of the hospital since last spring, suffering a back injury in a fall on a carpentry job and four heart attacks. He has been out of work since the fall.

His latest hospital stay has been four weeks long, and doctors say it will be at least a couple of more weeks before he's able to go home.

"I really don't feel like a new bride," Mrs. Champion said. "I guess that'll have to wait until I can bring him home. Until then, I'll just take care of him, like I always wanted to."

Boy's Dream Comes True

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Danny Roberts' dream of becoming a San Francisco fireman came true—11 years earlier than he expected.

The 9-year-old youngster is Engine Company 41's biggest fan, friend and volunteer worker.

Sunday, Fire Chief Keith Calden made Danny "an honorary member of Engine Company 41, by the order of the officers and men of the company."

A red wagon, officer's belt, citation, a fireman's card and a box of candy went along with the Christmas presentation by Calden, with Engine 41 friends looking on outside Danny's house.

Park To Begin Six-Year Term

SEOUL (UPI) — South Korean President Park Chung-hee will take up his new six-year presidential term Wednesday, returning his nation to full constitutional rule based on a new political order.

Park, elected Saturday to the new term by the National Conference for Unification, will take the oath of office in an inaugural ceremony to be held at Changchung Municipal Gymnasium. Shortly before his inauguration, the government will officially endorse a new constitutional law adopted through a national referendum Nov. 21.

With the new basic law going into force and Park inaugurated, full constitutional government will be restored and political activities that were banned over the past two and a half months will be allowed to resume.

Brother Dead From Quarrel

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A Christmas night quarrel between two brothers has resulted in one of them being killed and the other being charged with murder.

Police said the victim, David B. Schouten, 34, and his brother, Ralph Schouten, 37, had been quarreling over something David had said in a Christmas telephone call to their grandmother.

Police said Ralph was shot in the chest.

Officers were summoned by the younger brother.

Thieves Take The Turkey, Too

GREENWICH, N.Y. (UPI) — Walter Fish, his wife and their four children came home just before midnight Christmas Eve to find their front door had been forced open.

All the presents had been stolen from under the Christmas tree. When they looked in the refrigerator, they saw that even the famiily turkey had been taken.

Speedy Drive To Freedom

HOF, Germany (AP) — An East German electrician caught Communist border guards napping early today and rammed his speeding auto through three border barriers on the Berlin-Hof autobahn to escape into West Germany. Bavarian police reported.

Not realizing he had already crossed the border, the refugee kept his foot on the gas and shattered another autobahn crossing gate manned by Bavarian border police. The police gave chase to the battered car.

When they caught up with the electrician, his first question was' "Am I in West Germany?" Assured that he was, the refugee gave a sigh of relief.

Sailor Lass Not Happy With Navy

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — Life aboard ship with nearly 500 men isn't all it's cracked up to be, according to at least one Navy lass.

Rebecca Johnson, 18, is one of 40 women aboard the USS Sanctuary, the only co-ed ship in the Navy.

"Things may change, but at this time I don't feel I'd be suited for Navy life," Miss Johnson said while visiting her home during Christmas. She said she doesn't care much for the strict regulations.

"They made restrictions (in boot camp) that if a guy talked to one of us he could be put in the brig for a month," Miss Johnson said. "But sometimes when no one was looking, they would walk by and try to act funny."

There were a few secret boot camp romances but "about the only time a couple could see each other was in church or something like that."

At the end of boot camp, Miss Johnson volunteered to serve on the hospital ship Sanctuary and was sent to Norfolk, Va., for training as a ship's clerk. Two weeks ago she was permanently assigned to the Sanctuary, which is undergoing remodeling at San Francisco.

Miss Johnson said she and the other women have been well received by the rest of the crew.

"The guys try to help us when we're carrying boxes and things like that," she said. "Being on board is interesting. I've never been on a ship that big."

She said the ship is totally integrated except for the women's quarters, which are off limits to men.

But she said that as interesting as the Sanctuary might be, it doesn't really make up for having to do everything the Navy way. She said she doubted that when her hitch is up in 2 1-2 years she would sign up again.

Protest Handed To Nixon Leader

MOUNTAIN LAKES, N.J. (UPI) —Harry L. Sears, chairman of President Nixon's New Jersey re-election campaign, promised to pass along to the President a message from some 100 local citizens who protested renewed bombing in North Vietnam in front of Sears' home Christmas Day.

"I was surprised and disappointed at the renewal of bombing," Sears told newsmen. However, he said, "There's nobody in my opinion who wants more desperately to end the war than he (Nixon) does. I'm not at this point prepared to abandon him."

Leaders of the demonstrators handed Sears a page-long statement calling on those "who were responsible for the re-election of the President to disavow their role."

Gorillas Get Visit From Santa

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — Santa Claus didn't forget four young gorillas at Woodland Park.

Historic Structures Disappearing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — James Biddle doesn't like to see America's history paved over.

Biddle is president of the National Trust for Historic Preservation, a group devoted to working for the preservation of historic structures which are in danger of being swept away by progress.

Writing in Travel Leisure magazine, Biddle said that of 1,500 buildings listed by the federal government in 1933 as having historical significance, nearly half have been torn down.

"We Americans must decide if we want to preserve what we have or if we just want to pave it over, high-rise it and factory it," he said. "We've got to decide at what point your land ceases to be your land, at what point you must yield to overall planning."

Among the architectural endangered species about which Biddle's group is concerned are the following:

—The U.S. Capitol, endangered by a proposal to extend the west front, the only remaining portion of the original exterior.

—Grand Central Station in New York, endangered by talk of a high-rise office building over the present station, which the group says would destroy its character.

—Potomac Park in Washington, site of the Lincoln and Jefferson memorials endangered by the proposed route of Interstate 695.

—The old Washington Post Office, a Romanesque Revival building built in 1897, threatened with demolition.

—Drayton Hall in Charleston, S.C., considered the finest example of a South Carolina plantation house, but which has been put up for sale.

—The Delta Queen, Mississippi River paddlewheel steamboat, threatened because it cannot meet fire provisions of 1966 Safety at Sea Law.

—The Mission Inn in Riverside, Calif., 19th century hotel, in jeopardy although there is a proposal to save it by converting it into a cultural community with apartments, shops, theaters and galleries.

—The Reliance Building in Chicago, one of the few surviving examples of the Chicago school of architecture, threatened because it fails to produce the revenues possible from its location.

—Hotel Del Coronado, a Victorian-style seaside resort outside San Diego, Calif., located on land so valuable tax pressure threatens it.

—Union Station, New London, Conn., one of the remaining grand old-style rail terminals, threatened by the continued consolidation of railroads.

"In this country," said Biddle, "we've got to re-think the whole business of land use, re-examine the principle that the best use is the most profitable use."

Famed Violin Given To Israel

JERUSALEM (UPI) -- Mexican violinist Henry Szeryng gave Jerusalem a 1743 Stradivarious violin Sunday during a concert of the Israel philharmonic orchestra. The Polish-born musician named it the Kinor David Stradivarious in honor of what Jews call the city of King David.

Szeryng said the violin was intended for the use of outstanding Israeli violinists.

Yule Blazes Leave 46 Dead In U.S.

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

At least 46 persons were killed during the Christmas weekend in fires, some believed to have been caused by Christmas decorations.

In one of the blazes, a family of four died when fire swept their home in Avalon Hills, a suburb of Indianapolis, Ind. Firemen speculated the fire started when Christmas tree lights were left burning all night.

In Woodbridge, N.J., Christmas decorations were believed to be the cause of a fire that killed a 6-year-old girl and severely burned her father Monday. The girl, Pamela Claesson, and her father, Carl, were sleeping when the fire broke out.

Five persons were killed Monday when fire destroyed a two story home in Schodack Landing, N.Y. Three of the dead were children. Three others suffered injuries in the blaze. The fire was believed to have started in the kitchen near a wood-burning stove used for heating.

A 4-year-old girl died in a blaze that damaged five frame homes in the Borough of Queens, New York City, where nine families, 50 persons in all, were made homeless.

An overloaded circuit was blamed for a fire in Susquehanna, Pa., that killed two children.

A dozen homes were gutted by fire near the UCLA campus in Los Angeles Monday when 45-mile-an-hour winds spread the blaze from one house. There were no injuries.

Sihanouk Pledges Total Resistance

HONG KONG (UPI) —Prince Norodom Sinahouk, head of the exile government of Cambodia, told the North Vietnamese people in a message from Peking that "No escalation of the armed aggression of the U.S.A. can bend our knees," the New China News Agency reported today.

The official Chinese agency quoted Sihanouk as saying:

"Our choice is made, no escalation of the armed aggression of U.S.A. can bend our knees. The U.S. Air Force, the strongest and the most murderous of the world and of all times, has already sustained the most disastrous and the most ignominious defeat in its history, which is inflictead on it by the supremely heroic and talented defenders of the soil and air of the DRVN (North Vietnam).

200 Hurt When Bullring Tumbles

BOGOTA (UPI) —The grandstand of a village bullring about 25 miles from Bogota collapsed Monday while about 2,000 spectators were cheering a trio of local matadors.

Officials said about 200 persons were injured, about 30 of them seriously. They said they did not know what caused the wooden grandstand to fall.

A Visit To The Sad 49er Dressing Room

Trying to forget what happened last weekend to both Bay Area pro football teams, but still remembering, fans can be forgiven for not getting overly excited about the upcoming NFL conference championship games Sunday.

Dallas will be playing against Washington for the National Football Conference title. Great. Pittsburgh will go against Miami for the American Conference title. Great.

But the way Dallas and Pittsburgh got there left 49er and Raider fans in a state of shock that still lasts today. What happened last Saturday had to be the most shocking day in Bay Area pro sports. A loss is a loss, most of them the kind that can be forgotten quickly, with maybe a day or two of thought. But the kind of losses San Francisco and Oakland suffered? Those players will be remembering the circumstances through the entire summer.

The Raiders' loss was on a fluke play when Steeler Franco Harris caught a batted down pass and ran 60 yards for a touchdown with five seconds left in the game. Result: Raiders lose, 13-7. Some watched in horror on television. I was depending on the radio, listening to Bill King describe it all while I sat in my car in the parking lot at Candlestick Park before the start of the 49er game with Dallas. I thought that would be the only stunning shocker of the day. How wrong I was.

THE 49ERS were beaten in a game they "couldn't" lose. They were in front of the Cowboys, 28-16, with only one minute and 53 seconds left. Seven plays and one on-sides kick later the 49ers were beaten, 30-28.

By then many fans were already in their cars, having left the stadium early thinking of certain victory for the 49ers. The fans who remained sat there stunned by the quick turnaround.

The 49er dressing room was like a mortuary. A feeling of shock and disappointment hung heavily in the air as reporters searched their minds to find questions for players who didn't feel much like answering.

LONG AFTER the first questions were being asked, veteran tackle Charlie Krueger sat there on a chair in front of his cubicle, still wearing his football pants. There was still some tape to pull off his massive hands.

"This is a good team. It's a hell of a good team," he said looking around at the slowly emptying room. "We went through tough spots all year. Maybe this loss helped us become a better team. We'll be a really good team next year."

Will Charlie, a 35-year-old 14-year veteran be part of that 1973 team?

"If I am at the weight limit coach (Dick) Nolan sets for me I will be at training camp next year," said Krueger. "If I'm not at that weight he wouldn't let me through the training camp gate. Dick Nolan is a fine, fair coach. He has to be to have an old guy like me around."

THEN KRUEGER looked over at offensive guard Woody Peoples who was quietly dressing four feet away. "You guys should go over and congratulate Woody for making all-pro. I would really hate to play against that guy all day . . . he holds on every play."

That crack made Peoples smile faintly. Charlie has a way of picking up a fellow player's spirit when he needs it most.

Preston Riley will be reliving that on-sides kick which he bobbled for a long time. Dallas kicker Toni Fritsch sent a spinning, twisting kick toward Riley and it bounced off his fingers, Mel Renfro recovering on the 50. Three plays later came the winning touchdown from Roger Staubach to Ron Sellers.

When asked about the muff, Riley said, "I just missed it." Then he looked down, slowly shaking his head.

Some might have thought back to 1957 when the 49ers, in a playoff for the Western Division title, held a 7-7 lead in the third quarter against the Detroit Lions, and then stole defeat from the jaws of victory, losing, 31-27.

That was a slow, agonizing thing, the 49ers gasping and finally bleeding to death. Last Saturday death came surprisingly quickly, a bullet in the heart.

OVER WASHINGTON

49ers' Coach Nolan Picks Cowboys' Win

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—San Francisco 49er Coach Dick Nolan thinks Dallas can beat Washington in Sunday's National Football Conference playoff.

"I think Dallas can win it all," he said in the wake of his team's unbelievable 30-28 loss to the Cowboys. "Sure, Washington looked good beating Green Bay, but Dallas is a better club."

The Cowboys' win helped the Redskins, who would have had to play the 49ers at San Francisco but now can play host to the Cowboys.

Nolan praised Washington Coach George Allen for going with a five-man line Sunday against the tough Green Bay running attack and so-so Packer air game.

"He gambled and won that he could put five men in front to stop John Brockington and MacArthur Lane and still contain the pass."

With his playoff hopes shattered, Nolan is turning his attention to the forthcoming draft.

"We're looking for another linebacker," he says. "We carried five instead of the usual six and it carried some problems."

Turning to last Saturday's game, Nolan says "it's hard not to look back and wonder what would have happened if we beat the Cowboys last Saturday. But we lost, even if it was in the final minute and a half. The thing to do now is to look ahead towards next year and what we can do to improve ourselves."

Raiders' Coach Madden Seething

OAKLAND (UPI)—John Madden, still seething two days after his Oakland Raiders were knocked out of the National Football League playoffs by the most controversial play in years, said Monday he was positive his team "was had."

After spending part of Christmas Eve viewing films of the final seconds of the Oakland-Pittsburgh game during which time Franco Harris of the Steelers scooped up a deflected pass and scored the game-winning touchdown, the Raider coach said he was positive defensive back Jack Tatum did not touch the ball.

If Tatum had not touched the ball, the pass should have been ruled incomplete with the Raiders holding a 7-6 edge with just five seconds left on the clock.

Instead, referee Fred Swearingen, after consultation with NFL officials in the pressbox, ruled Tatum had indeed deflected the ball into the hands of Harris and that the touchdown stood for the Steelers' 13-7 victory Saturday.

"What Jack did was give him (Frenchy Fuqua, the intended receiver) a good shot from behind as the ball hit him on the shoulder pad," Madden explained. "And then, after the ball went to Harris, they clipped Phil Villapiano (Raider linebacker).

ij Sports

"But there was no way they were going to call it the other way with all those people out on the field. They couldn't have any other decision with all those wild people on the field. Something would have happened. Those people might have killed them (the officials)."

Madden also insisted that NFL officials in the pressbox established precedent by making the touchdown decision from the television instant replay.

"The officials told me they didn't know what happened," Madden said. "And they were going to check upstairs to see what it was. The referee went in to use the dugout telephone and when he came out, he called it a touchdown."

Oakland writers said Steeler Public Relations Director Joe Gordon told reporters in the pressbox that the NFL officials had made the decision from the replay. However, NFL officials denied it.

"The decision was made on the field," said Val Pinchback of the NFL. "The referee was just phoning us to inform us of his decision."

"If that was the case, why didn't the referee just signal a touchdown before going into the dugout for his conversation?" Madden asked.

"It's just so disappointing," Madden added. "It doesn't make any sense to come down through a whole season and have it end like that. It's unfair.

"If they would admit they set that precedent then maybe we could get a recall on this game and look at those films again. But it'll never happen."

Landry Is Left With A Decision

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Shula said Monday that Earl Morrall, the 38-year-old veteran, will be the starting quarterback for the unbeaten Mimai Dolphins in Sunday's American Conference title game against the Steelers in Pittsburgh.

There had been talk that perhaps Bob Griese, last year''s AFC passing leader who was out almost all season with a broken ankle, would be reinstated at quarterback. Morrall had problems moving Miami through most of the Dolphins' 20-14 victory over Cleveland Sunday.

But Shula put down that talk Christmas Day when he announced that Morrall, who took over for Griese early, in the season and has helped lead the Dolphins to an unprecedented 15-0 record, will be his starter against the Steelers.

"Earl will start in Pittsburgh," Shula said. The Dolphins' coach did admit that he was thinking of inserting Griese when Morrall had a horrible first half against the Browns but decided to stick with the veteran quarterback.

UNDECIDED

Landry, who'll send his Dallas Cowboys against the Redskins in Washington for the National Football Conference title, still hasn't decided between Craig Morton, his season-long starter, or Roger Staubach, last year's hero, for the starting quarterback role.

Morton was unable to move the club against San Francisco in Saturday's semifinal playoff and Staubach, who missed virtually all of the season with an injured shoulder, came on to throw two touchdown passes, one in the last minute, to lift the Cowboys to a 30-28 triumph.

The winners of Sunday's games will meet in the Super Bowl in Los Angeles on Jan. 14.

The four playoff finalists spent a leisurely Christmas Monday before getting down to the task of preparing for Sunday's showdowns.

Pittsburgh Coach Chuck Noll, still pretty much in a state of shock after his club's storybook victory over Oakland, said he, "got everything I wanted for Christmas on Saturday."

A GIFT

The Christmas gift came in the form of a weird deflected pass caught by rookie Franco Harris and carried into the end zone for the winning touchdown with only five seconds left. The score came 1:08 after Oakland apparently had clinched the game 7-6 on Kenny Stabler's 30-yard touchdown run and gave Pittsburgh a 13-7 triumph.

The play touched off a storm of controversy concerning its legality and bedlam erupted when the touchdown was ruled valid.

"I saw it on the replay and it looked perfectly legal to me," Noll siad, "and the fans were not unruly, just happy."

In Washington, Larry Brown, the Redskins' one-man rushing gang, said he was at only 90 per cent efficiency against Green Bay Sunday as the Redskins won 16-3.

APPRECIATE

"It wasn't until about 7 p.m. Sunday night that I could really sit back and appreciate what we had accomplished," Brown said. "Until then, I was just recuperating and catching my breath. I''m probably about only 90 per cent but I'll be ready for the Cowboy game. You've got to play in the playoffs."

The Miami-Pittsburgh game will begin at noon EDT and will be telecast nationally by NBC, Channel 4. The Dallas-Washington game will begin at 3 p.m. EST and will be carried by CBS, Channel 5. There will be a blackout within the 75-mile radius.

BASKETBALL

Prep Teams Schedule Is Tough

The high schools in Marin and southern Sonoma are supposed to be on vacation this week, but the schedule-makers have made sure that few of the basketball players will be able to relax. Some tough opponents have been lined up for this week.

San Marin High School, for example, must journey to Oakland for an 8 o'clock game tonight against fearsome St. Elizabeth, which is averaging almost 100 points a game and has been called by some the best team in the East Bay. Today's other game was to pit Terra Linda against the College of Marin freshmen in Kentfield at 4 p.m.

Tomorrow at 8:30 p.m., Marin Catholic will play Bishop O'Dowd in O'Dowd's tournament in Oakland. The Dragons may have graduated everybody from last year's 30-1 team, but they're still tough as their own bandbox gym, said Marin Catholic coach Dave Gonsalves.

The tournament continues through Saturday, with the Wildcats playing again Friday against the winner or loser of the Oakland Tech-San Leandro game. Also in the tourney are such luminaries as Hayward, which won the Rose City tournament, and Moreau, which beat Hayward by 30.

Other games tomorrow find Lincoln of San Francisco at Drake, 11 a.m.; Washington of San Francisco at San Rafael, 1 p.m.; and Redwood vs. Mills of

Grid Game Laden With Turnovers

MIAMI (UPI)—The players appeared to be trying too hard to land a professional football contract in the Orange Bowl Christmas night and turned the annual Shrine North-South college all-star football show into a game of turnovers.

The North team collected four second-half South bobbles for a come-from-behind 17-10 victory with two fourth-quarter touchdowns. There were a total of nine turnovers in the game.

"I don't think we found any No. 1 draft choices tonight," said San Francisco 49ers' Clarence Parker, one of the more than 75 pro scouts watching the game.

They may have found a high pick in Purdue linebacker Gary Bingham, however.

His theft of Arkansas Joe Ferguson's pass and 37-yard runback in the opening minutes of the game set up the North's first score, a 21-yard field goal by Marvin Roberts of Michigan State.

And Bingham saved the victory for the North with only 58 seconds remaaining in the game by pouncing on a fumble by Miami's Chuck Foreman.

The South had driven 80 yards to the North one-yard line and seemed to have victory in its grasp. Californian Bill Armstrong's interception of a South pass thrown by John Madeya of Louisville and 27-yard runback put the Northerners in position at the South 10 to score the tying touchdown.

Wisconsin's Rufus "Roadrunner" Ferguson crunched over from the two with 13:50 remaining in his fourth straight crack at the South line. Moments later, Foreman committed his first bobble and Kevin Riley of Villanova recovered for the North at midfield.

The winning North drive was aided by an offside penalty against the South on an attempted field goal which gave the North a first down on the South 11. Two plays later, Bob McCall of Arizona ran 14 yards untouched around left end for the winning score.

The South's Ferguson engineered a 59-yard drivein the second quarter, throwing 18 yards to David Knight of William and Mary for the touchdown 6:10 before the half.

The other Rebel score came on a 23-yard field goal by Alfred Reese of Tennessee State with 4:57 left in the third period.

Rufus Ferguson won the North's most valuable player award and Foreman, the game's leading ground gainer despite his costly fumbles, was chosen MVP for the South.

The North victory evened the series at 12-12-1, but was played on a chilly night before a sparse crowd of less than 10,000, the Shrine, however, collected $120,000 for its charities from ABC television and from ticket sales which topped 18,000.

ROSE BOWL

Ohio State Scout Sizes Up Squads

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Three teams pop into Esco Sarkkinen's mind when the Ohio State scout of nearly three decades thinks of the greatest college football squads he's seen.

Sarkkinen, completing his 27th season with the Buckeyes, prefers to think of eras rather than teams when he talks about the great ones.

"I would say the 1947-48 Michigan team, Michigan State of the mid-60s and the three Ohio State teams of Rex Kern and company," Sarkkinen said.

He refuses to put top-ranked Southern California which plays Ohio State in the Rose Bowl New Year's day, in the same class for one reason.

"This has to rank with John McKay's finest, but it's only for one season, not two or three years, like those others," he explained.

The Michigan team had trick-type plays," he said. "They could hit you with so many different offensive patterns."

Of the Michigan State squads, he said, "They had perhaps the finest defensive talent the Big 10 has ever seen. Players such as Bubba Smith and George Webster are once in a lifetime."

Kern led Ohio State to a 27-2 record in three years, including a victory over Southern Cal in the 1969 Rose Bowl.

Sarkkinen said, "It was the best for total commitment by one class.

"They had more offensive and defensive blue-chippers in balanced positions than any team I ever saw," he said of the 1968-70 Buckeye powerhouses.

However, Sarkkinen isn't underselling the top-ranked Trojans who ripped through 11 straight opponents during the season.

"All their best players are in the key positions," he said.

IN OAKLAND

Warriors Host Sonics Tonight

OAKLAND (UPI)—The Golden State Warriors seem to be jelling into a formidable unit while the Seattle SuperSonics can't seem to.

"We've had a few basic personnel problems," says Sonics coach Tom Nissalke, "but I feel we're going to get on the right track pretty soon."

The Sonics call on the Warriors in National Basketball Association action tonight and coach Al Attles of Golden State says of the Sonics "they've got a lot of talent and one night they'll suddenly find themselves. I'm hoping it won't be against us."

Golden State is 21-11 and still stands midway between Los Angeles and Phoenix in the Western Division. The trail the former by 5 1-2 games and lead the latter by the same number of contests. Seattle is at 10-28.

Seattle's potential is shown by its win and overtime loss to Milwaukee, a team the Warriors have so far been unable to handle.

But Golden State has dumped powerhouses Boston and Chicago in its last two outings and won five of the last six. In those last two wins, Golden State moved the ball well and thus got numerous easy shots and balanced scoring.

"That's what we're looking for," said Attles.

Sharon Wins 2 Tennis Crowns

Sharon Walsh is spending the holidays 10,248 miles from home, but shed no tears for her. She got what she wanted for Christmas.

The tennis player from San Rafael Saturday won the women's singles championship in a Sugar Circuit tournament in Capetown, South Africa, adding that title to the mixed doubles crown she won Friday. Only a defeat in the finals of the women's doubles dampened her holiday cheer.

The singles victory came in a slam-bang, 6-0, 5-7, 6-4 match with South Africa's No. 1 woman player, Pat Pretorius. "Sharon called us and said it was a terrific match," said her father, Les, a San Rafael photographer. "She said the people down there gave both players a standing ovation after it was over."

Miss Pretorius got even in the women's doubles, when she and South Africa's top-ranked junior player, Ilana Kloss, beat Miss Walsh and Daniele Bouteleux of France, 6-2, 6-4.

Miss Walsh and Jergen Fassbender of West Germany Friday defeated Miss Pretorius and Pat Cramer of South Africa, 6-2, 6-4, for the mixed doubles title.

Miss Walsh will continue to compete on the Sugar Circuit until late January, and will play this week at Port Elizabeth, her father said.

Hockey Team Aide Dismisses Himself

BALTIMORE (UPI)—General Manager Terry Reardon fired himself as head coach of the American Hockey League Baltimore Clippers Monday and named veteran defenseman Jim Morrison as his replacement. Morrison will become a player-coach while Reardon will concentrate on his front-office duties.

Reardon blamed recent hockey expansion and the creation of the World Hockey Association for his club's misfortune this year—Baltimore has won the Western Division of the AHL the past two seasons but is deep in last place this season with a 5-19-7 record.

FISH AND GAME

Memorable Trip To Marysville

By AL GIDDINGS

Sidelights of a duck hunt. A couple of days ago, Kurt Kalemba, my neighbor here in Woodacre, invited me up to his duck club near Marysville.

We planned to go the evening before, to sleep at the clubhouse, and to beat driving up in that dangerous morning fog. Enroute that evening, we talked about duck hunting.

Kurt said he has been missing shots a lot; he asked for my suggestion. I told him to increase his lead, and to be sure that he was swinging his gun with the bird's flight. Kurt also mentioned he had difficulty retrieving a duck shot in the pond because of the soft and uneven mud bottom. To this, I answered that we had my dog Bruno along who would retrieve every bird for us, so that we wouldn't have to leave the blind. When Kurt started driving fast, I asked him why he was rushing. He replied "I have the dinner for the gang, so they will be waiting".

WHEN WE ARRIVED at the clubhouse, a car was pulling out. In the car were three of the best looking girls of Marysville and three of the club duck hunters. We checked that car out, and were immediately invited to a birthday dinner party at the Lotus, a famous Marysville Chinese restaurant. We forgot about Kurt's dinner plans and, so we went to town. In town, we encountered half the town of Marysville; they were there to celebrate a gal's birthday! One of the girls, during the introductions, said I had checked her hunting at Pt. Reyes two weeks ago. It's a small world!

AT THE RESTAURANT, which also had a bar, the seating arrangements called for each gal sitting with some man other than her husband. These gals were all young, good looking, and dressed to kill. At one period of the evening, all the Marysville husbands were out at the bar, leaving us poor duck hunters to entertain the ladies. (Isn't this a likely story?) Can you imagine our wives walking in just about then?

The point of this yarn is to tell you wives that if you ever find your husband, who has left home in his duck clothes and with a day's beard stubble, in a Chinese restaurant with a good looking gal, just don't say a word.

I don't know what Kurt's wife will say when he brings home that meat loaf dinner she prepared for the hunt! About midnight, when the revelry was at a high pitch, I heard a horn blowing on the main street. Kurt mentioned that it sounded like his car's horn. I figured that someone had just been married. The blasting of the horn continued. Finally, we looked out the window; a huge crowd was all around Kurt's car. We rushed out to see what was happening. There was Bruno the dog sitting on the horn; the crowd was roaring with laughter. I guess Bruno figured it was time to go home. We let him out, and everyone petted the pooch. He had his party too! With that, Kurt and I headed for the clubhouse.

After breakfast, we went out to the duck ponds. The shooting was slow, as the birds stayed generally out of range, but Kurt, anxious to try bigger leads, nailed a mallard that sailed about 300 yards.

BRUNO DIDN'T see the bird so Kurt gave it a go; he returned empty handed. I took Bruno up there, and in two minutes he recovered the bird. About two hours later, Kurt sailed another. We both went up after this one, but finding it looked to be an impossibility to us. But Bruno retrieved the bird. It was a cock sprig. In Kurt's mind, Bruno was a hero. Kurt got two more birds — he must have been leading them 20 feet, because they were all 60 yards out. I didn't get a bird! Kurt's four birds, two mallards and two sprig, made him high man for the day at the club. I'm telling you that these duck hunts can sure be tough at times.

WHA ROUNDUP

Blazers, Raiders Behind Eight-Ball

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The Philadelphia Blazers and New York Raiders had one thing in common Monday afternoon. They were behind the eight-ball.

The New England Whalers scored three goals in a two and a half minute burst in the first period and went on to defeat the Raiders 8-2 and remain two points ahead of the Cleveland Crusaders in the World Hockey Association's Eastern Division race. The Crusaders got the benefit of goalie Gerry Cheevers' fourth shutout on home ice to top the Blazers 8-0.

In the other WHA game, Rosaire Paiement scored one goal and assisted on the other two to give the Chicago Cougars their third consecutive triumph, a 3-2 victory over the Alberta Oilers.

John French scored at 8:59, Terry Caffery tallied unassisted at 10:56 and Kevin Ahearn tipped in a long Ted Green shot at 11:30 to give New England a 3-1 first period lead, more than offsetting Bobby Sheehan's early New York goal.

Tom Webster scored twice for the Whalers in the second period, and Tim Sheehy, Brit Selby and John Danby beat Ian Wilkie, who substituted for Pete Donnelly at the start of the third period in the Raiders goal, for the Whalers' third period scores. Craig Reichmuth added New York's last tally with 1:36 to go in the game.

Cheevers, who lowered his goals-against average to 2.31 in the Crusaders' shutout, had to make only 22 saves and got great help from his defensemen, while Blazers' netminders Marcel Paille and Bernie Parent had to handle 50 Cleveland shots.

Seals Visit Canucks In Vancouver Battle

VANCOUVER, B.C. (UPI)— It's boxing day in Canada as the California Golden Seals call on the Vancouver Canucks for an afternoon game.

Boxing day is when tradesmen get gift boxes and the Seals would love a present on a victory from the Canucks, who have been in a slump of their own.

Seals captain Bert Marshall, whose absence from the backline has been a special disaster for the Seals, played briefly in Sunday night's loss to Los Angeles and might be ready for more action today. His team needs him.

The one bright spot in the Seals' abysmal showing of late has been the play of the line of Joey Johnston-Walt McKechnie-Craig Patrick, which has averaged better than two points a game and not given anything away on defense, either.

Patrick particularly has been a gem. His eight goals already match his total for all last season.

After today's tussle, the Seals return home to face Philadelphia Wednesday and fellow cellar dweller Long Island Friday night.

NHL Sabres' Goalie Crozier Hospitalized

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI)—The Buffalo Sabres of the National Hockey League announced Monday night that goalie Roger Crozier has been hospitalized for an indefinite period in Toronto General Hospital for an apparent flareup of pancreatitis.

To replace Crozier, the Sabres have called up Norman (Rocky) Farr from the Cincinnati Swords, their American Hockey League farm club.

Abdul-Jabbar Proves Point In NBA Play

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

"When you need a bucket, it's a lot easier to get it when you can go to a guy who throws it in from directly above the basket."

That's what Kansas City-Omaha Coach Bob Cousy said about the Milwaukee Bucks' 7-foot-2 center, Kareem Abdul Jabbar, Monday night after he scored 32 points, including 10 of the Bucks' last 17, in a 104-99 Milwaukee victory. The win, coupled with Chicago's 115-108 loss to Phoenix Christmas afternoon, gave Milwaukee a 4 1-2-game bulge over the Bulls in the National Basketball Association's Midwest Division.

OTHER GAMES

In other NBA action Monday night, New York edged Detroit 113-110 and Sidney Wicks' career-high 38 points led Portland to a 116-113 triumph over Seattle, the Sonics' 13th consecutive road loss.

The Kings moved from an 89-83 deficit to a tie at 95-all with 5:02 to go on a basket by Don Kojis, and had an opportunity to beat the Bucks, a feat they had not accomplished since Dec. 19, 1970—10 losses ago.

Abdul-Jabbar hit with 3:58 to play and came back with a three-point play 30 seconds later to lock up the victory.

Although the zone is illegal in the NBA, Cousy said that all teams go into a zone at the end of a game.

"But every team doesn't have Abdul-Jabbar in the middle of the zone," Cousy said.

Apparently not, for Nate Archibald, scoring 34 points a game before tonight, was held to only 20, his second lowest output of the season. However, Little Nate did get 18 assists, which equaled his best output for 1972.

SUNS BLAZE

At Phoenix, Chicago led after each of the first three quarters, largely on the strength of Bob Love's 29 points, once by as many as 11 points. But the shooting of Dick Van Arsdale and Charlie Scott, who had 32 and 26 points, respectively, coupled with Lamar Green's rebounding, helped the Suns to tie the score at 99-99 with 5:12 remaining.

The Suns went ahead to stay at 105-103 on two free throws by Van Arsdale with 2:45 remaining and won their fourth consecutive game while handing the Bulls their fifth loss in their last six games.

BRADLEY

Bill Bradley scored 29 points and Dave DeBusschere and Walt Frazier added 44 more between them to move New York to within 1 1-2 games of idle Boston in the Atlantic Division.

Wicks scored 23 of his points in the first half when Portland took a 57-54 lead and sparked the Trail Blazers to a 14-point fourth-quarter lead. It was cut to one with five seconds remaining, but Charlie Davis made two free throws to put the game out of reach.

WORLD CUP PLAY

Bleak Outlook For U.S. Squad

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — "If we give 110 per cent against the Russians, we'll still lose by 10 goals," Rob Palmer of the University of Denver mused as his United States team prepared for the opening match tonight in the second annual World Cup of Ice Hockey here.

Palmer is anxious to play, but he's also a realist. The task ahead of the American team, comprised on U.S. college hockey players who have never skated together as a team, is awesome.

First of all there are the defending champions, the Soviet Union. The Russians have all but two of the players from the contingent that surprised the National Hockey League's Team Canada last summer and also won the Olympic gold medal at Japan last February.

Then there's Czechoslovakia, which won the 1972 Group A World championship. The Czechs, with most of their world tournament players on this team, posted the only victory over Russia in last year's round-robin World Cup.

Rounding out the four-team tourney will be Canada, represented by the Medicine Hat, Alta., Junior A team, which also has added other standout players from the Western Canada Junior Hockey League.

The Americans open the tourney against the Czechs tonight, and U.S. Coach Bob Johnson, of the University of Wisconsin, feels his players will do themselves credit.

"We're not going to play scared," he says. "The players are all looking forward to playing the best in the world. It's a great challenge for them."

The Czechs play the Canadians Wednesday night and the Russians Friday night to complete the Colorado Springs portion of the tournament. Action then shifts to Bloomington, Minn., where the Russians play Canada Saturday night. The United States meets Canada Dec. 31 and closes the tournament Jan. 2 against the Russians.

COACH'S CONTRACT

Redskins' Boss Pays Price For His Wants

By MILTON RICHMAN

WASHINGTON (UPI) —You wouldn't want to meet a bigger sport than Edward Bennett Williams, one of the country's top trial lawyers and president of the Washington Redskins.

He's not the type to nickel and dime you.

If he likes something and wants it, he goes out and pays top dollar.

Now you take his football coach, George Allen, who has the Redskins only one jump away from the Super Bowl.

When Edward Bennett Williams told George Allen how much he wanted him to handle his team two years ago, he didn't merely tell him, he SHOWED him.

He gave Allen a seven-year contract as general manager and head coach at $125,000 per. He also threw in a fancy place for Allen and his family to stay in plus a car and a chauffeur. So he wouldn't feel neglected, Allen also got an option on the Redskins' stock.

In return for all this, Edward Bennett Williams occasionally is allowed to set foot in the Redskins' clubhouse —if he behaves himself. Or so the local joke goes.

"I'm a lawyer," says Edward Bennett Williams. "I have a 35-man law firm to run. I don't have time to run a football team, and I don't have the inclination to. George is the man I want to run it, and he does. I still make the major policy decisions. Presidents of other organizations want to run the day-to-day operation. I don't."

In the two years Allen has worked for him, Williams says they've never had so much as a single disagreement. What's more, Williams feels Allen is worth every nickel he's getting.

"If you want something good, you've got to pay for it," says Williams. "I never got anything for nothing. Certainly nothing worthwhile.I have no regrets about the deal I made for George. He's unquestionably one of the two or three best coaches in the world. I've never seen a harder or more dedicated worker. He works, works, works, and his job is always on his mind. He thinks of nothing else.

When the Redskins captured their first post-season game in 30 years Sunday by polishing off the Green Bay Packers, 163, one of the happiest persons among the record crowd of 53,140 at Robert F. Kennedy Memorial Stadium here was Henry Kissinger, President Nixon's advisor.

Kissinger applauded vigorously and was all smiles as the scoreboard clock ran out. He wasn't any happier though than Edward Bennett Williams, who could remember the kind of Christmas it was a year ago.

Now the Redskins go against the Dallas Cowboys next Sunday and if they get past them, they go to the Super Bowl, but a year ago there was only one place for the Redskins to go and that was home. Williams remembers the whole thing well, and also remembers Allen's reaction.

"You know George," says the Redskins' owner, "He's like a German general. He thinks he's supposed to commit suicide when he loses.

"Anyway, we lost to San Francisco in the playoff game a year ago. You may remember it was a bad snap that did it.The ball was poorly handled by our punter, and the Forty Niners fell on it in the end zone and got a touchdown.

"On the plane going back home, George was inconsolable. You'd think it was the end of the world. I told him to forget it, go home, get some sleep, take a rest awhile and then start thinking about next year.

" But I couldn't get through to him at all. 'No, no, no,' he kept saying. The following morning I was still in bed sleeping when I got a call. It was George. He said, 'Ed, you're right. I'm thinking about next year. We're gonna add three minutes to our practice sessions. Do you know what we're gonna practice in those three minutes?'

"I say, no what?

"'Bad snaps,' he says.

"You know something? He had the team do it, too."

Prep Cage Tournament Tomorrow

With a reshuffled lineup, the third annual Marin Catholic Freshman Invitational basketball tournament will get underway with a schedule of four games tomorrow.

Missing will be Riordan High School of San Francisco, which won the tournament last year, and Serra of San Mateo, which took the title two years ago. Sacred Heart of San Francisco and Cardinal Newman of Santa Rosa have been added.

Tomorrow's schedule calls for Bishop O'Dowd of Oakland to play Newman at 3 p.m.; San Rafael vs. Sacred Heart, 4:30; Moreau of Hayward vs. St. Patrick's of Vallejo, 6; and Marin Catholic vs. Terra Linda, 7:30.

The O'Dowd-Newman winner will face the San Rafael-Sacred Heart winner at 6 p.m. Thursday, while the Moreau-St. Pat's winner will play the Marin Catholic-Terra Linda winner at 7:30. Losers meet earlier. Finals will be played Friday at 7:30.

The host Wildcats, who finished third and fourth in the two previous tournaments, enter this one with a 5-2 record and "the biggest team we've ever had," Gonsalves said. The 'Cats lost to O'Dowd earlier this year, 51-40.

Inter-League Play In Limbo

Combined AP & UPI

SAN DIEGO — San Diego Padre general manager E. J. (Buzzie) Bavasi says there will not be any inter-league play next season between the American and National baseball leagues.

"No chance," said Bavasi. "It only takes one vote to stop it and I've got the vote."

The Padre official said the National League expansion teams paid $10 million for their franchise while the American League teams paid only about half that much.

"We paid a big price to play in the new ballparks. I'll think about playing in the old ones (the American League parks) if they want to pay us the difference — $5 million."

Officials of both leagues are to meet Jan. 11 at Chicago to discuss the topic and a proposed rule to adopt a designated pinch-hitter or pinch-runner for pitchers.

Football

LAKE TAHOE — The Washington Redskins and Miami Dolphins have been installed as favorites by Harrah's Tahoe Racebook for Sunday's National Football League conference championships.

The Redskins were listed Monday as 3½ point favorites to beat the Dallas Cowboys for the National Conference title.

The Dolphins are 2½ point picks over the Pittsburgh Steelers in the American Conference.

PASADENA — Anthony Davis, the University of Southern California's sensational sophomore running back, was named winner of the W. J. Voit Award today as the Pacific Coast's Player of the Year.

The 5-foot-9, 185-pound tailback led the Pacific-eight Conference in rushing with 1,034 yards and in scoring with 108 points.

Tennis

MELBOURNE, Australia — Karl Meiler of West Germany, a virtual unknown, upset top-seeded Ken Rosewall 6-2, 6-3, 6-2 in the second round Monday of the $53,500 Australian Open men's tennis championships.

In another surprise, Bob Giltman of Australia ousted countryman Mal Anderson, the No. 3 seed, 6-7, 6-2, 6-2, 7-6.

Securities Industry Is Noticing Earnings Squeeze

By S. M. MARSHALL
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

NEW YORK — Wall Street is gripped in an earnings squeeze once again, hardly two years after it emerged from one of the most crisis-filled periods in its history.

Profits are disappearing at brokerage houses because of sharply rising costs, the advent of negotiated sales charges on large transactions, and generally slow trading volume in the stock market.

The situation is especially disturbing to leaders of the securities industry because the factors causing the falling profits are largely beyond the industry's control. No paperwork jam-up in the Street's own back offices is to blame this time.

Because of the same inflation, prevalent elsewhere in American industry, the costs of skilled labor, of communications lines, of processing equipment, and even the rent have moved up sharply.

At the same time, the industry's revenue base has been shrinking. The unfixing of commission charges on the portion of transactions above $300,000 in value has resulted in sharply lower commission income on those trades.

Volume throughout the securities markets has simultaneously shrunk. As a consequence, Wall Street on the one hand is taking in a smaller percentage of each trade in the form of commissions while the number of trades on the other hand had declined.

William C. Freund, vice-president and chief economist for the New York Stock Exchange, disclosed at an allied members' meeting that a sampling of member firms that account for two-thirds of the industry's revenues showed that they incurred an average monthly loss of $2.5 million on their commission business in July and August.

He disclosed also that the group's average monthly profits for the first eight months of 1972 had fallen to $43.7 million from $53.1 million in the comparable 1971 period. Moreover, these figures include revenues from all sources, which means the losses on commission income are factored in.

Dr. Freund said the advent of negotiated commission charges in 1971 had cut total commission revenues by $70 million that year and would subtract another $10 million this year, since the break point for negotiation has been dropped from $500,000 to $300,000.

Pressures exist in Congress and at the Securities and Exchange Commission for a further reduction to the $100,000 level. But James J. Needham, chairman of the Big Board, has called for a delay in any such move until the industry's profits rebound.

That they are in a sharp decline has been clearly evident in the financial reports for the September quarter publicly revealed by some of Wall Street's largest and traditionally most profitable houses.

Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, for example, said its thrid-quarter net income before an extraordinary charge had fallen 13.3 per cent, even though gross revenues had risen 4.7 per cent.

Similar results were reported by Reynolds Securities and Paine, Webber, Jackson & Curtis, which always are among the most profitable firms in the Street. Hayden Stone, another big house, reported a 97 per cent profit decline for the quarter.

Walston & Co., still another major concern, reported a loss of more than $588,000 for the fiscal quarter ended Aug. 31. A number of other firms that do not report their results publicly also are understood to have operated with deficits recently.

Some houses managed to report gains — for example, Dean Witter & Co., E. F. Hutton & Co. and Donaldson, Lufkin & Jenrette. But Hutton and DLJ both had slimmer profit margins in the third quarter, which means their increased earnings came entirely from increased revenues.

Even Salomon Brothers, tops in the institutional block trading business and a virtual money mint for its partners in recent years, suffered a 33 per cent profits decline in the fiscal year ended Sept. 30.

Perhaps the only encouraging aspect of all the bad news is that it is not likely to threaten the average investor, as it did in the crisis of 1969-70. There still are no indications this time of any difficulties in processing paperwork.

Capital regulations have been strengthened and the ability to monitor brokerage-house finances has been improved. Still, a number of mergers are expected to occur as firms give up trying to cope with the profit squeeze by themselves.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Marlennan Corp. Stock Is Expected To Increase

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I hold a very large block of Marlennan Corp. (NYSE) which has depreciated considerably. What would your advice be?—D.T. Q. Marlennan, of which I hold 300-shares, has dropped 20 points since I bought. Should I hold or sell? — D.C.

A. Unusual expenses and lower-than-anticipated revenue growth has exerted pressure on this insurance broker's profit margins. Nevertheless earnings should reach $1.95 a share for 1972 (a 5 percent year-to-year gain). The additional expenses were related to a major relocation involving some 40 per cent of corporate personnel. The company's accounting method delays the accrual of commissions by approximately a year. For this reason the full impact of the economic recovery has not yet been reflected in earnings.

A gradual return to the company's strong growth rate of 15 per cent annually set in the 1966-71 period may be achieved by late 1973. This could be generated by increasing emphasis being placed on corporate service on a national basis. To that end internal restructuring has been effected and two mergers are in process. With patience this issue should work out for you.

Q. I am a widow in my early sixties. All my money is in the savings bank getting 5½ per cent interest. To keep my taxes from getting any higher, would it be better if I bought U.S. Savings bonds series E. — E.S.

A. The postponement of income tax liability on savings bond interest until redemption would be advantageous in reducing your tax burden. Thus if you do not need the savings interest for income, I would favor purchasing E bonds. With the added one-half per cent bonus on bonds held to maturity, you will not suffer any loss in the rate of interest you will receive.

E bond sales continue to set records, and have exceeded redemptions for the last 26 months. As of Nov. 30, 1972, some $57.8 billion in Series E, H and Freedom Shares were outstanding. This all-time high level is more than $3 billion above the year-earlier figure.

Prices Move Higher On Stock Mart

NEW YORK (UPI) — For the second consecutive session, the market moved higher on the New York Stock Exchange today as investors got over their initial disappointment with the breakdown of the Paris peace talks and resumption of U. S. bombing over North Vietnamese cities. Trading was moderate.

The exchange observed two minutes of silence in respect for former President Harry S Truman who died today.

The market was bothered some by the boost in the prime interest rate to 6 per cent by many banks, brokers said, but investors still remained confident in the economy.

Gulf Oil was the most active issue, up ¼ to 27 on 82,600 shares.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange declined in moderate trading. Bro-Dart Industries was the most active Amex issue, off ¼ to 3 on 87,700 shares including a block trade of 83,200 shares at 2 ¾.

On the Big Board, Mountain Fuel Supply jumped 4 points. The company said today a well in southwestern Wyoming produced a significant flow of natural gas.

Horizon Corp., the land developer, was active and off 1. The company reported a sharply lower second quarter net.

National Airlines gained 1 ½. The firm said it expects its upward earnings trend to continue into next year.

Computer and electronics issues were mostly higher. IBM jumped 4 ¾, Texas Instruments 2 ⅞.

Glamor issues also moved higher. Walt Disney added 1 ½ and Wrigley and Polaroid 1 each.

Eastman Kodak tacked on 1 in the mixed chemical group. Rails, steels, airlines and aircrafts were mixed in fractions. Motors were gainers with Ford ahead ⅞.

Quik Stop Markets Planning New Branch In Santa Venetia

Quik Stop Markets Inc., with headquarters in Fremont, hopes to open a new branch store at 750 Adrian Way in Santa Venetia sometime next year.

The site is at the corner of La Pasada and Adrian Way, where Leswing Communications Inc., a publishing firm, is located. The new market will be built next to Leswing.

Vince Depolo, buyer for Quik Stop Markets, said the Santa Venetia store is only in the planning stages, and it would be at least five or six months before the new store is built. He said Quik Stop has existing stores in San Anselmo, Petaluma and two in Santa Rosa.

The company is applying for an offsale beer and wine license for the Santa Venetia outlet.

KENNETH M. DANIELS of Mill Valley and DONALD L. FENN of Larkspur have been named assistant vice presidents of systems and planning in Crocker Bank's data processing center, San Francisco.

Daniels joined Crocker Bank in 1969. Before the promotion, he was a systems officer in the data processing center. He attended Kansas City University.

Fenn

Fenn joined Crocker Bank in 1970 and was also a systems officer. He attended Yale University and is a graduate of Earlham College in Indiana.

THE MEAT and delicatessen department of Home Market at 407 San Anselmo Avenue in San Anselmo will be sold to new owners next month.

George R. Bianchini of San Anselmo, who bought the market from William Franchini last March, will retain the grocery and produce portion but will sell the meat and delicatessen department to Melvin C. Cervelli of San Anselmo.

Cervelli is no newcomer to the store. He owned the grocery department of Home Market until about eight years ago when he sold it to Franchini and went to work for Embee Market in Tiburon.

Cervelli is scheduled to take over the meat and delicatessen department on or after Jan. 2, 1973.

RICHARD E. OSBORN of Novato has taken over the former Bill's Texaco Service at 915 Diablo Avenue, Novato, and has expanded customer service.

Rich Osborn's Texaco specializes in auto waxing and steam cleaning, front end overhaul and alignment, electronic engine tuneup and brake service. It also provides U-Haul trailers.

Osborn bought the station on Dec. 14 from Bill E. Naughton, also of Novato. Osborn also operates the Union Oil Station at Highway 101 and Olive Avenue and has 20 years of experience in the service station business.

EVE E. AULERICH of Fairfax, office supervisor at the Greenbrae office of California State Automobile Association, has completed 40 years of service with CSAA. She received a commendation for "long and devoted service" from Neal Garrison, executive vice president of CSAA in San Francisco.

Mrs. Aulerich first joined CSAA in San Rafael 44 years ago (in 1928), but because of broken service, she did not complete her 40 years until Oct. 25 this year.

"Mrs. Aulerich is a jack of all trades," said John A. Govi, district manager in the Greenbrae office. "She supervises the entire office; there isn't a job here that she can't do."

REALTORS BREAKFAST — Just a reminder that the Marin County Board of Realtors is dispensing with its weekly breakfast this week and next. The next breakfast meeting is set for 8 a.m. Jan. 9 at the Corte Madera Lions Club.

CARL ENDEMANN of Larkspur, a distributor of Nutrilite food supplements and natural skin care products for more than 20 years, is back from a three-day seminar in Ada, Mich., where key distributors were introduced to Amway products. In January, the sales forces of the two corporations will merge, and Nutrilite key distributors will become Amway direct distributors.

Endemann will continue operating from 24 Frances Avenue, Larkspur. He started as Nutrilite distributor in Sausalito in 1950 and moved to Larkspur in 1955.

Construction Activity For This Year

Another Look At Nixon's Victory Drive

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon's coattail may have been longer than it seemed to be if "Foley's law" is applied to the results of 1972 elections of Republicans to the House.

Disappointed Democrats can suggest that it was a "McGovern drag" rather than a presidential coattail that gave the GOP its increase of 13 House seats to a total of 192, still 26 short of a majority.

"Foley's law" was conceived by Duncan Foley, economist at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and described by him in the April, 1970, issue of Forum, the magazine of the Republican Ripon Society.

Acknowledging that issues and other factors cause deviations, it sought to show a relationship between the October unemployment rate in election years and Republican victories in congressional districts.

With the unemployment rate at 5.5 per cent in October, 1972, Foley's chart and graph indicated that the GOP would have won less than 170 House seats if its congressional candidates had not extra help like the Nixon landslide over Democrat George S. McGovern.

When the October unemployment rate was 5.5 per cent in the 1958 election year, with no presidential vote, Republicans won only 154 House seats. In the three-way presidential contest of 1968, they won 192 seats, the same as this year, with an unemployment rate of 3.6 per cent.

The Foley yardstick presumes a shortage of confidence in a Republican Congress to deal with economic issues and indicates that the GOP needs an unemployment rate of about two per cent to win a majority of the House. The rate was at that figure when the party last won control of the House in 1952 with Dwight D. Eisenhower at the top of the ticket.

It is too early for a calculation by Republican statisticians of the party's percentage of the vote for House candidates compared to Nixon's figure of close to 61 per cent of the presidential vote.

With rare exceptions in this century, Republican presidential nominees have polled a higher percentage of the national popular vote than their candidates for the House. One reason was that until recent elections, the GOP let most of the Southern congressional districts go to the Democrats by default. Even this year, 33 Democrats in 108 districts in the 11 Southern states had no Republican opponents.

In their net pickup of 13 seats, however, the GOP gained seven Southern seats to add to the 27 they had won in 1970. Nixon was the first Republican candidate to carry all 11 Southern states. He helped Republicans win the governorship and a U.S. Senate seat in North Carolina.

If his margin helped some House candidates to victory, the net result was negative in senatorial and gubernatorial contests.

The Democrats posted a net gain of one governor and two Senate seats. Prominent Republican losers were such senior incumbents as Sens. Margaret Chase Smith of Maine, Gordon Allott of Colorado and Jack Miller of Iowa.

Nixon Victory Short Of Mark

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon's landslide reelection victory—now officially tabulated—falls short of the most one-sided presidential election in U.S. history.

Official vote canvasses from the 50 states and the District of Columbia showed Monday that Nixon did not quite break former President Lyndon B. Johnson's 1964 record of 61.6 per cent of the total popular vote. Nixon's percentage was 60.9, just .1 higher than Franklin D. Roosevelt's landslide in 1936.

In numbers of votes, however, the tally showed that Nixon won the 1972 election with a record-breaking 47,186,390 votes, nearly 4 million more than Johnson's 43,129,484 in 1964, the previous popular vote record.

Sen. George S. McGovern got 29,169,585 votes, 18,016,805 less than Nixon. His percentage of the total popular vote was 37.7.

Rep. John Schmitz, the American party candidate, ran third with 912,022 votes, 1.1 per cent of the total. Seven other candidates, led by Dr. Benjamin Spock of the Peoples' party, got a total of 216,532 votes, or .3 per cent of the total.

The total turnout was 54.8 per cent of the Census Bureau's estimated 139,563,000 voting age population. That was the lowest turnout since 1948, when 51.3 per cent of the voting age population went to the polls.

In carrying 49 states with 521 electoral votes on election day, Nixon also came in second to a Democrat. Franklin Roosevelt got 523 electoral votes in 1936, carrying 46 states. Nixon's recorded electoral vote will be 520 because one of Virginia's electors last week cast his ballot for John Hospers of the Libertarian party, who got 1,537 popular votes.

McGovern got 17 electoral votes, 14 from Massachusetts and three from the District of Columbia.

The popular vote totals of the other six candidates:

Spock—70,972 in eight states.

Linda Jenness, Socialist Workers—60,795 in 13 states.

Louis Fisher, Socialist Labor—44,385 in nine states.

Gus Hall, Communist—23,209 in 11 states.

E. Harold Munn, Prohibitionist—8,789 in 2 states.

Evelyn Reed, Socialist Workers—6,392 in three states.

All of the presidential figures are based on official vote canvasses, the last of which were not completed until West Virginia certified its results on Friday afternoon, Dec. 22.

New Vehicle Is Stolen

A brand new $3,600 car was stolen from the garage of a Corte Madera home some time Christmas Eve or early yesterday morning, town police reported today.

Noreen Suen said she parked her 1973 Plymouth Valiant in the garage at 22 Prince Royal Passage at 7:30 p.m. Christmas Eve and locked it.

Her father found the garage door open at 9 a.m. yesterday, and the car gone. Its license number is 493 GFP and its color green over white.

Till Tapped At Store In Center

An impudent thief rang up a cash register at Montgomery Wards store in the Corte Madera Center on Saturday evening, helped himself to $40 and escaped before security staff could summon help.

Corte Madera police said the man, and his woman companion, were pursued southwards on Highway 101 by two witnesses, but escaped.

Two Are Dead From Argument

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A 30-year-old woman shot her estranged husband to death and then killed herself during a Christmas party for their two young daughters, sheriff's deputies said Monday.

Deputies said the husband, Nayan Scarborough, 32, came visiting at his wife's small apartment Sunday night while a party for the girls was in progress.

The couple began arguing, went into the bathroom and locked themselves in, and one shot was fired, deputies said.

Mary Ann Scarborough then came back to the living room and told the girls, aged 10 and 15, to leave the apartment. Outside, they heard another shot.

An off-duty sheriff's deputy was passing by and also heard the shots. He broke down the door of the apartment and found the bodies.
